Rayder boys' track team continues Regional domination

Girls' team places second as 20 athletes qualify for State meet

You may have heard the saying, "Let them eat cake." With their performance Saturday in the 1993 Regional track meet at East Jordan, the Charlevoix boys' track team offered a slightly different version of that phrase: "Let them eat dust."

The Rayder boys won their fifth straight regional title placing 17 points ahead of second place Benzie Central. Jason VanLoo, a junior, won the 100 and 200 meter races and anchored two relay teams. Charlevoix's team supremacy was particularly evident in the 3200 meter race where five Charlevoix runners finished in the top eight.

Charlevoix's girls team finished second at the Regional meet with 72 points, 28 points behind Lake City.

Eleven Charlevoix boys and nine Charlevoix girls will be competing in the June 5 State Finals meet at Byron Center.

Charlevoix boys' results in the Regional meet were as follows:

High jump: Parrish, sixth at 5'10."

Shot put: Skippergosh, fifth at 44'8."

Discus: Skippergosh, fourth at 136'4."

800 run: Matt Smith, third, 1:59.83; Porath, fourth, 2:01.31.

1600 run: Matt Smith, second, 4:26.03; Dickinson, fifth, 10:17.22.

400 relay: Charlevoix, second, 45.56.

1600 relay: Charlevoix, fourth,

3:32.32.

3200 relay: Charlevoix (Josh Scheels, Carey, Mike Bush, Matt Smith) first, 8:13.

Charlevoix girls' results were as follows:

Shot put: Parrish, fifth, 32'5."

100 hurdles: Sheila Siegwart, second, 16.58.

300 hurdles: Siegwart, fourth, 51.08; Doan, sixth, 51.32.

200 dash: Livingston, fifth, 27.60.

400 run: Moore, third, 1:02.05; Keem, fifth, 1:02.74.

800 run: Keem, third, 2:26.89.

1600 run: Rowell, sixth, 5:58.49.

3200 run: Chamberlain, fourth, 13:01.01.

800 relay: Charlevoix, third, 1:51.05.

3200 relay: Charlevoix (Keem, Liz Kelly, Anne Schairbaum, Elsa Conlan), 10:10.19.

Wrestlers compete with the best from 13 Midwestern states

Four Charlevoix wrestlers competed in the Great Lakes Invitational Wrestling Tournament at Purdue University this past weekend. In competition against some of the finest wrestlers from 13 Midwestern states, the Charlevoix wrestlers came home with a second, two thirds and a fifth.

The wrestlers, coached by Phil Christ of the Charlevoix free style and Greco-Roman wrestling club, are all underclassmen.

weight class. Christ said Skippergosh was beating the national champion by two points and then ended up losing in the final seconds on an 11-10 decision.

Jason Mativa went 6-2 in eight matches and placed third in at 154 pounds. Christ said that in two of his matches, Mativa made some excellent moves which drew a standing ovation from the crowd.

Dan Harris, who just began wrestling this spring finished third at 180 pounds.

Ron Haggard went 4-2 on the weekend and placed fifth at 154 pounds.

Christ said Skippergosh and Mativa have been invited to try out for Team Michigan later this summer. Team Michigan is part of the USA Wrestling program. If Skippergosh and Mativa qualified for the team they would represent Michigan at national tournaments and in cultural exchange tournaments in other countries.

Oleson's Market provided juice for the road trip. Elanor Sadowski, Mativa, Roofing and Haggard Plumbing and Heating helped fund the trip.

Christ said the club is now finished with spring wrestling meets. This summer they will be training and doing community service work. He said that if the wrestling club is going to be respected and have community support, they are going to have to give something back to the community. He said he has five wrestlers who are going to work on the community service program.

Jill Dreyer makes tracks toward first base in Saturday's softball game which raised the Rayder team's record to 15-6 on the season.

Softball team is now 15-6

Charlevoix's varsity softball team improved its season record to 15-6 with two wins over visiting Grand Rapids Forest Hills Northern Saturday. Charlevoix won the opening game 8-6 and the second game 14-3.

Mary Jane Grunch was the winning pitcher in game one, allowing just three hits while striking out 11 and walking four. Melissa Cox had a double and a single in the game while Angelina Doan had two singles.

In the second game, Liz Grunch was the winning pitcher allowing four hits and walking three in five innings.

Waja Wujcik was a base-path regular with four singles. Mary Jane Grunch had a double and a single. Cox and Liz Grunch each had two singles. Freshman Kristy Kaczynski had a triple and Doan a double.

Charlevoix hosts Indian River Wednesday.

Election Notice

FOR SPECIAL ELECTION
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 2, 1993

To the Qualified Electors of the City/Township of COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX, STATE OF MICHIGAN

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a Special Election will be held in the Township/City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, within said Township/City on
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 2, 1993

AT THE PLACE OR PLACES OF HOLDING THE ELECTION IN SAID TOWNSHIP
AS INDICATED BELOW, VIZ:

FOR THE PURPOSE OF VOTING ON THE FOLLOWING STATE PROPOSAL:

PROPOSAL A

A PROPOSAL TO LIMIT ANNUAL INCREASES IN ALL PROPERTY TAX ASSESSMENTS, REDUCE MAXIMUM SCHOOL OPERATING TAXES, INCREASE THE STATE SALES AND USE TAX RATES FROM 4% TO 6%, CONSTITUTIONALLY DEDICATE FUNDS FOR LOCAL SCHOOLS AND SET A PER-PUPIL FUNDING GUARANTEE.

The proposed constitutional amendment would:

- 1) Limit for each property parcel (excluding new construction) annual assessment increase to 5% or the inflation rate, whichever is less. When property is sold or transferred, adjust assessment according to current market value.
- 2) Reduce maximum school operating taxes to 18 non-voted mills. Permit districts to levy up to 9 additional voted mills.
- 3) Reduce 50-mill maximum property tax limit to 40 mills.
- 4) Increase state sales and use tax rates to 6%. Dedicate this additional revenue and lottery proceeds to schools.
- 5) Establish a minimum state/local per-pupil funding guarantee, annually adjusted for revenue changes. Provide a minimum 3% per-pupil funding increase in 1993-1994.

Should this proposal be adopted?

THE POLLS of said election will be open at 7 o'clock a.m. and will remain open until 8 o'clock p.m. of said day of election.

(From left) Madison McKenzie, Maria Ortez, Cassie Ortez and Ashley McKenzie were among approximately 800 Charlevoix people who didn't let a little cold, wet weather stop them from participating in the 1993 Operation Petunia. Although the weather was cold, the worst of the rain held off until most of the petunias had been planted.

Sure the weather was trashy for the Petunia Picnic. And if we were from New Mexico or some other place where a minor deluge intimidates people, it might have bothered us. But we're from northern Michigan. We're tough. There was no way a little rain was going to mess up our picnic.

Petunia planting proceeds despite wicked weather

By L. Scott Swanson

Although the cooperation from the weather left something to be desired, the 12th annual Operation Petunia went quite well this past Thursday.

Granted, some fair weather petunia planters wimped out in the face of cold weather which was periodically interrupted by driving rain, but there were still approximately 800 people who showed up for the planting.

It was the worst weather in the history of the event according to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB) president Bruce MacArthur. In some cases block captains ended up planting without too much help, but none the less all of the petunias got planted.

Following the planting approximately 600 people showed up in East Park for the Petunia Picnic. Fortunately, the Coast Guard had set up a large tent for the Acacia's change of command ceremony which was to take place Friday morning. The petunia planters all huddled under the tent, stayed dry, pigged out and had a fine time in spite of the rain. One would think that when the Coast Guard brass in Cleveland and Washington D.C. hears that the Acacia managed to save 600 people from drowning without ever leaving the dock that medals may be in order.

MacArthur said the picnickers put away about 1,000 hotdogs from IGA and 800 cookies from Cravings. He mentioned that all the local food stores donated food for the event.

Charlevoix Rotarians prepared the hotdogs. Well, actually only about three Rotarians were involved in cooking the hotdogs at any one time. One Rotarian was unwrapping the hotdogs and two were grilling. The rest of the Rotarians just stood around eating hotdogs, goofing off and having a good time.

At the end of the picnic a boat which had been donated to KCB was auctioned off. The winning bid of $5,100 was submitted by Dennis Priess. Money raised from the auc-

Friends mourn loss of quietly active community member

When Alyce Lesser died this past week, Charlevoix lost a person who had quietly and without fanfare worked in several ways to make the community a better place.

Lesser died May 26 at age 65 following a two-year battle with lymphoma. On the following day, May 27, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB), a group of which Lesser was an original member, held its 12th annual Operation Petunia and declared that the event was to be in honor of Alyce Lesser. Lesser had not only been with KCB since its inception, but was KCB Vice President at the time of her death.

KCB was only one of several things Lesser was involved with. In addition to that, she had also served on the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) board, the Charlevoix School Enrichment Foundation, the Charlevoix Yacht Club Board, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors, and was active in the Little Traverse Nature Conservancy and the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

And as her friends quickly point out, Lesser did all of these things not only effectively, but very quietly.

"She was influential, but she didn't make waves," noted Edith Gilbert.

Gilbert met Lesser when they were both summer-time only residents. Lesser was originally from St. Louis. She began coming to Charlevoix for summers in 1948 with her husband Harry. In 1974, the Lessers decided they wanted to be in Charlevoix year-around and built a home here. After Harry's death in 1979, Alyce remained in Charlevoix, moving to the Lake House condominium.

She had been active in a number of projects in St. Louis during her younger years, but rather than tapering off in Charlevoix, she became more civically active.

"She had a great love for this community and felt it was her responsibility to contribute her time and talents to make it a better place," said Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Jacqueline Merta.

Merta was among several people who commented on Lesser's natural charisma. "She always made people feel really good about being where they were and around her."

Dick Georgi was one of the people who spoke at Lesser's funeral. He had hired her to work in the real estate business. He said she turned out to be a natural. He said that she had an extraordinary gift of being able to make people feel comfortable around her.

"She always made people feel better about themselves," he said.

Georgi introduced Lesser to his wife Cheryl and they became close friends. "She just had a warm heart for everybody. She was very intelligent and had a wide variety of friends," Cheryl Georgi remarked. She noted that in addition to having a sharp mind, Lesser also had an open mind. "She always saw everybody's side."

Nancy Porter, another of Lesser's friends, agreed that Lesser's non-judgmental attitude toward other people was an aspect of her character which really stood out.

"She would say, 'People really try to do the best they can.'"

While Lesser's friends spoke of her as a woman with grace and sophistication, they also are quick to note that she was by no means stuffy. They say she had an acute mind and a warm wit and liked to use both. She was very interested in the stock market, was an excellent golfer who had a hole-in-one on number eight at the Belvedere, also played tennis, played bridge with a local group of men, loved to talk about pro football and was willing to put her money where her mouth was with a bet on a game.

During the final months of her illness, Lesser spent very little time alone. Her family and friends rallied around her. Porter remarked that the support Lesser had from her children and her friends was a great tribute to her and what her life had meant to them.

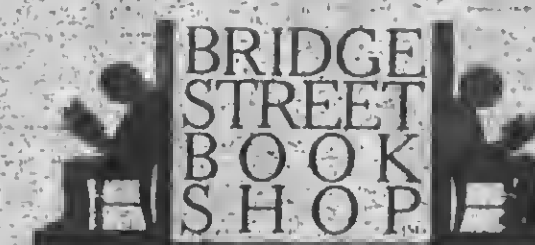

Lesser's funeral was this past Friday. Services were held in Charlevoix with burial in St. Louis.

Alyce Lesser

Alyce L. Lesser, 65, of Charlevoix, died May 26, 1993, at Northern Michigan Hospital.

Her funeral was Friday, May 28, at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum and Rabbi Steven Lowenstein of Temple B'nai Israel in Petoskey officiated. Burial took place Sunday, May 30, at New Mount Sinai Cemetery in St. Louis, Mo.

She was born Sept. 17, 1927, in St. Louis, Mo., the daughter of Aaron and Marguerite (Sullivan).

Levy. She attended Clayton High School in St. Louis and graduated from Faulkner School in Chicago. She then attended Washington University in St. Louis.

She married Harry Lesser Jr. in St. Louis in 1948. The Lessers summered in Charlevoix their entire lives and moved permanently to the area in 1974. Harry died in 1979.

Alyce worked as a real estate broker for several years with Vacation Properties Network.

She was a member of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority; Keep Charlevoix Beautiful; the Antrim/Charlevoix Board of Realtors; Crooked Tree Arts Council; the Little Traverse Conservancy; the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce; and Temple B'nai Israel in Petoskey.

She is survived by three daughters, Laurie Lesser Murray of Berkley, Mich.; Amy Lesser of New York, N.Y.; and Mrs. Steven (Meg) Lesser Roberts of Larchmont, N.Y.; four grandchildren, Emily Alyce Murray, Jessie May Murray, Samuel Lesser Roberts and Charles Lesser Roberts; and one sister, Mrs. Donald (Nelle) Frisch of Grand Rapids.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Rosemary Van Damme

Funeral services for Rosemary Van Damme, a former Charlevoix summer resident, were held at St. Joan of Arc Catholic Church, St. Clair Shores, Michigan on May 24, 1993.

Mrs. Van Damme is survived by one daughter, Mary Vetting (Mrs. Edward) of Charlevoix; four grandchildren, Kathleen Martin Noble (Mrs. Don), Roy, Dennis and James Martin; two great grandchildren, Amy and Margaret Martin.

Interment was at Mount Olivet Cemetery in Detroit.

Vacation Bible school accepting registrations

Whether the weather cooperates or not, summer is going to be declared and with it there will be the annual Community Vacation Bible School. Registration deadline for this year's Vacation Bible School is June 6. The cost is $5 per child or $12 per family. The program is open to children ranging in age from pre-school through fifth grade. The dates for this year's Vacation Bible School will be June 21-24. Vacation Bible School will take place in a tent next to the Charlevoix United Methodist Church on the corner of Clinton and State Streets.

To register or for more information, contact Laurie Cornett at 547-9534.

Charlevoix Memorial Day services included a military salute which was fired over Round Lake in memory of Charlevoix's soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts from Charlevoix troops carried flags in the Memorial Day parade.

Veterans from all major branches of the service participated in the Memorial Day parade and ceremonies.

This flag in Veteran's Memorial Park was lowered and raised in honor of Charlevoix men and women who served their country in times of war.

Children needed for theatre group

Sixty-four actors are needed to cast three plays for the second annual children's theatre festival sponsored by Jordan River Arts Council. Auditions will be held on Wednesday, June 2, at Jordan River Arts Center, 301 N. Main Street, East Jordan.

Elementary and middle school students will audition from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m., and high school students and adults from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. People may audition for more than one play, but should be available for rehearsals five weeks prior to the play and for the run of the production.

Because all plays need actors of various ages, parents are particularly encouraged to audition along with their children to share in a memorable theatrical experience. Children coming to auditions alone should check with their parents about summer vacation schedules and other commitments in order to audition for plays that do not conflict.

All plays are scheduled for performances at East Jordan High School.

The first play, "The Promises and the Wicked Prince," loosely based on a Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale, will be presented at 2 p.m. July 9, 10 and 17 and at 7 p.m. July 16. Actors needed are three men, five women, five boys and eleven girls.

The play was written by Lenore Bechtel, East Jordan playwright of the three plays produced in the 1992 theatre festival. The director is Bellaire's Michael Eddy, who has directed and acted in many plays with both Jordan River Players and Antrim Regional Theatre.

Bechtel will direct the second play, "Baba Yaga," a musical based on several Russian fairy tales and written by Kansas playwright Ric Averill. Performances will be at 2 p.m. July 23, 24 and 31 and 7 p.m. July 30. Actors needed are two men, three women, and sixteen children.

A musical version of "Cinderella" is scheduled for 2 p.m. August 13, 14 and 21 and 7 p.m. August 20. Actors needed are three men, two women, eight boys and five girls.

"Cinderella" was written by Kitty Beletic, a Dallas resident who formerly lived in both Bellaire and Charlevoix. A director is still needed for this play.

In keeping with the tradition established by the arts council and its theatrical arm, Jordan River Players, all three plays are new and unpublished. This summer's production will be the world premiere for "The Promises and the Wicked Prince," and the other two plays have each had only one previous production.

Actors throughout Charlevoix and Antrim counties are welcome to audition. If interest in Antrim County warrants, each play may be scheduled for a production in Bellaire.

Sheriff's Department is investigating traffic fatality

A traffic accident which killed a young East Jordan man early Saturday evening is under investigation by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

Buddy T. Hull of East Jordan was killed in an accident which occurred at 6:40 p.m. at the intersection of Behling and Wilson Roads. Three other people were injured in the accident.

According to a sheriff's department news release, Hull was driving a westbound vehicle and failed to stop for a stop sign at the intersection. A northbound vehicle, driven by Chris Ciszewski, 19, of East Jordan, collided with the driver's side of the Hull vehicle.

Ciszewski was wearing a seat belt. He received a broken collar bone in the accident and was taken to Northern Michigan Hospital where he was treated and released.

Darrell Burt, 27, of East Jordan and Lara Wolanin, 19, of Boyne City were passengers in the Hull vehicle. Occupants of the Hull vehicle were not wearing seat belts. Hull and Wolanin were thrown from the vehicle. Hull did not survive. Wolanin received a broken leg and was taken to Northern Michigan Hospital as was Burt.

According to the sheriff's department news release, alcohol is suspected as being a factor in the Hull vehicle.

The accident was responded to by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, East Jordan City Police, Boyne City Fire Department, Boyne City Ambulance and East Jordan Ambulance.

Local manufacturer hosts Jordanian engineers

MIDWEST International of Charlevoix recently hosted two port engineers from the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan. MIDWEST was the successful bidder for the production of dust control loading equipment for the Ports Corporation of Aqaba, a Jordanian city on the Red Sea.

Yousef Salah and Ibrahim Nawaiseh visited Charlevoix for approximately 10 days. During their stay, they viewed final assembly and containerization of two 2200TPH phosphate ship loaders which will be installed in June at Aqaba. Phosphate is a major ingredient in the blending of fertilizer products.

Aqaba is a resort city, approximately the size of Traverse City, situated in the south of Jordan in the Straits of Aqaba on the Red Sea. Dust has been a major problem during the loading of vessels in this highly sensitive environment. The MIDWEST equipment selected by the port tender committee in Amman in February consisted of two high tech MIDWEST Choke-feeders complete with integral

Students enjoy annual trip to Beaver Island

By Laurie Lounsbury

It's a rite of spring and no amount of rain or cold will stop the Charlevoix third graders from making their annual trek to Beaver Island. Wildly excited students lined up along the Beaver Islander's dock rail and waved goodbye to their parents on the shore below. "You'd think they were going on a month long Caribbean cruise," said Sue Barnard as she waved goodbye to her daughter Karlee.

The three day trip to Beaver Island includes camping and hiking near the south shore light house, a tour of the Mormon Print museum, the Maritime museum, and the Toy Museum.

At the Mormon Print Museum, curator Shirley Gladish gave the children a brief talk on Mormon King James Strang and the island's legendary Dr. Protor, who was actually a non-medical man but donated his services to the islanders for minor medical problems.

At the Toy museum, students were dazzled by owner Mary Scholl's collection of antique metal trucks, wagons, and cars which hung from the ceiling and walls of the cozy building.

The island isn't as small and easy to get around on as people might believe. Apparently one third grade class got lost on their one mile loop hike near the south shore lighthouse. The students and chaperones did find their way out of the woods eventually, and the experience gave them fodder for future tales of their trip to Beaver Island.

Softball team wins twice to bring season record to 18-7

Charlevoix won both games, but it wasn't easy as the Rayders had to rally late in both games against Inland Lakes last week.

In the opening game, Charlevoix trailed 3-1 going into the bottom of the sixth inning, but then exploded for nine runs to take a 10-3 win.

Mary Jane Grunch picked up her first of two wins on the evening with a two-hitter. Her control was impeccable as she struck out 10 while walking none.

For Charlevoix, Liz Grunch had two hits, including a triple; Mary Jane Grunch had two hits while Melissa Cox, Angela Buday, Christy Kaczynski, Amy Spang, Christy Siwarga and Aprilie Fisher each had singles.

In the second game Charlevoix led 3-1 before giving up two runs in the top of the sixth inning. The Rayders won the game on a manufactured run in the bottom of the seventh inning. Freshman Sarah Thorp was safe on a leadoff error, went to second on a passed ball and scored on a single by Cox.

Mary Jane Grunch got her second win of the day. In game two she gave up seven hits, struck out three and again made Inland Lakes earn every base they got as she gave up no walks.

Melissa Cox lead the Rayders in hitting with three hits. Amy Spang had two while Kristy Kaczynski and Angela Buday each had one.

Charlevoix now has a few days off. In their next game they will be hosting the Class C District Tournament.

Baseball team splits pair with Inland Lakes

Charlevoix's baseball team lost the first game 9-3 and then regained some respect in the second game with a 19-0 thrashing of visiting Inland Lakes May 26.

In the opening game, Charlevoix got behind early and never got a rally going that was substantial enough to get back in the game. Jody McGlinch pitched the first 2 and a third innings and got the loss. David Skeel came in and pitched scoreless relief the rest of the way, but the hole the Rayders were in was too deep.

Offensively, McGlinch had a home run and a single, Skeel had a home run and Josh Watros and Bill Dreyer each had singles.

In the second game, Brandon Webb pitched a two-hit shutout while his teammates held a bashfest at the plate.

Don Jess doubled and tripled. David Skeel had two doubles and two singles. Jeremy Boss had two singles while Jody McGlinch, Nick Himebauch, Jesse Beatty and John Hess each had singles.

The split brought the Rayders' season record to 6-16.

SPORTS

Rayders take both boys and girls league track titles

Despite a couple of foul-ups in the boys' relays, Charlevoix's boys and girls track teams both won league titles in East Jordan May 26.

The Rayder boys team totaled 150 points. Mancelona placed second with 103 points followed by Boyne City with 102 points. Traverse City St. Francis, Harbor Springs, Elk Rapids and East Jordan rounded out the field.

The Rayder girls team scored 142 points followed by East Jordan with 111.5 and Elk Rapids with 87. Mancelona, Harbor Springs, Boyne City and Traverse City St. Francis completed the field.

The two relays which went awry were the 800 meter and the 400 meter. In the 800 meter a handoff between Keith Carey and Jason VanLoo went out of the exchange zone resulting in a disqualification. In the 400 meter relay, VanLoo threw the baton down in disgust after a disappointing finish and the Rayder relay team was disqualified.

Charlevoix made up for the relay disappointments in the middle distance and distance races. Matt Smith won the 800 and 1600 meter races and ran a leg in the winning 1600 relay team.

Charlevoix's other wins came from: VanLoo in the 100 meter; Mike Bush in the 3200; and Ryan Smith in the pole vault.

In the girls meet Charlevoix's Sheila Siegwart won both the 100 and 300 hurdles as well as running a leg on the winning 1600 relay team. Nicole Moore, a junior, won the 400 meter race. Carrie Wakulat placed first in the discus while Amy Parrish took first in the shot put.

Complete Rayder results for the two meets were as follows:

Boys meet:

3200 relay: Charlevoix, second.

Girls meet:

3200 relay: Conlan, Scott, Keem Schairbaum, first.

100 hurdles: Siegwart, first; Doan, fifth.

100 meters: Moore, fourth.

Long jump: Doan, second; Cross, fifth.

1600 run: Rowell, fourth; Keem, fifth.

400 relay: Charlevoix, fifth.

400 dash: Moore, first.

300 hurdles: Siegwart, first; Doan, second.

800 meters: Keem, second.

Shot put: Parrish, first; Wakulat, third.

200 meters: Livingston, second.

3200 meters: Chamberlain, fourth; Holm, fifth.

1600 relay: Moore, Keem, Sidg-wart, Livingston, first.

Sea lamprey battle continues

The continuing battle against sea lampreys by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Service) soon will come to several streams in the local area, according to Dennis Lavis, Station Supervisor of Sea Lamprey Control at the Service's Ludington Biological Station.

A first step to control sea lampreys is to survey tributaries of the Great Lakes to determine the presence of lamprey larvae. Sea lamprey larvae live in stream bottoms for several years before they become parasitic to feed on fish in the Great Lakes. Fishery biologists and technicians conduct surveys for sea lamprey larvae in more than 200 streams annually in the Great Lakes. Most surveys are made with backpack electrofishing gear, but in deep or cloudy waters, crews use a lampicide known as Bayer 73. Since the mid-1960's Bayer 73 has been used as a survey tool for larvae. The compound is coated onto sand granules, sprayed over a small area of water where it sinks to the stream bottom, and causes the larvae to leave their burrows. Bayer 73 is nontoxic to humans, pets, livestock, mammals and birds. Surveys with Bayer 73 are scheduled in 1993 for the Horton and Porter creeks, the Jordan River, the Boyne River including the harbor, and three streams on Beaver Island, all in Charlevoix County.

The biologists and technicians are certified by the Michigan Department of Agriculture in the safe use of aquatic pesticides. The Michigan Water Resources Commission requires the Service to notify state fish and wildlife agencies, public health officials, and the media prior to the use of Bayer 73 surveys.

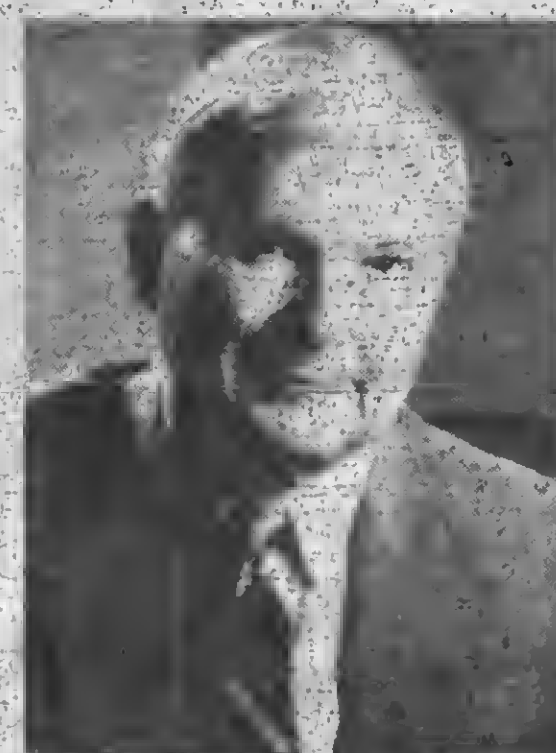

Names in business

Charlie Elzinga of Charlevoix, local agent for Farm Bureau Insurance, has received the 1993 Seal of Excellence for the high quality of his insurance sales and service.

Elzinga earned the Seal of Excellence in farmowners insurance. The award grants him special underwriting authority and other privileges to expedite service to his clients.

The award is presented annually to selected Farm Bureau Insurance agents in Michigan, based on the superior quality of their business and overall sales excellence.

In another awards presentation, Elzinga was honored for being among the company's top producers of 1992. Elzinga was third high-

MIDWEST arranged for the Jordanian engineers to stay at the Edgewater Inn and a luncheon catered by Dave Phillips and staff was held at the MIDWEST plant prior to their departure. Both visitors used their free days to roam and explore northern Michigan and commented on the beauty of the area. MIDWEST also provided a side trip to Niagara Falls. A plane flight was arranged which offered the visitors a chance to see Niagara Falls from the air as well as the Mackinaw Bridge and Mackinac Island, on the return flight.

The Jordanian project is one of many international projects MIDWEST has completed. MIDWEST, which has been based in Charlevoix since 1974, has conducted business in almost 50 countries on six continents.

1993 academic top ten to pursue diverse goals

Following are brief biographical sketches of the top 10 graduates by grade point in the 1993 senior class:

Nancy MacAlastair Dammanji (valedictorian) 4.0: Nancy is the daughter of Thomas and Sara Gay Damman. She plans to attend Harvard Radcliffe University. Dammanji says that currently she has no set major, but is interested in international relations, foreign studies, foreign languages, peace studies, fine arts "and just about everything else." In terms of nonacademic activities while at Harvard, Dammanji wants to participate in studio art and sailing.

Dammanji's high school honors and activities include: National Merit Finalist; Detroit Free Press honorable mention Academic All State Team; John S. Knight debate qualifier; Debate, Drama and Individual Event awards; Cross Country; Track; Skiing; Volleyball; Tennis; Student Council; National Honor Society; Teaching mentally impaired students; sailing.

Janel Ann Campbell (salutatorian) 3.993: Janel is the daughter of Kay and Larry Campbell. She plans to attend the University of Notre Dame. She has yet to decide on an academic major.

Campbell's high school honors and activities include: Excellence in chemistry; Honors Marching Squad; Excellence in Spanish Speaking; TV 7&4 scholar of the week; eight semesters on the honor roll; academic letter; band letter; Division I rating at State Solo Ensemble Band Festival; Spanish Club; Youth Group; National Honor Society; Symphonic Band; Marching Band; Community Youth Orchestra; Solo Ensemble Festival; Honors Band.

Eric Dickinson 3.924: Eric is the son of David and Karen Dickinson. He plans to study civil engineering at the University of Michigan. Dickinson's high school honors and activities include: Honor Roll; Academic letter; U of M Regents Alumni Scholarship; Band letter; Cross country letter; Track; Intramural basketball; Band; National Honor Society; Spanish Club; Pan memorial Baptist Church Youth Group; Spanish trip.

Maria Helene Seaman 3.913: Maria is the daughter of Mary and Maurice Seaman. She plans to attend Hope College with her studies related to the composition and production of her own music. Seaman's high school honors and activities include: Academic Achievement awards; Division I ratings at State Band Festivals; Performing Arts; Solo Ensemble first place modals; Hope College freshman music prize; Michigan Competitive Scholarship; Alumni Academic Award; Performing Arts; Concert and marching band; French Club; National Honor Society; Petoskey Ballet Theatre; Little Traverse Choral Society; Track and cross country; Flag Corps.

Anne Christina Schairbaum 3.903: Anne is the daughter of Philip and Virginia Schairbaum. She plans to attend Hope College. Although she currently isn't sure what her major will be, she plans to explore interest in social work, business and law. Schairbaum's high school honors and activities include: seven varsity athletic letters; an academic letter; Del Terrill Spirit Award; Zonta Women in Public Affairs Award; Charlevoix Band Service Award; Endowed Scholar Award from Hope College; Marching Band drum major; volleyball; cross country and track; National Honor Society; Debate and Drama; Honors Band; volunteer work at Club 77, Boulder Park Terrace and Charlevoix Soup Kitchen; Church Youth Group.

Russell Lee Hand 3.833: Russell is the son of Millard and Marion Hand. He plans on attending Anderson University and initially studying either English or History prior to majoring in some field of psychology. Hand's high school honors and activities include: Academic letter and pin; Band Letter; Letter in Cross Country; Honors Band; Distinguished Student Scholarship from Anderson University; National Honor Society; Band Council; Band; Spanish Club; City Band; Food Pantry helper; 4-H; Church youth group.

Megan Erin Friedly 3.778: Megan is the daughter of John and Pam Friedly. She plans to attend the University of Michigan and spend her first two years in a liberal arts college prior to switching into a biology/pre-med program with a major in psychology or communications. Friedly's high school honors and involvements include: Academic award for grade point average of 3.5 or better; Academic letter; Alma College Presidential Scholarship; Honor Roll; National Honor Society; Class officer; Student Council; Basketball; Tennis; Cross Country; Cross Country Skiing; Soccer; French Club.

Angelina Maria Doan 3.762: Angelina is the daughter of Timothy and Tricia Doan. She plans to attend Hope College to major in engineering and biology. She would also like to minor in Spanish. Doan's high school honors and involvements include: Academic letter; All-State Academic recognition; several awards for softball and volleyball; National Honor Society; Class officer; Spanish Club; Marching and Pep bands; Homecoming committee; Prom committee; Band officer; Tutor; Basketball; Church youth group; helped coach summer youth girls' softball team.

Matt Smith 3.736: Matt is the son of David and Candy Smith. He plans to attend Brown University where he intends to major in computer science and run cross country and track. Water tower decision postponed again

By L. Scott Swanson

Charlevoix's old water tower is still standing and the decision as to what will become of it is still hanging.

A decision as to what will become of the water tower is one aspect of a much larger proposal to upgrade city owned waterfront property from the water tower along the channel to Lake Michigan and down the shoreline between Lake Michigan and Park Avenue to approximately the end of Lake Street. The project carries an estimated price tag of between $490,000 and $565,000. The city is hoping to get a state grant to pay up to 75 percent of that cost. The city's share of the cost, if a grant is approved, would be between $122,600 and $190,400.

Tearing down or restoring the old water tower near the channel is one aspect of the project. Tearing down the water tower has an estimated price tag of $50,000 which City Manager Mike Wiesner says may be a little high. Restoring the water tower has a price tag of $125,000 which Wiesner says he feels may be a bit low.

In the process of reviewing the grant application, the state wants to know by July 1 which way the city wants to go on the water tower.

During Monday evening's meeting, the city council hosted a public hearing on the park plans, including the water tower. Annie Mosher, who lives near the water tower, felt that a public notice printed in Friday's Petoskey News-Review was insufficient and that more public notice should have

These ladies were among the original volunteers when the Rainbow Shoppe opened in 1983. The shop is celebrating its tenth anniversary this week. The Rainbow Shoppe now has nearly 200 volunteers, 16,000 feet of floor space and sales of approximately $100,000 a year.

Rainbow Shoppe celebrates a decade of community service

By L. Scott Swanson

When it opened on June 7, 1983 the Rainbow Shoppe of Charlevoix wasn't much. It was a retail shop with only about 1,200 feet of floor space. Display racks were made of two by fours hammered together by some local men. Ten local churches had each kicked in $150 to provide the shop with $1,500 in seed money. Some local businesses initially were a bit leery, wondering if the resale shop was going to have a detrimental effect on the local business community.

At the end of the day June 7, 1983 the Rainbow Shoppe added up receipts and found that total sales of the shop amounted to $49.75. It wasn't much, but it was a start.

Monday, June 7, 1993 the Rainbow Shoppe celebrated its tenth anniversary. The store now has 16,000 feet of floor space. Merchandise is separated into more than half a dozen different departments spread across three different floors. The Shoppe's total sales figure since its inception recently surpassed half a million dollars. Local churches continue to support the shop and it also now enjoys widespread support from Charlevoix businesses.

The idea for a Charlevoix resale shop was brought before the Charlevoix Ministerial Association in the early 1980s by Cheryl Wilde, a young lady who had seen a similar shop work in Hamtramck. The concept behind the shop was to provide clean used clothing, footwear and household items at nominal prices.

The Ministerial Association took up the idea and with the help of some volunteers the ball was soon rolling. Local attorney Roy Hayes volunteered to help draw up the by-laws of the organization to give the shop a good foundation and sense of direction. Initially, the shop was to be located at the former Assembly of God Church, (now the home of the East Upright Church of God), but that plan fell through and the shop ended up on Antrim Street in the building presently occupied by Howard's Optical Shop.

One of the big hurdles in getting the shop up and running was finding the right person to manage the business. Just prior to the opening of the Rainbow Shoppe, Joe Spurgeon had retired after 23 years in retail promotions. Spurgeon wasn't even sure how enthused he was about tackling the project. Prior to interviewing for the job, he didn't even submit a resume. Rev. Dave Yingling got a copy of Spurgeon's resume from Spurgeon's wife and submitted it to the interview board. The interviewing committee chose Spurgeon over a field of several applicants.

Although Spurgeon might not have been exactly sure of what he was getting into, he jumped in and went to work.

"I enjoy it. It's a different kind of retail," he explained.

After 10 years, Spurgeon is the

Bob Gill said that unless the tower could be restored in a cost-effective manner for active duty, then it should be torn down. He said the tower's design appears to have been utilitarian and nothing exceptional. He added that the only reason for preserving it would be for the sake of nostalgia and he questioned whether that can be justified, given the cost of several thousand dollars.

Bob Hoffman spoke of saving and restoring the tower. He said State Senator George MacManus and U.S. Senator Carl Levin have been contacted about the possibility of acquiring grants for historic preservation. He said that granted preserving the tower would be a matter of nostalgia, but that's what historic preservation is about. Hoffman asked the council to table the decision at least until their June 21 meeting. The council agreed to do that.

Car rolls down channel embankment

A 1989 Ford Escort took a wild, driverless ride Saturday afternoon and nearly ended up in the Pine River Channel.

Jennifer Reaume, 18, of Charlevoix had parked the car near Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant on Pine River Lane. After she got out of the car, it slipped into neutral and rolled over the edge and down the hill toward the channel. According to City Police Chief Dennis Halverson the car scraped under the branch of a willow tree, causing it to lose some momentum. At the bottom of the embankment, it dropped over a small cement wall also slowing it to some degree. Finally the car hit the guard rail at the side of the channel. Although the rail bowed, it held and the car didn't end up in the channel.

Halverson and City Manager Mike Wiesner said the city plans to put in a gutter and curb along the top edge of the embankment either this fall or next spring. The curb may be slightly higher than the normal curb to keep cars from jumping it and going down the embankment. As a temporary measure, the four by four posts currently along the embankment will be reinforced.

FAMILY

Bartlett 50th

Bruce K. and Leona (Struthers) Bartlett of Charlevoix recently celebrated their 50th anniversary. They were married May 9, 1943 in the Charlevoix Community Church of God.

The couple celebrated their anniversary at an open house given for them by their family in Sarasota, Florida. The Bartletts have lived in Charlevoix for most of the past 50 years with the exception of World War II.

Their children and grandchildren are: Bruce Bartlett Jr. his wife Sue and their son Nate of Charlevoix; Debra Ann Bartlett and son Michael Diloon of Sarasota, Florida; Diana Lynn Andersen and her daughter, Tiffany Marie of Sarasota, Florida; daughter Dawn Phelan and her husband Matthew Phelan of Albany, New York.

Each year the high school National Honor Society is required to participate in at least one service project. This year, in addition to helping with the food pantry, the society decided to raise money for a $700 competitive scholarship. CHS seniors with a GPA of 3.0 or better were eligible. Applicants were required to submit two recommendations (one from outside the school), answer two short essay questions, and develop a 500 (maximum) word essay on the topic: If you could change one thing about the world, what would it be and why? Judges for the competition were Dr. Dave Norton, Pat Kenney, Pat Ranger, Roger Gowell, and Betty Henne.

Brad DeGrow was selected as the scholarship winner.

obituaries

Michael J. Reinhart

Michael J. Reinhart, 39, of Charlevoix, died June 1, 1993, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

His funeral was held Friday, June 4, at the Community Church of God. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton officiated. Burial was in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

He was born March 26, 1954, in Detroit, the son of Bruce E. and Goldie I. (Peters) Reinhart. He was raised in the Detroit area and graduated from Chadsey High School in Detroit.

He moved to Charlevoix in 1971, and had been employed by the city of Charlevoix for the past 19 years. For the past 17 years, he worked at the Charlevoix water plant and for past eight years was the water plant superintendent.

Mr. Reinhart was very active in sports and enjoyed baseball, golf, basketball, football and fishing. He coached flag football for 11 years and Charlevoix City League Youth Softball. He was also umpire and scorekeeper at the Charlevoix City Ballfield.

He married Patty Cameron in Charlevoix on Dec. 10, 1976.

Survivors include his wife, Patty of Charlevoix; two sons, Bruce E. of Charlevoix, and Scott P. of Floral City, Fla.; four brothers, Larry "Stosh" of Florida, Jerry of California; David of North Carolina, and Richard of Detroit; four sisters, Carol Usede of California, Mrs. Alfred (Annette) O'Neil of Berkeley, Mich., Mrs. John (Natalie) Bykaylo of Hazel Park, and Mrs. Larry (Marilyn) Fink of Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Bruce E. Reinhart College Trust. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Aaron "Ernie" Brock

Aaron "Ernie" Brock, 78, of Charlevoix, died June 6, 1993 in Jenison.

Funeral will be 1 p.m. Wednesday, June 9, at the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix with the Rev. Larry Grooters officiating. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery.

He was born Aug. 5, 1914, in Norwood Township, the son of Frank and Libbie (Poter) Brock.

On Sept. 1, 1941, he married Lulla Mitchell in Charlevoix. Mr. Brock worked for Ford Motor Co. in Dearborn for many years. He decided the farm would be a better place to raise a family and moved to the farm near Ironton.

Mr. Brock was a member of the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix, the Barnard Grange, and the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau. He was a past board member of the Michigan Milk Producers Association and of the Charlevoix Co-op Board.

Survivors include his wife, Lulla; three sons, Ralph and his wife Mary (Spoelstra) of Daggett, Mich., Peter and his wife Cynthia (Safford) of Rapid River, and Aaron L. and his wife Cheryl (Miller) of East Jordan; one daughter, Dagmar Muma and her husband Richard of Jenison; 18 grandchildren; one

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

In response to so many kind requests for copies of Sunday's graduation poem, I am reprinting it for you this week. I am glad that you found it to be a beacon of blessing.

To The Charlevoix Class of 1993

Twenty five years ago I sat where you are
The world seemed laid out before me
We all knew we could go far
Hold on to the dreams before you
Yes, reach out for your special star
But never forget where you came from
And those who helped you be who you are.

From your first steps in kindergarten to your third grade camping trip
The K-5 teachers really loved you and would never let you slip
You moved to the world of Middle School.

Under Mr. Van Guilder's watchful eye
Surviving Mr. Green's Michigan History class
Made you feel like you could fly
Add in your first school dances and deciding dating could be fun
You were ready for the leap to high school and hit the ground on the run.

Marching band with Mr. I.
what a delightful treat
It took awhile to get used to it oh my aching feet!
There were football games with Coach Gowell and crew
Basketball with Coach Kanine
Don't forget our runners
Didn't Matt Smith do fine?

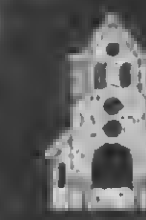

And though you did the work yourselves
We cannot forget your supporting team
Your parents were always there for you
You're the ones that make their hearts beam.

Summer jobs at Dairy Queen, Parkside and more
Helped you save for special times like Prom, Homecoming and the Seven Eleven Store.
There were late nights out for P.A.
Practices by the score
But it was always so exciting to have you come home to the fire sirens roar!

I'd like to see you all twenty five years from now
I hope you're as proud of your kids as we are of you
I hope the careers you have chosen will make you happy too
These words of welcome, blessing, and encouragement, come from me and my boss - we're proud of you!
And even though I can't say his name
He owns the cattle on 10,000 hills
Put your faith and trust in Him and you will make it safely through Greetings to the class of 1993 from me and you know WHO!

Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament in its ninth year

Hundreds of trout fishermen will take to Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan this weekend to compete in the Ninth Annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament. The tournament will officially begin at 5 a.m. Friday, June 11 and last until noon, Sunday, June 13.

Fishermen will compete in four divisions: brown trout, steelhead, lake trout, and salmon. Cash prizes will be awarded to the top 15 fish by weight in each division. First prize is a trophy and $1,000. Other prizes are $500, $200, $100, $75, for second through fifth places, $50 for sixth through tenth places, and $25 for eleventh through fifteenth places. Additional prizes include: having the largest fish of the tournament mounted by Jeff Lutz of Lasting Memories taxidermy; a special trophy if the largest fish is caught on a stinger lure; the Rex Blanchard Memorial Trophy for the largest lake trout; and a port prize for the largest entry brought in each day.

Last year's winners by division were: steelhead, Joe Kulisz, 15.1 lbs.; brown trout, Al Shindorf, 11.15 lbs.; salmon, Larry Drost, 8.15 lbs.; lake trout, Jeff Ferris, 15.6 lbs.

Fishermen may register at the tournament headquarters in the bandshell in East Park at the following times: June 8, noon to 6 p.m.; June 9-10, noon to 8 p.m. The registration fee is $20 for adults and $5 for young fishermen ages six to 14.

Events taking place in East Park in conjunction with the tournament include a kids' fish pond, awards ceremony, grand prize drawing and sponsor displays.

Sponsors for the 1993 Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament are: Nanny's Motel Restaurant and Lounge; Bellinger Marine Service; Crown Motors Limited; Consumers Power; Advance Tackle/Stinger Spoons; Comer Wholesale Sports; Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau; and Glen's Markets.

Smith wins 1600 meter race

Matt Smith concluded his high school running career on a high note Saturday, winning the State Class C title in the 1600 meter race and anchoring a 3200-meter relay team which defended its state title. As a team the Rayders placed fifth in the Class C State Finals which were hosted by Byron Center.

Smith won the 1600 meter race with a time of 4:23.54 for his first individual state championship. In the 3200 meter relay, Smith combined with Jake Porath, Mike Bush and Matt Dickinson to run a 8:08.51. Upon receiving the baton for the final leg of the race Smith had two runners ahead of him. He reeled 'em in, ate 'em up, spit 'em out. His split for the race was 1:56.5.

Bush, a sophomore, also took an individual medal in the race. He took nine seconds off his previous personal best time in 3200 meter race and finished sixth with a time of 9:46.9.

Charlevoix's 800 meter team of Jason Frabis, Keith Carey, Denny Jinsky and Jason VanLoe placed seventh with a time of 1:33.78. The Rayders' 1600 team just missed a medal. Carey ran a smokin' 51 second split in the race.

Charlevoix also had several girls qualify for the State Finals race, but the girls were able to bring home only one medal. The 1600 meter relay team made up of Nicole Moore, Michelle Keem, Jamie Doan and Aimee Livingston placed sixth with a time of 4:14.2. Livingston and Keem are seniors. Moore and Doan are juniors.

Mary Jane Grunch pitched two games in the Rayders' district effort Saturday. Charlevoix won the first game, but lost to Elk Rapids 4-3 in the District Finals.

Softball team falls a run short

After taking a 3-1 lead in the top of the sixth inning, the Charlevoix high school softball team gave up three runs in the bottom of the inning to lose the district softball title 4-3 to Elk Rapids. Charlevoix got the tying run to third base with one out in the top of the seventh inning.

Earlier in the day the Rayders beat Boyne City 14-4 to advance to the District finals.

Mary Jane Grunch pitched both games for the Rayders. In the Boyne City game she struck out five, walked five and allowed four hits.

Several Rayders had hits in the game, led by two triples from Liz Grunch and two singles from Angelina Doan.

In the second game, Grunch struck out five, walked four and granted two hits.

Charlevoix had only three hits. Kristy Kaczynski, Sara Thorp and Doan each singled for Charlevoix.

Charlevoix finished its season with a 19-8 record and a league title.

Baseball team loses 5-0

Charlevoix's bid for a district baseball tournament title came to an end in the first game of the tournament Saturday with a 5-0 loss to Boyne City. Boyne City then lost in the tournament finals to Elk Rapids which had beaten East Jordan earlier in the day. Charlevoix hosted the tournament.

Hitting, or more specifically a lack of hitting, was the problem for the Rayders in the loss to Boyne City. Charlevoix mustered just four hits: two singles by Don Jess and lone singles by Brandon Webb and Bill Dreyer.

Jess took the pitching loss, giving up four hits while striking out four and walking three.

Summer basketball camps for boys will begin June 14

The sixth annual Charlevoix summer basketball camps for boys in the fourth through tenth grades will begin June 14. (Grade classifications are based on the 1993-94 school year.)

The camps are led by Charlevoix varsity basketball coach Jim Kanine and junior varsity basketball coach Todd Klinger. All camps take place at the high school gym and emphasize basketball fundamentals.

Participants may register in advance or on the first day of camp. A permission slip and a consent for emergency treatment form must be signed by a parent or guardian. A physical examination is optional.

The cost of the camp is $35 for player. Checks should be made out to the Charlevoix Basketball Program.

The schedule for the camps is as follows:

June 14-18, grades 4, 5 and 6, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

June 28-July 2, grades 7 and 8, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

June 28-July 2, grades 9 and 10, 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

For additional information, phone Kanine at either 547-3206 or 547-9495.

Liz Grunch smiles as she waits for the pitch in Saturday's District Finals. Charlevoix led 3-1 in the top of the sixth inning, but gave up three runs in the bottom of the inning and ended up losing 4-3 to Elk Rapids.

Mike Reinhart fund initiated for scoreboard at softball field

A fund has been initiated to collect money to purchase a new softball field scoreboard in memory of Mike Reinhart. Reinhart died June 1 at age 39. Reinhart was a familiar face at the Charlevoix softball fields and during the past 20 years helped out the community recreation department in a number of ways. He enjoyed playing baseball, golf, basketball, football and fishing. He coached flag football for 11 years and youth league softball. He also umpired, announced and served as scorekeeper for city league softball games.

The current scoreboard at the main softball field is a small scoreboard in right field. The purchase of a new and larger scoreboard will allow the small scoreboard to be moved to the small softball field. The larger scoreboard will be placed at the main field, beyond the centerfield fence.

City Recreation Department Director Ike Boss estimated the new scoreboard will cost approximately $3,000. If possible, he would like to have the new board in place and ready for a dedication ceremony by mid summer.

Contributions may be made to the City Recreation Department in care of the Mike Reinhart scoreboard fund. For additional information, phone the City Recreation Department at 547-3253.

in Veterans' Park: First ward City Council candidate Bob Timms asked why a monument and flag had been moved by City employees. Wiesner said it had been moved at the request of local veterans. Timms said that although it is a small matter, he questioned whether city taxpayer's money should have been used to move the monument from its prior location, near the street.

Visitors from Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin: Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Jacqueline Merta informed the council that a group of business people from Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin recently visited Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Petoskey. She said the group visited the three communities because they felt the three communities are progressive and they wanted to benefit from their knowledge in an effort to improve Sturgeon Bay.

Ruts on the Municipal Golf Course: Second ward resident Billie Smith alleged that trucks working on a landscaping or remodeling project on a homeowner near the golf course had caused ruts on one of the course's fairways. Felter said the council will have Wiesner look into the matter.

MDOT engineer hears bridge railing complaints

By Laurie Lounsbury

Bridge rail designs from Lansing seem to have slipped through the cracks - a fate that Charlevoix residents don't want young children to meet with when leaning over the new railing. "We blew it," said Tom Coleman, Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) district engineer last week. He and construction field engineer John Bramer made a trip to Charlevoix to hear citizen opinions about the bridge railing. Their trip was not wasted - the two men got an earful of input on the bridge railing's safety and aesthetic shortcomings.

Coleman opened the meeting with an explanation of why MDOT chose the railing that currently stands covered with orange snowfencing on the west side of the bridge. He explained the need for the railing to meet crash specifications, satisfy static load requirements, provide a view of the water, and be light enough for the bascule counter weight system to be able to lift it when the bridge goes up. "We went with the best strong railing that will meet all the categories," Coleman said. Townspeople at the meeting weren't satisfied with Coleman's explanation. "You've spent four to five million dollars on this (bridge project) and we get a Sears and Roebuck type railing," said Jeff Porter. "I think it's time you listened to the people and correct this mistake."

Edith Gilbert didn't hesitate to express her displeasure over the railing. "We're talking about building a new decorative railing. We'd like to remove that one and design a new one," she said to Coleman.

Coleman discussed the options available to Charlevoix. The I.S.T.E.A. act, a federal road funding program, has funds available for enhancement activities. Beautifying the railing would qualify for those funds, provided Charlevoix comes up with 20 percent of the project cost in matching funds.

Building an entirely new railing would require extensive crash and safety testing which would be costly. Porter acknowledged that adding something decorative to the existing railing is the most feasible solution. The city could apply for funding through I.S.T.E.A. and come up with matching funds, or they could fund the improvements alone with a permit from the state. City manager Mike Wiesner pointed out that if the town chooses to improve the railing with state funds, then they are obligated to wait for the improvements to be made on MDOT's schedule, and that matching state funds could end up costing as much as making the improvements with stand-alone funding. "It might be cheaper and more timely to do this on our own," Wiesner said.

Gilbert repeatedly questioned the safety of the existing railing. Bramer and Coleman said that intermediate horizontal railings will be installed by June 10. Gilbert said that putting in more horizontal railings will just create a stepladder for children to climb. She said she prefers to keep the orange snowfencing on the railing until a permanent solution is devised. Porter and Violet Dinwiddie agreed, saying it would be foolish to spend money on intermediate railings if they would have to be removed at a future date for a more decorative design. "If we're going to solve the problem, it ought to be solved the first time," Porter said. Gilbert worried about the likelihood of a temporary solution becoming a permanent one. "If you put that up as a temporary solution, it will never come down, believe me," she said. "Tom will hope this will all die down and go away," she added.

Coleman indicated that he feels compelled to do something to address the safety issue immediately. "We're putting those intermediate railings in no matter what," he told the group.

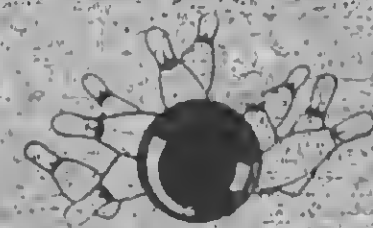

Boulder Park Terrace celebrates first year

Tuesday, June 1, Boulder Park Terrace Skilled Nursing and Assisted Living Center celebrated its first anniversary with a barbecue for residents and staff. Jim Perricone, Vice-President of Northern Michigan Hospital and Ralph McRae of Charlevoix were on hand for the celebration.

In its first year of operation, the skilled nursing and assisted living center admitted 188 residents and, through its rehabilitation program, sent 120 people home. Executive director Deb Saur commended the staff for their hard work and dedication.

Boulder Park Terrace is a non-profit cooperative program of Northern Michigan Hospital and Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Charlevoix school election to take place Monday, June 14

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, June 9, 1993 - PAGE 23

Charlevoix school district voters will fill two school board seats and vote on a 16.55 mill property tax proposal Monday, June 14. Voting will take place at the Charlevoix Elementary School on Division Street.

Four candidates will be competing to fill the two school board seats. Incumbents Max Novak and Mary Lee Campbell are being challenged by Norm Probert and Joan Buday. The seats will go to the top two vote recipients.

The four candidates filled out questionnaires from the Charlevoix Courier and on June 8, participated in a candidate forum sponsored by the Charlevoix Schools Ambassadors group.

Following is a synopsis of the candidate responses to the questionnaire:

Mary Lee Campbell - Campbell, 46, has been on the school board since earlier this year. She was appointed to fill out the term of Doris Pearl who resigned after being elected to the Norwood Township board. Campbell formerly worked as a speech pathologist although in recent years she has not been employed. Her husband is John. She has five children: Katherine, Elizabeth, Carolyn, Ann and Jonathan.

Campbell says her goals as a school board member are those which the board has established. Those are: encouraging improved academic achievement and higher expectations; implement strategic planning; insure that the learning atmosphere enhances positive self esteem; encourage parental involvement in the educational process; encourage business and community involvement; improve communication. She said she is especially interested in curriculum development to meet the needs of all of the students.

As an area of the school system she would like to see improved, Campbell cited community/school relationships. She would like to see open and honest communication resulting in people working together for the common good of the educational process. "The more involved people are, the more they feel they belong to the system," she said.

As a strength of the Charlevoix school system, Campbell said she is especially pleased with the schools curriculum work which has resulted in aligning the curriculum to meet state mandates and eliminating gaps in the educational system.

Norm Probert - Probert, 55, is retiring this week after 23 years as a physical education teacher in the Charlevoix School System. He will continue to work as a stone mason. Probert and his wife Judy have a son, Gary and a daughter, Terri Hodge. They also have four grandchildren.

Three of Probert's goals as a board member would be: keeping an eye on finances; keeping communication lines open; and improving the educational environment for staff members.

Probert sees the lack of vocational programs as a weakness of the Charlevoix School System. As a strength, he cited the many extracurricular activities and dedicated professionals who work with local students and encourage excellence in education.

Max Novak - Novak, 82, is a retired teacher and principal. He has three daughters and two sons. Four of his children are teachers in downstate school systems. Novak's top three goals as a board member are: development and implementation of the core curriculum; higher expectations for students and staff; improving students' self esteem.

As a weakness of the school system, he cited a need for more vocational or occupational education. As a strength, he said that Charlevoix students are well prepared for college.

Joan Buday - Buday, 58, is a homemaker and also does secretarial and accounting work. She is married to Edward Buday Sr. They have 10 children and eight grandchildren.

As primary goals for the school system, Buday would like to see improvements in the middle school so that students have more activities after school and during free periods. She would like to see greater utilization of volunteers from the community, particularly retirees. Buday would like to see a range of activities beyond athletics, since not all students are athletes. She would like to see the school have an auditorium. Buday also noted that she wants to see continued implementation of the curriculum improvements and is excited about the addition of a seventh hour at the high school.

As a school system weakness, she cited the middle school. "I feel, personally, we lose or keep the student interest at this age."

As a school strength, Buday listed: "The students; their enthusiasm, energy and talents."

Buday's and Novak's names will appear on the election ballot. Due to petition filing problems, Probert's and Campbell's names are not on the ballot, but they are running as write-in candidates. In order to vote for a write-in candidate, a voter must write in the office title, which in this case would be "School board member" and the name of the candidate they wish to vote for on the inside flap of the secrecy envelope.

Voters reject millage proposal by 16 votes

Buday and Campbell elected to school board

Charlevoix school district voters turned down a school millage proposal Monday by 16 votes: 637 to 621. The proposal sought 16.55 mills for school operations. The proposal was about a half mill decrease from last year, but due to increased property values and new construction represented a 14.5 percent revenue increase. (A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of assessed property value.)

The school board was scheduled to meet Tuesday evening to begin evaluating what to do following the millage defeat. Tuesday morning, school superintendent Roberta Jackson said she anticipates the board will be back before voters with a millage proposal in August.

Joan Buday and Mary Lee Campbell were elected to fill two school board seats. Buday, running for the first time, received 819 votes. Campbell, an incumbent running a write-in campaign, received 697 votes. Long-time school board president Max Novak fell short in his re-election bid, picking up 472 votes. Norm Probert's write-in campaign fell short as he received fewer than 100 votes.

For the Char-Em Intermediate school district, a 1.16-mill renewal request for special education passed 3,728 to 3,433. Incumbent board member Mary Jagon was elected to a one-year term and Jean Roberts and Bill Sherman were elected to six-year terms.

City police become EMT certified

By L. Scott Swanson

In the trunk of a Charlevoix City Police Department patrol car, there is a teddy bear and some other stuff. For situations involving a distraught child, the teddy bear comes in handy. But if you're seriously injured or ill and a police officer is the first emergency person on the scene, it'd probably be best if that officer was able to do something more than just hand you a teddy bear.

That's where the other stuff in the patrol car comes in. The other stuff is emergency medical equipment. And five city police officers are now trained to use it. The officers recently completed training to become Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs).

"There's a good likelihood on medical emergencies in the city that the police have the potential to beat the ambulance to the situation," explained Police Chief Dennis Halverson. In some situations, police might even arrive as much as five to six minutes ahead of the ambulance. Halverson notes that for a person who isn't breathing, serious damage can begin within four to six minutes. Consequently, that few moments head start can mean life or death.

Last fall the Charlevoix City Fire and Ambulance Department sponsored an EMT course in Charlevoix. In the past, EMT courses have normally been held out of town. Halverson talked to his officers about taking the course. He didn't make it mandatory, but five of the officers, Dale Meredith, Paul

...city police officers can give emergency medical help

Ivan, Scott Hankins, Gerard Doan and Pat Foster, volunteered.

The course took 180 hours. In addition to classroom work, the course included time in the hospital emergency room, runs on the ambulance and extrication training. The class which was taught by LifeLink began in October and continued until final testing in March. By mid April the officers had their EMT cards and the new medical equipment aboard the patrol cars.

Within a matter of weeks after the program was initiated, it paid dividends. Meredith administered oxygen to a one-year-old girl who had stopped breathing. (See accompanying story.) He said it was amazing to see how quickly the child revived.

Administering oxygen is one of the major things the EMT training allows officers to do. In addition to carrying oxygen, some of the other major medical items the patrol cars now carry are stabilization collars and artificial airways.

Meredith noted that even in situations where the officer doesn't use the equipment or do any emergency treatment prior to the arrival of the ambulance's arrival the training can still be advantageous.

"Even if we don't get out the equipment, we can give the ambulance attendants an assessment of the situation," Meredith said. He added that in the past, without the EMT training, police officers were sometimes hesitant to assist the ambulance attendants.

Halverson says having police officers provide emergency medical assistance is something of a non-traditional law enforcement for a community of Charlevoix's size. He and Meredith commented that it's going to take some time to determine how the officers' new skills can best be utilized. They also pointed out that having officers who are capable of providing emergency medical assistance doesn't change the primary role of the officer, which is law enforcement. For a person in need of assistance, the same guidelines still hold true. If you need a policeman, call a policeman. If you need an ambulance, call an ambulance. The only difference is that if a police officer happens to hear the call and get there prior to the ambulance, the officer won't have to wait, but instead will be able to begin treatment immediately.

"It's just providing a better service to the public," Halverson said. "That initial time period in a medical emergency is crucial."

Proper response and medical training save one-year-old who had stopped breathing

One morning early last month a phone call came in on the emergency line at the Charlevoix Fire and Ambulance Department. One-year-old Mikaela Withoef was having a seizure and had stopped breathing. Her mother, Michelle Withoef, quickly looked up the ambulance number in the phone book and called for help.

Bob Lindstrom, one of the city's full-time firemen, took the phone call. He dispatched a police car and an ambulance and stayed on the phone with Michelle Withoef. Lindstrom said he was trying to juggle between dispatching the emergency vehicles and giving first aid instructions to the mother.

Lindstrom asked the mother where the baby was. She said she was holding her. Over the phone Lindstrom offered some basic first aid advice to the mother about how to open the airway of an unconscious person.

"I said to tilt the head back and listen to see if the baby was breathing," Lindstrom recalls. He says there was a pause and then the mother said she could hear the baby breathing.

Asked how he felt when he heard that news, Lindstrom said, "I felt great." He noted that if basic airway techniques hadn't worked, he might have had to give CPR instructions over the phone. He said he's been through that before and it's challenging, particularly when a small child is the victim because that heightens the tension for everyone involved.

The door of the home was locked and Michelle Withoef put her son on the phone while she went to unlock the door for the police and ambulance.

Within minutes, city police officer Dale Meredith arrived. Mikaela was starting to come out of the seizure when Meredith arrived. Having received his EMT certification a few weeks before the incident, Meredith was able to administer oxygen to expedite Mikaela's recovery. When the ambulance arrived, Mikaela was taken to the hospital. In a phone conversation with the Courier this past Monday, Michelle reported that Mikaela has recovered and is doing fine.

In regard to the emergency personnel's response, she said, "They were real helpful and I was impressed by how quickly they were there. I was real happy with how it was handled."

Council coverage criticized

Editor,

I have just finished reading the June 9, 1993 issue of the Courier and quite frankly I am frustrated. Your coverage of the June 7, 1993 City Council meeting is so lacking in content, that I don't know why you took the time to write the article. The agenda for this meeting consisted of two public hearings and nine items of general business, two of which were added at the beginning of the meeting. You chose to cover a limited aspect of one of the public hearings and nothing else on the agenda. Instead, you report in detail, the items brought up under the Public Comments section of the meeting. This portion of the meeting ran an hour and one-half and the majority of the items heard could have been handled by a call to the manager's office or any council member. How do your readers know that Council approved plans to extend a water main to the hospital, approved a contract for engineering services so sidewalks can be extended on both the north and south ends of town and Petoskey Avenue residents will finally have something done about the water lines that freeze every winter? How do they know that the City declined discounting emergency services to Hayes Township or made an offer of the new public works site? It certainly wasn't lack of space in this particular issue that prevented full coverage.

As THE local journalist, you have a responsibility to keep your readers apprised of local news. Your charge is to report fairly, accurately and from an unbiased perspective. ALL of the news, not just that which YOU feel is important.

Councilmembers spend a lot of time preparing for meetings. They

County decision was not cost conscious

Cost conscious service to Charlevoix County taxpayers once again took a back seat last week as the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners meeting. By a 4-2 vote, commissioners voted to keep the position of county Veteran's Affairs Officer as a full-time position rather than cutting it to part-time.

The position is one which never should have been full-time in the first place and now County Commissioners appear to lack the courage of leadership necessary to correct the problem.

At one time the position was part-time. However, the position was combined with another part-time position, that of soil erosion officer, so the employee was full-time. When the Soil Conservation District took over the soil erosion duties, rather than cutting the employee's hours or finding additional work for the employee as any private business would do, county commissioners simply declared the veteran's affairs officer position to be a full-time job.

When you think about it, it's tough to come up with a more classic example of the way government grows bloated and needlessly consumes tax dollars.

The veteran's affairs position has been open due to retirement presenting county commissioners with ous error and return the position to part-time status. A few people showed up at last week's commissioners' meeting to lobby for keeping the position full-time. Consequently, in the face of minimal pressure, four county commissioners, Don Smith, Richie Gillespie, Jim Behling and Howard Hosler, folded and agreed to keep the position full-time for at least six months. Taxpayers in the districts of these four commissioners should view this decision as an insult and make phone calls demanding that it be changed.

The only two commissioners who held their ground were Phil Johnson and Carl Price. Unfortunately, they weren't able to save Charlevoix County taxpayers a Water tower should be saved

Editor,

If you love Charlevoix — it's time to be heard from. Look up at the "Water Tower!" Would Charlevoix be the same to you if it was gone?

On Monday, June 21, the Charlevoix City Council is going to vote to tear down the Water Tower. Let them know what you think of this destruction.

Sincerely,
Larry Freedman

(Editor's note: Mr. Freedman wrote the following letter regarding the water tower in 1989 and asked that it be rerun at this time.)

Editor,

Why should a Charlevoixian want to save the old water tower?

1. Heritage. Do you have anything from your grandparents that you are proud to keep as a family remembrance? Well, the water tower is a treasure from Charlevoix's "grand-parents."

2. Dollars and sense. Most Charlevoixians earn their livings from tourism — directly or indirectly. Like it or not, without tourists where would the dollars come from? The old water tower is one of Charlevoix's attractions. Watch the "views" that are being photographed.

3. Charm. The reason so many tourists put the water tower in the background of their photos is that you cannot easily find 1906 water towers still standing — especially in such a beautiful setting.

6. Boating. At night, boaters also have the lighthouse — but during the day the water tower is literally a Charlevoix landmark.

5. Location. There are billboards and signs throughout northern Michigan announcing Charlevoix. The water tower is a beacon to ships' and autos: "Here is Charlevoix!"

6. Pride. Charlevoix's petunias are talked about throughout the state. Protecting the old water tower would be one more way to show that Charlevoixians are proud of their city.

I realize I am not a native Charlevoixian — but I have a residence here and my heart is here. I ask the people of Charlevoix, especially the city council: Recognize what we are so fortunate to have so that it is not lost. The old water tower is part of "Charlevoix." Is "Charlevoix the Beautiful" to be torn down piece by piece? Please save the old water tower.

Water tower has historic value

Editor,

During the past 20 years the residents of Charlevoix have seen many changes in the look of our city. Many of them good, but some, in retrospect, have been less than favorable. There is now facing the City Council the decision of whether or not to tear down the old water tower on the channel.

The City is applying for a DNR grant which includes money either for preserving or dismantling the tower. The DNR has said the city needs to make up its mind by July 1, 1993.

Charlevoix had three landmarks which almost every resident and visitor recognized: the Bridge, the old railroad swing bridge at the East end of Round Lake and the water tower. Now there are only two. After the railroad bridge was gone people realized what we had lost. If we lose the water tower, we will be down to only one. The Tower has been here long before most people currently living in Charlevoix were born.

Residents complain about our town losing its charm, about how the town used to be, and how their children and grandchildren will not be able to enjoy many of the things they enjoyed in their earlier years. We have an opportunity to save a historical landmark for the cost of less than $6 per taxpayer.

Saving our heritage is not always free. Historic preservation takes money, but the memories last a life time. Nostalgia is what our town is about. It's what our visitors remember, and what the people who grew up in Charlevoix want the town to be like. If we tear down all the past for the sake of a few dollars, it can never be replaced no matter how many dollars we spend.

The City Council needs the input from everyone. Many people complain about the changes in Charlevoix. Now is their opportunity to do something about it. Yes, it is going to cost money, but as they have said, our town is worth saving. To those individuals who are unable, or unwilling, to get up and speak at a Council meeting, write or call your Councilman or City Hall. Your input is important.

A park on the Pine River Channel, Water Tower Park, is a realistic goal. The Tower can be preserved, made vandal safe, and a focal point for everyone to enjoy.

Airman Troy A. Bonar recently graduated from basic training at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas. During the six weeks of training, Bonar studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations. Bonar, a 1992 graduate of Charlevoix High School, is the son of Donna Bonar of Charlevoix and Mike Bonar of Seattle, Washington.

Kallie A. Washburn of Charlevoix is among the students named to the Northern Michigan University Dean's List for the winter semester. To be named to the Dean's List a student must have a grade point average of 3.25 or better on a 4-point scale.

Blake Ranshaw of Lansing Christian High School has been selected by the United States Achievement Academy as one of the nation's outstanding band students. Ranshaw is the son of Richard and Eliane (Warner) Ranshaw of Dimondale, Michigan and is the grandson of Rosemary Warner of Charlevoix.

Roy C. Hayes, III, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Hayes, Jr. of Charlevoix, graduated on May 23, 1993, from the Washington and Lee University School of Law in Lexington, Virginia. Hayes received his undergraduate degree from the University of Notre Dame in May 1990. He has accepted a position to work for a Justice of the Missouri Supreme Court in Jefferson, Missouri, in the fall.

Staff Sgt. Scott M. Mervyn has deployed to the National Training Center (NTC), Fort Irwin, Barstow, CA., to participate in desert warfare training. The NTC, located in the Mojave Desert, is one of the Army's four combat training centers. It provides mid- to high-intensity training, primarily mechanized infantry and armor battalions, and brigades.

Mervyn, a platoon sergeant, is the stepson of James D. McCallum of Charlevoix. His wife, Julie, is the daughter of Al and Loretta M. Towsley of Charlevoix.

The sergeant is a 1984 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Marine Lance Cpl. Daniel E. Keiser, a 1991 graduate of Charlevoix High School, was recently promoted to his present rank while serving with Marine Wing Support Squadron 171, 1st Marine Aircraft Wing, Marine Aircraft Wing, Iwakuni, Japan.

He joined the Marine Corps in October, 1991.

Charlevoix resident Darrel Lawson is attending the Michigan Tech University Hockey Development Center (June 13-18) to improve and enhance his hockey skills. At the camp, he is honing his stickhandling, passing, shooting, skating and checking skills through rigorous drills and challenging scrimmages. In addition to his on-ice activities, he is training in the off-ice development center.

Michigan Technological University, home of three NCAA Championship hockey teams, started the hockey development center 22 years ago under its legendary hockey coach John MacInnes.

The Ferris State University athletic department has selected Dean Davenport as the 1993 recipient of the "Pete Peterson Bulldog Pride Award." The award, named for the former Ferris athletic director and Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference commissioner, goes to an individual who has been loyal and supportive of Bulldog athletics.

Davenport is retiring at the end of June after his 23 year stint as an FSU coach, administrator, and now the athletic director. He has held his current position since 1979. Davenport has been credited with the emergence of Ferris State as a Division II power and a nationally recognized force in division I hockey.

Darcie L. DeGrow, majoring in economics and management, was named to the Dean's List at Albion College.

Students named to the Dean's List must have a grade point average of 3.5 or above at the completion of the semester. To qualify, students must take at least three units in graded courses and successfully complete four units.

DeGrow, a junior, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn H. DeGrow of Charlevoix.

Roloff wins guitar contest

Bryan Roloff of Charlevoix was the winner of the third annual Double Rock KLT Hot Licks Guitar Competition. The contest drew guitar players from throughout northern and mid Michigan and was broken into two semi-final competitions, one in Cadillac and one in Charlevoix, with the winning semi-finalists advancing to the finals in Petoskey.

Roloff played at the Charlevoix semi-final which was hosted by the Villager Pub April 22.

After winning the semi-finals, Roloff played in the finals at Victor's Entertainment Center in Petoskey, April 29. At the finals, he won the $500 grand prize and a chance to play with the Traverse City Band Filthy Rich in opening for the Nazareth/Foghat concert May 2 in Traverse City.

Caregivers group to meet June 19

A meeting of the Charlevoix County Caregivers Support Group will take place Saturday, June 19, at 2 p.m. at Boulder Park Terrace.

Anyone who is responsible for the care of a sick or frail person outside the hospital setting is invited. Those who must deal with the stresses of caring for a loved one at home or in a nursing home will find the group informational and enjoyable.

The meeting is free of charge. Refreshments will be served. Call Nancy Ellison at Charlevoix Area Hospital for information. Reservations not required.

Planning begins for 1993 CROP Walk

Area coordinators for the 1993 Charlevoix County CROP Walk have announced that Saturday, Oct. 2, has been established as the date for the tenth annual Walk.

Johanna Blazer, Michigan Assistant Director of CWS/CROP activities, met with local leaders recently to start planning for the fall event. She presented 10 year banners to Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan in recognition of their past support of the CROP Walk hunger program.

Charlevoix County CROP Walk ranks seventh highest in per walker funds raised by Michigan's 129 community hunger walks. In 1992 $6,652 was collected by 90-walkers.

Coordinators are announcing this challenge for 1993: 150 walkers to raise $7,000 for world and community hunger.

Present at the planning meeting were Diana Walls, Boyne City; Kay Smith and Mary Helen Riggie, Charlevoix; Mary Glenna Malpass, East Jordan; Laura Chew, Charlevoix local church representative, also attended.

County Commissioners leave Veterans Affairs Officer as a full-time position for six months

By Laurie Lounsbury

After considering cutting the position of Charlevoix County veterans' affairs officer from full to part-time status, the county board of commissioners decide leave the position as full-time, at least for the time being. Commissioners considered the matter at their June 9 meeting.

Ron Geer recently retired as county veterans' affairs officer. At the time of his retirement, the salary for the position was $25,023. Fringe benefits added about $8,758 to the cost of the position. Retired full-time county employees continue to receive full benefits.

The position of veterans' affairs officer was originally a part-time position held by Geer, who also held another part time county position as soil erosion and sedimentation control officer. Three years ago, the Soil Conservation District in Boyne City offered to incorporate the soil erosion duties into their program with contributing funds from Charlevoix County. Charlevoix County went along with the plan and now contributes $11,000 annually to the Soil Conservation District. When Geer lost his position of soil erosion officer, his position as veterans' affairs officer was promptly expanded to a full time position. "It was determined (by county commissioners) at that time that there was sufficient need and work," County Clerk Jane Brannon said last week.

At their June 9 meeting, county commissioners discussed whether to keep the position as full-time or reduce it to part-time.

The nominee to fill the position is Emery Sloan, a retired United States Coast Guard officer. At the commissioners' meeting Sloan said he didn't know yet whether the job would turn out to be a full-time or part-time position. He did tell commissioners he would be willing to take the job even if it was a part-time position.

Commissioner Richie Gillespie said that he had talked with many veterans who felt that the job should be a part time position. When other veterans at the meeting disagreed with Gillespie, he responded saying, "You can make anything a full time position by pushing paper around a desk." Minutes later, Gillespie reversed his position and voted in favor of a full-time veteran's affairs officer.

Commissioner Phil Johnson wanted to start Sloan as a part-time employee, to determine at a later date whether or not the job should be full time. "I wasn't about to make that a full-time job to start with," Johnson said after the meeting.

Commissioner Jim Behling originally expressed a preference for a part-time veterans' affairs officer, but later agreed to make it a full-time position for the first six months. "It's a full-time job, at least to start with," Behling said. "In the long run I think it's a part-time job," he added.

Behling expressed confidence that Sloan would be willing to go from a full-time position to a part-time position in six months if the amount of work warranted the change. Johnson disagreed, saying that once a person is hired on a full-time basis, it's nearly impossible to cut a position back to a part-time job.

The motion passed by the commissioners was to hire Sloan as a full-time veterans' affairs officer for the first six months, after which the job will be reviewed and a change to part-time will be considered. Don Smith, Gillespie, Behling, and Howard Hosler voted in favor of the motion, with Johnson and Carl Price voting opposed.

Catherine Klooster

Catherine Klooster, 86, of Atwood, died Saturday, June 12, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital. She was born in Banks Township on July 11, 1906, the daughter of Isaac and Jennie (Tomiga) Smith.

She was united in marriage to Conrad Klooster on November 15, 1926, in Grand Rapids. They made their home in Banks Township. Mr. Klooster died in 1987.

Mrs. Klooster was a member of Bellflower Reformed Church where she was active in the Reformed Church Women's organization.

Surviving are four sons, James and his wife Esther of Cedar Springs, Conrad L. and his wife Carolyn, Robert and his wife Eloise, and Henry and his wife Jackie all of Charlevoix; 15 grandchildren, 28 great-grandchildren, 3 great-great grandchildren; one brother, Enos Vanderslik of Ellsworth; many nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, June 15 at Bellflower Reformed Church with the Rev. James Heneveld officiating. Burial will be in Atwood Cemetery.

Memorials may be made to the World Home Bible League.

Anna F. Crain

Anna F. Crain, 44, of Charlevoix, died June 8, 1993, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

Her funeral was Friday, June 11, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis officiated, and burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Charlevoix.

She was born Dec. 6, 1948, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Joseph and Rose (Bayliss) Kortan. She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1967.

On Feb. 14, 1969, she married Michael G. Crain and he survives.

Mrs. Crain was a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church and St. Mary's Altar Society. She was a Rainbow Shoppe volunteer, and a member of the Show Your Colors support group in Petoskey.

Mrs. Crain loved to bake and design cakes.

She is survived by her husband, Michael G.; two sons, Scott M. Crain of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Corey J. Crain of Charlevoix; one daughter, Shelly A. Crain of Charlevoix; one grandson, Cameron Crain of Charlevoix; a half sister, Barbara Lambert of Fort Myers, Fla.; and her father-in-law, Glenn L. Crain of Charlevoix. She was preceded in death by a brother, Joseph in 1987, and a half brother, Richard Bayliss in 1981.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. Mary's School or to Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Friends to wish Ray and Jean Giffin well

The place was the Barnard Grange. The bride was arrayed in the same veil she wore the first time "Herbert Lloyd" and she tied the knot. A special treat found the same ring bearer and flower girl able to participate in the revised nuptials. Sara and "Herbert Lloyd's" four children each had to give their consent. It was a joyful and touching moment.

What spoke to my heart was the very easily seen love and real friendship that Lloyd and Sara have for one another. There were tears in both their eyes as they repeated their vows. There was genuine affection as one of the Stevens boys sang a wedding song for them.

I am sharing these brief reflections with you because I think there are times that one of the best things we can do for ourselves is to love and honor those who are closest to us. Whether it is your husband or your wife, your children or your grandchildren, or even a really good friend, our relationships can make all the difference in the world between a happy life and an extremely discouraging one.

A long time ago, Jesus said, "Love each other as I have loved you. Greater love has no one than this, that he lay down his life for his friends." If you know the Lord, then you know the whole basis of his relationship with us is one of love and honor. There isn't anything that He wouldn't do for those He truly cares about. What about us?

We may not have the pleasure of fifty years with a wife or a husband. But we can value each and every day we do have. A family is a priceless gift. A genuine friendship is a treasure. Someone who loves you for who and what you are make life worthwhile. Take care of the people you love and you will be taking care of yourself. Never forget that God is among those who love you and I do too!

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

The First Congregational UCC of Charlevoix will be hosting a God-speed Coffee for Ray and Jean Giffin in the church Fellowship Hall, Sunday, June 20 at 11 a.m.

Ray was the minister at First Congregational from 1973-1982. Jean also faithfully served the church during this period.

The Giffins, who have given so much of their time and energy to so many in the community during their 20 year residency, will be moving to Pennsylvania in the latter part of June to be near one of their daughters.

The church cordially invites all who have known the Giffins to join in this time of tribute and farewell.

Ilene A. Drost

Ilene A. Drost, 72, of Charlevoix died May 25, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Her funeral was May 27 at the Assembly of God Church in Charlevoix with Rev. Lowell Anderson officiating with burial in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

She was born May 7, 1921, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Andrew and Katherine (Christy) Zeidler. She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1938. She worked as a cashier at the Kroger store in Charlevoix for 33 years; ten in Petoskey for 10 years before retiring.

She married Cecil Drost in Alpena and he survives.

Mrs. Drost was a member of the Assembly of God Church in Charlevoix and served as Sunday school secretary and missions secretary for several years.

Survivors include her husband,

Cecil, two sons, Jerry L. Drost of Charlevoix and Tele Drost and his wife Brenda of Charlevoix; two daughters, Connie Bradley of Charlevoix, and Bonnie Dominic and her husband Dennis of Charlevoix; 10 grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by a granddaughter, Christine Drost; great grandson, Nathaniel Filkins; two sisters, Dorothy Zeidler and Margaret Tilk; and by two brothers, Charles Zeidler and Robert Zeidler.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Boys and Girls Missionary Crusade "BGM/C" in care of the Assembly of God Church, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Assembly of God Church.

Funeral arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Joseph R. Hedrick

Joseph R. Hedrick, 61, of Charlevoix, died June 8, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

A memorial service was held Saturday, June 12, at the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene. The Rev. Duane Nelson officiated.

He was born Oct. 17, 1931, in Flint, the son of Lawrence and Velma (Hubbs) Hedrick. He was raised in Flint and remained a resident until 1965 when he moved to Phoenix, Ariz.

Mr. Hedrick worked as a bellhop at the Grand Hotel in Flint for several years and at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Phoenix, Ariz. until 1972. He moved to Charlevoix in 1977.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. John (Debra) Angermiller of Charlevoix, and Janice Hedrick of Atkinson; one son, Michael Hedrick of Florida; 12 grandchildren; and one sister.

Painting to help Watershed Council

The beauty of northern Michigan's Inland Waterway has been captured in a watercolor painting by Petoskey artist Jan Vandenberg. The artwork, titled "Inland Waterway," depicts a serene morning in the Crooked-Pickerel Channel wetlands. Vandenberg has made prints of the artwork available to the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council to support and promote their work to protect wetlands.

"The diversity of life found in wetlands serves as a source of inspiration for my paintings," says Vandenberg. Paintings such as

Council acts on a variety of matters at June 7 meeting

At the Charlevoix City Council's June 7 meeting, the council took action on a variety of items including: approving a change order for engineering services at the airport; approving the extension of a new water main to Charlevoix Area Hospital; approving a contract with Ward Brothers to once again keep the Miss Charlevoix at a municipal dock; approving a liquor license transfer to the new owners of the Grey Gables; opposing a request for a beer and wine license by the Holiday Station; approving an $11,400 engineering expenditure for preliminary work on the planned construction of new water mains on the north side.

Airport engineering: The council approved an additional cost of $4,960.15 for an environmental assessment as part of the airport expansion project. The assessment is needed due to new Federal Aviation Administration requirements which have gone into effect since the project started. The additional cost is eligible for 90 percent federal grant funding. Consequently, the added cost to the city will amount to less than $500.

Hospital water main extension: The council approved the extension of six, eight and 12 inch water mains to Charlevoix Area Hospital to replace older four and six inch lines. The larger mains are required by the hospital for fire protection. The total cost of the project is $177,000. The hospital will pay $145,150 and the city will pay

Miss Charlevoix docking: The council approved a renewal of the 1992 contract with Ward Brothers for docking the Miss Charlevoix cruise boat at the municipal dock. The cost will be $5,712 which is the same as 1992.

Liquor license transfer: The council approved the transfer of the liquor license for Grey Gables to the new owner, Strand Enterprises, Inc.

New liquor license request: The council opposed a request by the Holiday Station to the state liquor control commission for a license to sell beer and wine. In recent months the council has opposed requests to sell beer and wine by businesses selling gas.

Engineering for north side water mains: The council accepted a bid of $11,400 from Performance Engineering of Charlevoix for engineering work on a northside water main and sidewalk project which will begin later this year and carry over into 1994. The work will take place on Petoskey Avenue between Meech and Mercer. The $11,400 will cover the cost of design, bidding and contract administration.

Charlevoix
Little League."

When little League parent Joe Vogelheim walked over to the senior citizens center and asked Olach if he'd like to call the little league games, Olach didn't hesitate. "I figure the good Lord's put me on this earth for some reason. I'm not sure what, but I don't want to miss any bases," Olach said. Olach is no stranger to a microphone. He's volunteered his time calling bingo games at the senior center and the VFW hall for years. He does the Sunday readings at his church, and Olach may be a retired senior citizen, but his days and evenings are fuller now than they were in his working days. Announcing at the little league games occupies his time each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 4:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Little League announcer Clem Olach explaining why he said yes, when he was asked to help out with the Charleyoix Little League program.

Olach is also on the board of directors of eight different organizations. "I'll get in there and do as much as I can to help out," Olach said of his various activities.

Olach is particularly fond of helping kids. When raising his own children, he devoted a great deal of time to leading Boy Scout troops.

Olach knows his way around a ballpark—“I played any ball game that came around,” Olach said of his younger days. It serves him well when he’s providing a little impromptu color commentary. He keeps a careful record of game statistics so he can provide background information on each player. “Hutchison is up to bat now,” Olach announces. “This pitcher has had a base hit his last two times at bat,” he adds with a dash of flair. Olach also has a yellow sheet of paper with all the players’ names on it; spelled both phonetically and in the true spelling. He wants to make sure he pronounces each boy’s name correctly.

The sun is setting beyond the first base line and ballplayers are astride their bikes with gloves draped over the handlebars, ready to head home. Olach flips the switches of the control panel to "off" and buttons down the announcer's box. He's spent nearly four hours providing parents and ballplayers with an accurate account of two games. A lingering ballplayer watches as Olach heads back over to the senior center. "He's nice," the kid says as he watches him leave.

At the Grandvue Auxiliary monthly meeting, Thursday, June 10, the following business was discussed:

The annual County-wide Tag Day will be held on Friday, July 16. Proceeds from Tag Day this year will be for the purchase of a new Percussion for the patients, and purchase of two Exit-Door alarms: Co-chairmen for Boyne City Tag Day are Jean Korhase, Gloria Grunow and Marie Schmittiel. Betty Boswell and Mary Glenna Malpass will co-chair East Jordan.

Members voted to send two staff persons from Grandvue to the second annual Alzheimers conference in Chicago, in July.

Officers elected for the coming year were: President, Helen Deming, Boyne City; vice-Pres., Joanne Schenck, East Jordan; Secretary, Jean Korhase, Boyne City; Corresponding Secretary, Marie Schmittuel, Boyne City; Treasurer, Mary Geiken, Charlevoix.

Installation of new officers will take place at the annual Potluck Luncheon July 8.

Membership renewal and new memberships will be taken at the July 8 meeting also. Each member of the Auxiliary is asked to bring a friend to the luncheon.

The Michigan Association of Extension 4-H Youth Staff awarded Todd Kesner, Charlevoix County 4-H Youth Agent, with a President's Citation for superior and outstanding accomplishments in youth education at the Michigan 4-H Spring Conference at Sylvan Resort in Gaylord on Wednesday, May 12.

Kesner has been instrumental in helping the Charlevoix County 4-H program grow from 500 to 1500 participants. He has given a lot of time and attention to expanding the educational opportunities for the youth of the county. Kesner has been successful working with the 4-H Council, special interest committees and short-term programs that help develop adults and youth.

"Due to his special attention to leadership development programs, Charlevoix County 4-H has a fresh new image," said Roger Manning, MSU District Extension Agent.

sion Leader for Northern Michigan
"His public relations efforts have really paid off."

Some of the successful county 4-H camp, summer exchanges with Japanese youth, and interstate exchange trips. Kesner has also played a large role in the summer "4-H 2000 Mile Teen Voyages" to Toronto, Montreal; Denver; Portland; and Glacier National Park.

"The job is never over," says Kesner. "Michigan ranks in the bottom 20 percent in the Nation in child welfare and we are losing a battle for the well being of youth that we can not afford to lose. We, as a community, need to instill the values of honesty, true sportsmanship, responsibility, self-respect, and respect for others. Thanks to the help of a dedicated, over worked office staff and many caring volunteers, Charlevoix County 4-H can offer many different programs that do just that."

Elegant dinner raises funds for Arts Council

by EDITH GILBERT

The elegant Five Million dollar fund-raising dinner in Charlevoix was a huge success last Saturday. Hosted by Joan and Chuck MacGillivray in their spacious dining room, the seven course meal was served by volunteer waiters in tuxedo.

Chairpersons for the event, Jane Lent, Kay Melzow, and Jane Smith of Harbor Springs announced to the assembled volunteer staff that through the sale of tickets, $7,000 was raised for the benefit of the Crooked Tree Arts Council. The trio has been actively planning this glamorous affair for a year.

Five couples who purchased the winning numbers, were chauffeur driven by volunteers in limousines up the winding driveway to the top of Turtle Hill. Hors d'oeuvres, prepared by the Arboretum and Crow's Nest, were served outdoors on the terrace overlooking Lake Charlevoix. Afterwards, Scottish bagpipes played by Sean Ley, Director of CTAC, piped the couples in to dinner. The assembled guests oohed and aahed over the exquisite table set with the finest silver, china and glassware.

Seven waiters in tuxedos served the appetizer, Galantine du Poulet, prepared by Walloon Lake Inn; the Consomme by the Inn at Dunmaglas; the fish Rainbow Trout Morel Roulade by the Rowe Inn; the Baby Spinach Salad by Andante; the Spinach and Egg Fettuccini with Lobster and Spring Vegetables entree by the New York Restaurant; the dessert by Tapawingo.

Seven select wines were offered to the guests, each variety donated by Boyne USA, Northwood Restaurant, Toski Sands Party Store, Gurney's Harbor Bottle Shop. Port O' Call provided the Blue Jamaican Coffee.

Every year there are a lot of disappointed ticket holders who would love to attend the Five Million Dollar Dinner.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime experience," says Allan Warner, of the Chicago Club. He attended this function two years ago when it was held at Loeb Farms.

Not so for fortunate two-time winner, Mary Feindt of Charlevoix. Or for Mary and Bill Shubert from Harbor Springs, who have attended four times over the past eight years! Ask them, "How come you're so lucky? they will answer, "We buy a lot of tickets!" The price of the tickets has remained the same over the years, ten dollars per couple.

Doris Lundteigen, CTAC board member and volunteer dishwasher, loves the hustle and bustle in the kitchen as the numerous chefs, ladle and garnish the gilt-edged plates.

This is the second time the MacGillivrays have hosted the gala benefit. Both are longtime patrons of the visual and performing arts in this area. Now more than ever, they enthusiastically and jointly promote their expanded summer Festival of the Arts at the Barn at Dunmaglas, including the ever-popular performances by the Northwood Orchestra.

The Five Million Dollar Dinner has become one of the most popular fund-raisers in this area. Not only is the challenge of the gourmet food preparation by outstanding restaurants a memorable dining experience, but the congeniality that blends various couples at the table is also a definite plus. Then there are the volunteers who vie for the job of serving. These men and women think they are having the most fun. Of course, when the weather is balmy as it was last Saturday, who could ask for anything more?

Mike and Judy Stowe (right) two of the dinner drawing winners from Boyne City, were chauffeured to the event by Dr. Jeff Porter and hostess Nancy Porter of Charlevoix.

Mike McElroy, owner of the Crow's Nest, Kris Rundblad and Chef Michael of Weathervane helped prepare the seven-course meal.

The placesetting for the Five-Million Dollar Dinner was designed by Jack Perry, founder of the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

"Inland Waterway" and others that depict northern Michigan natural areas reflect a lifetime of appreciation and enjoyment of nature. "When I was a little girl, my father and I would gather cowslip greens and morels in the woodlands and wetlands near our home," recalls Vandenberg.

"The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council is pleased to offer our members the opportunity to purchase Ms. Vandenberg's artwork," said Gail Gruenwald, Executive Director of the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. "One of the major values that wetlands provide is recreational open space. 'Inland Waterway' captures the aesthetic value of wetlands in a wonderful way," said Gruenwald.

The Watershed Council actively works to provide information regarding wetlands and their protection. I see this art sale as a way to utilize the beauty of wetlands to raise money to support their efforts," said Vandenberg.

Donna Lynn Idolski, 27, Belleville, operating under the influence of liquor per se, first offense. Three days community service work, one year in the court referral program, license suspended for six months without restrictions for the first 30 days. Fines and costs totaling $550.

An 11-year-old East Jordan boy was electrocuted Sunday morning in front of his home in Wilson Township. According to a sheriff's department news release, Bradley Bearden was attempting to retrieve a fishing lure which was entangled in an overhead power line in front of his residence on Wilson Road. He was using seven pieces of aluminum tent poles to try to retrieve the lure. He was electrocuted when he touched the power lines.

Bearden was transported by the East Jordan Ambulance to Charlevoix Area Hospital, but efforts to revive him were unsuccessful.

The accident remains under investigation.

...water levels on Great Lakes still high

A more detailed summary of Lakes Michigan-Huron water levels follows. All elevations are referenced to International Great Lakes Datum 1985.

Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of May were at elevation 589.86 feet (176.74 meters) above the mean water level at Rimouski, Quebec, or about 28 inches (74 cm.) above Chart Datum. The May monthly mean level of 579.72 feet (176.70 meters) was about 6 inches (16 cm.) above the long-term average for May. The lakes were about 22 inches (57 cm.) below the all-time high May monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1986. The forecast shows that the June monthly mean level of lakes Michigan-Huron will be about 3 inches (7 cm.) above what it was at Mid-May. The lakes are expected to continue their seasonal rise into July. The water level in Mid-November is expected to be about 6 inches (16 cm.) above the long term average for that month, or about 5 inches (12 cm.) above what it was at the same time in 1992.

The Tower

Landmark, or unnecessary expense?

Council votes to tear tower down, but remains open to fundraising campaign

By L. Scott Swanson

There are still a lot of ifs, but the bottom line is the old city water tower is a step closer to coming down. At Monday evening's Charlevoix City Council meeting council members voted to apply for a state grant to help fund a $473,000 project which would make improvements to Michigan Beach, the fish hatchery site and the water tower site. Part of that grant request calls for the removal of the old city water tower.

The council discussed the plan and removal of the tower earlier this year and again at the June 7 council meeting. Each time objections were raised to tearing down the tower, however councilmembers maintain they have also had several people indicate that rather than spending additional tax dollars to restore the old tower they would rather have it torn down.

The tower was erected in the early 1900s and for many years was a part of the Charlevoix City water system. However, it was taken out of service nearly 20 years ago when a new water tower was constructed on the city's north side. The estimated cost of tearing the water tower down is $50,000 while the estimated restoration cost is $125,000.

Robert Hoffman of Mason Street has been one of the most adamant supporters of restoring rather than removing the water tower. In addressing the council Monday evening he said that Charlevoix had three landmarks: the bridge, the old railroad bridge and the water tower.

Tower is only part of half-million-dollar beach area plan

Although debate centered around whether to remove or restore the old water tower, that issue was only a small part of a half-million proposed project which would make improvements at Michigan Beach, the fish hatchery site and the water tower site.

The City is applying for a state grant which would pay up to 75 percent of the cost of a $473,000 project which would include, among other things, the following:

• Repairing steps and putting new

The old Charlevoix water tower moved a step closer to demolition Monday evening as the City Council chose to apply for grant money to remove, rather than restore, the tower.

School to come back before voters in August

New proposal seeks two less mills

By Laurie Lounsbury

The Charlevoix Board of Education voted to hold another millage election in August with a reduced millage proposal of 14.55 mills. The June millage election that asked for 16.55 mills failed by a narrow margin.

The proposed 1993-94 school budget was amended to accommodate the reduced millage proposal. School business manager Rich Kelly removed funds from the budget that could be used to pay the state's share of employer's social security and retirement benefits. The state may continue to pay a portion of those funds in the upcoming school year. If the state fails to do so, then the school district may have to ask the voters for more money.

Total revenue for the schools with the amended budget would be $8,095,370, as opposed to the originally proposed budget revenue of $8,935,460. The total projected expenditures are at $8,197,630, as opposed to $8,823,980.

Board members Larry Levengood and Steve Czerkes questioned Kelly about any further reductions in the budget, saying they felt it was important for the board to make additional cuts wherever possible. One possibility is restructuring administrative responsibilities for the assistant principal and athletic director, Richard Swenor who was filling those positions has been appointed K-5 principal to fill the vacancy created by Van Smith's retirement. Kelly said that the position of Athletic Director may be reduced to two hours a day so a teacher on staff could pick up the additional hours.

A member of the audience spoke up, asking, "Have the unionables been discussed, such as teacher benefits and wages?" Kelly responded by saying that since contract negotiations were still ongoing, he didn't know what the final settlement would be between the teachers and the school. The audience member asked if it would be possible for the school negotiators to hold the teachers to a cost of living increase, rather than a six percent annual increase they've received over the last several years. No one on the board responded to the question. Kelly said again that since negotiations are not complete it is not possible to respond to the question.

Taxpayers cost of the new millage proposal: Homeowners with a home valued at $60,000 before the new property assessments paid $511.50 last year on the 17.05 voted mills for the school. Their total millage for the school last year, including the allocated mills, was 27.1554 mills, which made their total millage cost $814.

With an average increase in assessments of 15 percent, that same home would now be assessed at $69,000. The cost for 14.55 voted mills with the increase in assessment would be $501.97. The total proposed millage, including the allocated mills would be 23.7792. With a 15 percent assessment increase, the total cost to the homeowner would be $820.

AHEAD LINES

Benefits scheduled for two local men

Argonne dinner to help Topper Carey

Topper Carey has some good news and he also has some good friends. Carey was operated on for a malignant brain tumor in March. Neurosurgeons removed as much of the tumor as they could, leaving about half of it behind. Carey has undergone two chemotherapy treatments, physical therapy, and intensive, continuous radiation treatment. His good news is that the tumor is shrinking. "It's about half the size it used to be, thanks to the radiation," Carey said recently. "I'm a rad grad now," he added, explaining that he will have no more radiation treatments.

But with the good news comes the bad news that comes with any catastrophic medical problem - bills. That's where Carey's good friends will help.

A fundraising party organized by Argonne owner Steve Ager is being held for Topper Carey at the Argonne Supper Club, June 27, from noon to 4 p.m. Admission will be $15 per person with all of the cost of admission going to Topper Carey. There will be entertainment (provided by Maggie and Murray and other area musicians), hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar.

When Carey was told of the fundraising party he said, "That's good. Funds are what you need when you get into a deal like this." Carey and his wife, Nina, expect to be able to attend the fundraising party.

Rockers to play for Roloff

Northern Michigan rock and rollers are planning a benefit bash for Bryan Roloff of Charlevoix. The benefit will take place from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m., Sunday, June 27 at Victory's in Petoskey. Roloff is a local guitar player who was recently diagnosed as having a brain tumor. Earlier this year he won the WKLT Hot Licks guitar contest and his friends from the rock and roll community are staging the benefit bash to help with medical costs.

Featured bands at the benefit will be Rampage, Condition Red and Big Time Rabbit. Roloff will be playing some songs with Condition Red.

Ticket prices for the benefit are $3 per person or $5 per couple. People must be 21 or over to enter.

...old water tower a step closer to demolition

Since the demise of the railroad bridge, the number of landmarks has been reduced to two and if the water tower is torn down, it will be gone forever.

"Preservation is not always free," Hoffman said. He added that according to his calculations saving the water tower would cost $6 per city resident, money he feels would be well spent.

Larry Freedman of Park Avenue also spoke in favor of saving the tower. He said he can give plenty of reasons for keeping the tower, but said that when people ask him why it should be torn down finds it "difficult to answer the question of why somebody would want to destroy a popular landmark."

Freedman offered a drawing of what a restored water tower might look like. The drawing showed a water tower with a pelutina logo and Charlevoix The Beautiful written on it. Freedman also questioned the cost figures as a consultant's estimate rather than a more definitive bid. He said the allure of Charlevoix is a package made up of many parts and the water tower is one of those parts which helps draw tourists and brings money to the community.

Geoff Reynolds and Bud Koheler of the Charlevoix Historical Society said that while the Historical Society has taken no official position on either restoration or removal of the tower, they are willing to help with research and information about the tower. Reynolds said he would also be able to put people in touch with historical preservation organizations which sometimes help fund restoration projects. Reynolds said preservation groups might be willing to help restore the water tower either as a historical landmark or because it is a landmark which for many years has served as a navigational aid to boaters.

First ward councilmember Cheri Hoffman noted that she has been on the council for four years and that the water tower has been discussed at least two or three times. She said that every time tearing the water tower down is discussed a group of people talks about raising money for restoration, but then the issue is put on hold and the council never hears from that group again until the possibility of tearing the water tower down resurfaces. She said that on the other hand local taxpayers say they are being taxed out of their homes.

"We either need a plan to move forward or we need to be done with it and move on," Hoffman said.

Second ward councilmember Butch Russell said 95 percent of the people he talked to felt the tower should be torn down and the expense now of restoring the tower and expense in the future of maintaining the tower are not merited.

First ward councilmember Don Meggison offered a petition signed by people who don't want city tax dollars used to restore the tower.

Third ward councilmember Bruce Livingston said that even if the City applies for grant money to tear the water tower down, the council can later decide to leave the tower up if people come up with the money to restore it.

Following discussion a motion was made by Felter and supported by Russell to apply for grant money to remove rather than restore the water tower. The motion passed by a 5-1 vote with Livingston casting the only dissenting vote.

chips on trails in the park on the bluff.

+Replacing the split rail fence with a full rail fence.

+Defoliating poison ivy in a routine manner to keep it under control.

+Remodeling the concession stand and beach house.

+Putting curb and gutter at the water plant parking lot.

+Removing dead trees and underbrush as necessary.

+Putting a paved parking lot at the fish hatchery.

+Building a picnic shelter at the fish hatchery.

+Putting curb and gutter along the beach drive area.

City manager Mike Wiesner said the grant could come from either of two State programs. At a maximum, the state would fund $354,750 which would make the city share of the project $118,250.

Wiesner said that a state staff recommendation on the grant will probably occur either late this year or early in 1993. If the staff recommendation is favorable, then the grant would need legislative approval. Given the time required to get all necessary approval and do preliminary work it will probably be 1995 or 1996 before any construction begins.

If she's not home... we are.

Letters to the editor

No left turn sign is applicable to all

Editor,

Attention: Charlevoix Road Commission, and the Charlevoix Police Department, and fellow drivers.

This letter is being written after watching yet another driver turn left off of US 31 onto State Street just beyond the M-66 intersection. After blowing my horn, I came home to blow off steam.

Excuse me, but I thought that the sign posted there was meant for everyone — no left turn. Does this mean "no left turn, but I live just down the street, so I can turn here if I want to?" or "I just have to get out of this traffic, so I'm going to turn left anyway?" or "I'm old and I've been turning left here for the last fifty years! Let them stop me?" or, this is my favorite: "There's no oncoming cars so I'll just swing the corner and I won't even have to stop and hold up traffic!"

I, for one, have used State Street as an "escape" route myself for the last 13 years that I have been driving. But when I realized that stopping there to turn left could definitely be hazardous to my health, I began to go the distance and turn on Carpenter or Garfield to get to good ole peaceful State Street!

I think people, especially the "visitors" for the season, need to be reminded that stopping there to turn left is dangerous to themselves and the driver who is not paying attention and ends up in his backseat!

I've seen a couple people who have been stopped for turning left and I hope they have received citations. I also know that enforcing any traffic violations in Charlevoix during the summer is very difficult for our police force. But somehow the point has to be made with all the people who pretend not to see the sign that sooner or later someone is going to be seriously hurt at that intersection, and you know it will probably be me about the first time that I try to turn left like everybody else!!!

Well, I guess that's all the steam I have for today! So my message to you (the Road Commission or the Police) is to either blockage the lane on state street so no one can turn there, or take the sign down and wait for the accidents to happen.

And my message to my fellow drivers is — they put the sign there for our safety. Whether we like it or not, we should all obey it.

Sue Louise

Water tower brings fond memories

Editor,

Just relax and keep the bow of the boat pointed toward the water tower. These words ring eternal in my memory. I remember by uncle, Julius Gilbert, placing my little hands on the wheel of the boat and turning away, trusting me completely. I remember there were clouds in the sky, a stiff wind, low swells. The bow seemed to want to point everywhere but toward the water tower. Every time I looked to see if my uncle was watching, the bow would veer sharply starboard. He wasn't watching. I was big enough now.

Today, only the water tower remains. How could I possibly choose whether or not to tear it down? It cannot be called historical. It has little significance. It cannot be called valuable. It is not needed. But it cannot be torn down, it is a part of my childhood Charlevoix. (Not to mention climbing the water tower. Of course we all did it. I made it about eight feet up but swore in class the next day I made it to the top.)

When the water tower was built, it was not just a means of maintaining city water pressure, it was a symbol. It meant you were incorporated, you had a city council (I bet it was controversial), you had taxes, you were a city. It implied order, commerce, a school system, jobs. My grandfather's generation recognized this. My father's generation took it for granted. My generation didn't notice it. The water tower is no longer a symbol, it is a relic. The headline "Water tower decision postponed again" (June 9, 1993) was not simply a statement of fact, but a summary of the feelings of many Charlevoix residents. The destruction of the water tower would be the extraction of a physical link to our childhood. How could we destroy a link to our childhood? We want to postpone it forever.

I have considered many times the day when I would take one of my children to the wheel of a boat and repeat my uncle's words. Will it be as important to them as it was to me? Was it the water tower that gave me the lasting memories or the love? Maybe the water tower isn't the important part. Maybe it is time to tear it down.

Sincerely,
Peter Jay Smith

Club 77 needs community support

Editor,

Attention, Charlevoix and surrounding area...

You are about to lose one of your most valuable assets, because of some ugly rumors, because of lack of knowledge, and the true facts, because of lack of interest, and passing the buck, just because, nobody told you about it.

Well, listen up, Charlevoix... Do you know that Charlevoix's youth center, Club 77 is choking to death slowly? Because of all the reasons just listed?

The false rumors are:
1. That only Christian music is played in the club. False.

Fact: The only thing different about the music in the club is this: It has been screened, to eliminate any profanity, sexual, or satanic lyrics. That is all.

2. That kids are being preached to, and brainwashed. False.

Fact: We are an alcohol, and drug free establishment. All that is happening here is that the kids are allowed to play on their own, and the harmful elements of drugs, alcohol, profanity, smoking, etc. are kept outside. No one is allowed to break these rules, period.

3. No one supervises the kids. False.

Fact: We have given it our best shot, to have volunteers, and chaperones on hand who are responsible, and love kids, and who do their best to help the kids enjoy their space, and see to it that they are safe and happy, while doing what they enjoy.

4. That there are not free activities. False.

Fact: We have done our best, with limited funds, and willing bodies, to give the kids as much, and as many activities as possible. There are video games, places to relax and have a soft drink, puzzles, music to listen to, board games, magazines to read, friends to talk to, karaoke, basketball, and more.

Gosh, folks, this is one of the nicer, cleaner things that has happened to our fair city. Why are you condemning it to death by disinterest?

The kids need it, they have proven their interest by signing their names on over 400 memberships.

Do you think a decrease in vandalism, breaking and entering, and general acts of property damage is important?

Is it important to have kids out for the evening in a safe environment, worry free?

Is it important to have kids learn to trust, and be around adults?

Is it valuable for a kid to discover his/her skills and talents by having a place to try them out?

Is it important for kids to be able to say "let's go to Club 77 Saturday night." Instead of "Charlevoix doesn't have anything for kids to do."

Come on folks, these are our own kids here, they are precious and irreplaceable. They are our future law-makers, merchants, professionals, industrialists, scientists, police, etc. They need to see our love and confidence in them as citizens.

Please don't send them back to the streets, the corners, the parks, where our enforcement officers must ask them to move on and force them to find the private beer parties and other activities that take place when they are bored and looking for "something to do".

Your teen center has a lot of potential, a lot of promise. It can give services that you probably haven't even thought of. Book a birthday party... a shower... a meeting... a carnival... an art show... aerobics... crafts class... a talent night... dance class... car maintenance class... and many, many more.

Our problem has not been the lack of ideas, it is lack of people to run the program. And of course, funds.

Please listen. The good people who have given have been so wonderful. We have used their funds wisely and carefully to give the kids as much benefit as possible.

but we all know that Charlevoix never does things without getting everyone involved. Look at our penurias... and or school carnival... and our Venetian Festival.

It takes the interest and the work of the many to carry out a good plan. Folks, this is a good plan, ask your kids. It is theirs. For them. Remember, we don't know what we've got until we lose it.

Club 77 needs just a few dollars a month from each family, five, 10 or 20, it won't take much if everybody gives just a little to pay the rent, and the lights, and the phone so the kids can call mom. We want to keep giving the kids their space and games and nag-free time at Club 77.

We are trying to be big enough, rich enough and strong enough for these kids, but we get burned out, because the blood must be a steady flow. The lifeblood of a city is its youth. Go Charlevoix.

Please call and join us in our fun.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY CHAPTER

On behalf of the officers of the Charlevoix Chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving I'd like to say thank you for your support over the last 3 1/2 years.

We have seen the public awareness rise and a sincere expression of concern over the drunk driving that continues in our county. There is much work to be done. Due to the restricted three year terms of officers we may have to disband. This is our final request for assistance from the community before we are forced to do that. We haven't had anyone come forward to assist with the day to day business of running a chapter, to help with victim assistance, or to do court monitoring. We will be happy and thankful to assist anyone who can help.

Did you know some drunk drivers are not spending time in jail - but a person convicted of conspiracy to commit larceny under $100 is sentenced to 20 days in jail (Charlevoix Courier, June 9, 1993) - something seems very wrong with that picture doesn't it?

If you could, or know someone who could help the chapter stay active, please join us on June 30, 1993 at 7:00 p.m. in the lower level of the Village Inn Pizza for pizza and pop.

Drunk drivers are still spending more time sharing the road with our families than they are in jail. We have had too many victims in this county. Please help us from having any more.

PLEASE JOIN US ON WEDNESDAY, JUNE 30, 1993 AT VILLAGE INN PIZZA AT 7:00 P.M.

Vane Smith retires after 27 years

But he's still looking forward at education

By L. Scott Swanson

Although Vane Smith is retiring after more than 20 years as a principal in the Charlevoix School System, he isn't looking backwards at education; he's looking forward. He speaks enthusiastically of changes taking place within and challenges faced by Charlevoix and other school systems.

Even though he is retiring, Smith hopes to make a contribution to the process of educational improvement. As he explains it, "Once you get involved and you've spent your whole life doing something, you can't help but be concerned, especially when you're opinionated."

Smith grew up in Charlevoix and then went off to the military and to college. Prior to coming to Charlevoix he taught at Belding from 1958 to 1963 and was a high school principal in Porterville from 1963 to 1966. When he began his teaching career, he really didn't expect to get back to Charlevoix, although he did want to get back to northern Michigan.

"I had applied for administrative positions up north, but hadn't had much luck," he explained.

In 1965, Charlevoix was short of driver education teachers so Smith came up and taught for three weeks during the summer. A short time later, an opening came up in the Charlevoix school system for an industrial arts teacher. The opening gave Smith and his wife, Kate, a decision to make. They could either stay downstate where Smith was an administrator or move back to Charlevoix which for Vane would mean a salary cut and going back into the classroom.

"We hashed it over," Smith said and ultimately they decided to come back home. "We just thought it was best for the family," he noted, quickly adding, "And I still think it was the smartest move we ever made."

Smith taught industrial arts until 1969 when the new elementary school was built and created a need for an additional principal. Smith became high school principal, a position he held until 1985 when he moved to the K-5 school.

Being a high school principal in the 1970s was no day at the beach.

Smith noted that school teachers, administrators and parents were ill prepared for some of the societal changes which took place at that time.

He said that even today, "changes in society are creating more of a burden on schools to make responsible decisions."

In addition to one-parent or both-parents working families, technology is also changing the way schools do business.

Something which has helped Smith, as a school principal, keep pace with those changes is his staff at the K-5 school. Smith speaks in glowing terms of K-5 secretary Joanne Grubaugh. Smith and Grubaugh were classmates in high school. She was the high school office secretary when he took the principal's job there and the first thing he did was ask her to stay. When he moved to the K-5 school, she moved too. Smith said a lot of people don't recognize Grubaugh for what she has meant to the school system.

Smith also praised the K-5 teaching staff. He said he's been blessed with a staff which is very innovative and willing to take advantage of training programs for new teaching trends.

In addition to the people he worked with, Smith also said Charlevoix, as a community, has been a good place to work and raise a family. He said that in Charlevoix he never felt that people expected him to belong to a certain group or socialize with certain people.

Asked why he is retiring now, Smith answered with characteristic candor: "Well, first of all because I'm old. I'm 61 years old and I'll be 62 in January.

Vane Smith is retiring after 27 years with the Charlevoix School system. Smith began as an industrial arts teacher and then became high school and later elementary school principal.

He said that State Public Act 25 has set Michigan schools on a path of change and he thinks that now is a good time for a new principal to begin work. High school assistant principal Dick Swenor has been named to take over as K-5 principal. Smith and Swenor have been working on the transition and Smith says he's confident that Swenor will do a good job of building on the foundation which is in place.

In his retirement, Smith and his wife plan to do some visiting and traveling. They have four children; one grandchild and another grandchild on the way.

As for his involvement in the community and education Smith said, "I'll keep my interest in the community as far as education is concerned because I think I have something to contribute."

Public comments continue to be active council agenda item

By L. Scott Swanson

In what has become something of a regular feature at Charlevoix City Council meetings, criticism was directed at City Manager Mike Wiesner and at the Charlevoix City Fire Department and Fire Chief Doug Carver during public comments. At the June 7 meeting, the public comments portion of the agenda lasted in excess of an hour with the majority of discussion concerning the fire department.

Criticism of the fire department included a variety of allegations and an 11-minute videotape of the fire which destroyed the old electric plant building earlier this year.

Among those offering criticism of the fire department were: Doug Bergmann, one of four volunteer firemen who were dismissed from the fire department following a Feb. 25 chimney fire in Hayes Township; Charles Papineau, a resident of the city's first ward; Al Bergmann, a volunteer fireman and resident of the city's first ward; Norm Probert, a former councilmember from the city's first ward; Tom Meggison, a volunteer fireman and a resident of the city's second ward; Louise Bergmann, who is the wife of Doug Bergmann; and Polle Verwys, a resident of the city's second ward.

Bob Hoffman, a resident of the city's first ward, spoke in support of changes which have occurred in the fire department.

Doug Bergmann read a lengthy list of allegations. The allegations ranged from charges that the electric plant fire was mishandled to charges of there being a double standard regarding disciplinary action for firemen: one for firemen who are supportive of Wiesner and Carver and a separate standard for firemen offering criticism. Other allegations were that a lack of familiarity with local roads and fire department equipment has caused delays in responding to emergencies and that safety measures at some recent emergencies have been inappropriately handled, consequently creating dangerous situations. Following the meeting Wiesner and Carver were asked by the Courier if they wished to respond to any of the allegations and they declined.

Additional comments regarding the city administration and fire department were made at the June 21 council meeting.

Bill Supernaw, a downtown business owner, said he had asked State Attorney General Frank Kelly, at a recent meeting in Petoskey, whether the chairman of a public meeting can control public comments. He said Kelly responded that reasonable control can be exercised. As one possibility, Supernaw suggested that the public comments portion of city council meetings could be placed at the end of the agenda rather than the beginning.

Doug Bergmann said that on June 12 when he was in the fire station Wiesner told him to leave or he would call the police. Bergmann asked the council whether or not he is permitted to be in the fire station.

Mayor Dave Novotny said the matter had been referred to the city attorney. City Attorney Jim Young said that a municipality can have reasonable rules governing access to public buildings, particularly in areas not generally used by the public. He noted that the two main criteria for establishing access rules are that they are reasonable and that they shouldn't be directed at specific people, but to the general public. Bergmann said that according to his information, it was initially specified that no dismissed firemen be allowed in the fire station and that only applies to four people. Bergmann noted that later Carver phoned him and said that there is no problem with him visiting the fire station.

At the end of the council meeting, councilmember Jackie Cross asked for clarification of the current status of public access to the fire station. He was told that currently, access by members of the public, including the four dismissed firemen, is allowed.

Rose C. Kruse

Former Charlevoix resident Rose C. Kruse, 81, of Aurora, Ill., died June 10, 1993, at her home.

She was born March 23, 1912, in Toledo, Ohio, the daughter of John and Katerina (Janas) Krchak of Charlevoix.

She married Raymond E. Kruse on June 28, 1934, in Crystal Lake, Ill.

Mrs. Kruse was a longtime member of Our Savior Lutheran Church in Aurora, Ill.

Survivors include: one son, Ronald R. Kruse and his wife Carol of Aurora; one daughter, Mrs. Kenneth (Renada) Fall of Superior, Wis.; four grandchildren, Kevin Scott Kruse, Laurie Kay Stone, David Scott Kruse and Kimberly Ann Blume; three stepgrandchildren, Michelle Fall, Nicole Witroski and Tony Fall; five great-grandchildren; two stepgreat-grandchildren; two brothers, Emil Krchak of Crystal Lake, Ill., and Frank Krchak of Woodstock, Ill.; four sisters, Sylvia VanWinkle of Long Beach, Calif., Georgia Bruhl of Falls Church, Va., and Julie Bobb of Dayton, Ohio; and many nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Kruse was preceded in death by her husband, Raymond; two brothers, John Krchak and Charles Krchak; and four sisters, Katie Adams, Ann Anderson, Sophia Towne and Helen Fanter.

Funeral was held Monday, June

14, at Our Savior Lutheran Church. The Rev. Timothy Swanson officiated. Interment was in McHenry Memorial Park in Woodstock, Ill.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Donation boosts nature preserve effort

The joint efforts of two land conservation organizations to acquire and preserve a beautiful and fragile 17-acre wetland received a major boost from a couple interested in dedicating the property as a living memorial to their late son.

Walter and Mary Lawmaster, who live in Nappanee, Indiana and have summered for over 25 years near Ellsworth, made a major cash gift to the land acquisition effort. When the purchase of the property is completed, it will be known as the Lee Alan Lawmaster Nature Preserve.

In thanking the Lawmasters for their contribution, Little Traverse Conservancy Executive Director Tom Bailey said, "there could not be a more fitting memorial to one who loved the outdoors than a nature preserve where generations will come to savor nature's beauty, to learn, to discover, to rest and to enjoy the wonder of the outdoors. We deeply appreciate the Lawmasters' generous support of the project."

The land is a unique and beautiful wetland on the Lake St. Clair-Six Mile channel, which is part of the chain of lakes watershed. The property includes 800 feet of frontage on Lake St. Clair and 1,000 feet on the channel and has long been valued by area residents for its serenity and quiet beauty. The option to protect this sensitive area was made available to the Little Traverse Conservancy last year. With help from local citizens, the Conservancy is working to raise the funds necessary to complete the purchase. However, because of the significance of the entire chain of lakes watershed and the fact that most of the chain lies outside of the Little Traverse Conservancy's normal area of operations, the Grand Traverse Conservancy was called in to assist with the project.

"This project is important for a number of reasons," said Bailey. "It is not only an effort to protect a beautiful parcel of land as a public nature preserve, it is also a springboard for both the Little Traverse and Grand Traverse Conservancies to raise awareness of the need to balance development in the area with the creation of nature preserves, parks and natural areas." Bailey said that the Conservancies, representing the private sector in the conservation movement, work

Vacation Bible School

Vacation Bible School is taking place in Charlevoix this week. The school is multidenominational. Children meet in a tent at the corner of Clinton and State Streets and then disperse to churches in the area.

City Council denies rezoning request

A rezoning application which would have allowed a parking lot to be built at the southeast corner of State and Carpenter Streets has been denied. Lloyd VanAlstine, who owns the property on the corner as well as the adjacent commercial building on the corner of Bridge and Carpenter Streets had asked for the rezoning because the businesses in the commercial building need additional parking. Residents of the neighborhood objected saying they feel a residential buffer is needed between the commercial establishment and homes.

At the May 26 planning commission meeting members of the planning commission discussed the matter and recommended rejecting the rezoning. At the June 21 City Council meeting, the council cited the objections raised at the planning commission and followed the planning commission recommendation and rejected the rezoning request.

Residents of the neighborhood argued that State Street is a residential area with several children and that placing a commercial lot on State Street would lead to traffic and safety problems.

Although the Charlevoix City master plan calls for State Street to eventually become commercial, that is not to occur until after Bridge Street's commercial potential is saturated.

The city council motion to deny the rezoning passed unanimously.

Barnard Grange to host salad luncheon

Barnard Grange will host a salad luncheon, pie sale and hobbycraft fair Saturday, June 26 at the Grange Hall on Barnard Rd.

The fair will open at 10 a.m., salad luncheon 11 a.m. - 1:30 p.m., pie sale 11 a.m. until gone.

Tickets are available at the door. Adults $4.50, children 10 years and under $2. Family tickets for immediate family with children 10 years and under, $12.

Clarification

In the May 19 issue of the Courier, it was incorrectly stated that Jack Strand is the sole new owner of the Grey Gables. Strand's wife Bonnie is a partner with Strand as a co-owner.

BEACONS

by MERLE WELLHOUSEN

Last Sunday was Father's Day. This is a day many set aside to pamper their father and let them know how much he is appreciated. This article is written through the eyes of a father who can only see things as they have happened to him. I would like to share some thoughts.

I have been blessed with three children: Joshua, Jacob and Hannah (with one on the way). One thing I learned quite early was that children do not come with operator's manuals! In fact, most things I have done regarding child rearing I have done through trial and error (sadly more error than trial). A parent can read countless books and listen to endless tapes on raising children and still not be sure how to do it "right". Because of this, many fathers (and mothers) feel undue pressure about the whole process of raising kids.

One thing I learned quite early was that as a father I was not perfect (my wife was not surprised when I admitted to that). Because of this, I realized I was going to make mistakes. So I committed myself to saying five words that help me to be a better father. These five words are not earth-shaking or breath-taking, however, these five words are life-changing. These five words are not words I invented or even thought of. These five words humble me before my children. These five words are: "I'm sorry, please forgive me!" These words help me to realize I too have a Father, a heavenly Father. I can ask my children to forgive me when I misjudge a situation, come down too hard on them, at times become angry, lose my temper or say things I should not say.

Remember one thing: There is no such thing as a perfect father (or mother). So why not stop trying to act like one. Our children can see right through our mask! If we can be honest with ourselves, those powerful five words can be the beginning of better days ahead!

(Rev. Merle Wellhousen is pastor of Bethany Lutheran Church. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Wellhousen and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

Local students fare well in Garden Club poster contest

Brian Hater's poster places first in state competition

All four first place winners in the Charlevoix Area Garden Club division of the National Council of State Garden Clubs annual poster contest won awards at the state-level recently.

In the Kindergarten through first grade division, Amy Hilligan, a kindergarten student at St. Mary's won third place statewide for her poster, "Only You Can Prevent Fires". In the second through third grade division, Lindsey Miller, a second grader from St. Mary's school won a second place state award for her poster, "Protect the Babies". In the fourth and fifth grade division, two fifth grade students from Charlevoix Elementary won state awards. Receiving a third place at state for her poster, "We All Need to Join Together to Protect our World" was Susan Agnello and winning a first place award in the same division was fifth grader, Brian Hater, with his poster, "It's A Jungle Out There, Let's Keep It That Way". Because Brian's entry won first place statewide, his poster was sent on to Regional competition where it again won first place in his division. Brian's poster now continues on to national competition where it will compete with seven other regional winners.

All of the posters were to be based on a Woodsy Owl (environmental) theme or Smokey Bear (fire prevention) theme and use either Smokey Bear or Woodsy Owl in the picture.

Hospital construction moving forward: New admissions area now open

Beginning Wednesday, June 23, anyone coming to Charlevoix Area Hospital to be admitted, have outpatient services, or for emergency treatment, should use the hospital's new main entrance.

It is no longer necessary to visit the temporary trailer which had been placed in front of the hospital.

Inpatient admitting, outpatient surgery, laboratory and X-ray services, emergency treatment, and all other hospital services will be registered in the new Admitting Department inside the new main entrance. The Switchboard station is located inside the door for patient information and room numbers. The emergency patient and family waiting area is also located here.

Antiques to be auctioned in park

By Laurie Lounsbury

The man brings a microphone to his face, warms up the crowd with a few jokes and amusing anecdotes, then with the quick timing of a true professional, he launches into his routine. This is not stand up comedy in the park. This is Dennis Kubesh, auctioneer, and his routine is auctioning. Kubesh is one of the most widely respected auctioneers in northern Michigan. His particular skill is selling antique collectibles, but he does it with his own spin of style and panache, so that the sales process becomes a form of entertainment.

"There's more to auctioneering than just selling merchandise," Kubesh said modestly. "Kubesh will be in town Saturday, July 3, for Charlevoix's antique auction. Working with Charlevoix

Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Jacqueline Merta and local antique collectors, Kubesh came up with the idea to have an auction in Charlevoix.

"We wanted to have something for people to do here in Charlevoix over the fourth of July weekend," Merta explained. Kubesh holds similar auctions in Leelanau county on a regular basis, and said that an auction in Charlevoix seemed like a win-win situation for everyone.

Kubesh has solicited hundreds of antique items from various estates that he has liquidated. He estimated that there will be between 750 and 1,000 lots for sale at the auction, all top end goods. "It goes with the theme of Charlevoix at this time of year," Kubesh said, referring to the high quality merchandise.

Along with Kubesh's estate

White Hall guests look at Charlevoix's way of doing things

by L. Scott Swanson

A contingent of guests from White Hall visited Charlevoix last Thursday and Friday as part of mayor exchange day. June 13 and 14 a group of Charlevoix city officials had visited White Hall.

White Hall is a community with many similarities to Charlevoix. It is a community of approximately 3,500 people and is on the Lake Michigan shoreline. White Hall is located just north of Muskegon.

The guests from White Hall arrived in Charlevoix early Thursday evening in time for the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce business after hours cruise aboard the M/S Charlevoix. Following the cruise, they had dinner at Stafford's Weathered Restaurant. Friday morning, the people from White Hall had breakfast at 218 Bridge Street with Charlevoix

Mayor Dave Novotny, council member Don Meggison and his wife Helen, council member Cheri Hoffmann and City Manager Mike Wiesner.

Horton Bay:

The ever popular Horton Bay Parade will begin at 1 p.m. Sunday, July 4th. Come early, park far away.

The theme this year is the mysteries of the Horton Bay Triangle. The points of the triangle are at Charlevoix, Petoskey and Boyne Falls. Horton Bay is at the epicenter. All kinds of missing things and missing people have turned up and will be in the parade.

Following the tour there was a one-hour meeting at City Hall in which Charlevoix city officials explained the city's administrative structure, budgeting process, projects and goals.

Norm Ullman, a council member from White Hall, said he was impressed by Charlevoix's budgeting process, particularly some of the charts and graphs used to explain how city tax dollars are allocated.

Following the morning meetings, the group began a tour aboard the Charlevoix County Transit Department trolley. Sights pointed out on tour route included Ferry Avenue Beach, the street department building, the new electric substation, local cemeteries, the airport and the softball and Little League fields.

During lunch at Alexanders, the guests from White Hall talked with department heads from various city departments. Ullman said that the mayor exchange visits provide an opportunity to exchange information about what works in different communities. As an example, when told about discussion of building a recreational trail between Charlevoix and Petoskey, Ullman said that there is a bicycle trail between White Hall and Montague and that it has been a wonderful addition for both communities. In regard to discussion between the City of Charlevoix and Hayes Township regarding ambulance services, Ullman said that White Hall and some other area governmental agencies have established an ambulance district which has been very successful.

Friday afternoon the driving tour continued with city recreation director Ike Boss providing narration. Sights shown to the guests included the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course, Depot Beach, the City entrance sign, the Charlevoix Industrial Park, Mount McSaubia Recreation area and Lake Michigan Beach. The tour concluded with a tour of the sewage treatment plant and a tour of the water treatment plant.

The Mayor Exchange program is coordinated by the Michigan Municipal League.

Recall election petition certified

Signatures on a petition to recall second ward city council representative Ted Felter have been approved and now the issue will be in the hands of second ward voters. Last week the city and county clerk's offices finished verifying the signatures and concluded that there were 116 valid signatures. Only 110 were needed. The Charlevoix election committee now has until July 8 to set the date for a special election. That election must be scheduled to occur within 60 days.

People who circulated the recall petition have said that Felter is unavailable to discuss issues of concern with his constituents.

While conceding that he works long hours and is a single man and not always at home, Felter has said he feels he is doing a good job as a council member and has been willing to discuss concerns with second ward voters.

If second ward voters recall Felter, his seat on the council will be filled at the next election. However, the council will have the option of appointing someone to fill the seat prior to the election.

According to the county clerk's office, the recall election will probably take place by itself, rather than in conjunction with another election.

items, local antique collectors will also be displaying and selling items. Collector Don Kelly of Kelly's Refinishing will bring some of his quality items to the auction. "We'll be doing something fun for the people in town," Kelly said of the auction. Kelly spoke glowingly of Kubesh. "He's a class auctioneer, a real professional," said Kelly. "He has a lot of fun, jokes around, and talks about each piece," he added, describing Kubesh's style.

Marsha Trimmer, a collector and owner of Stonehedge Antiques is going to be assisting Kubesh at the auction as a handler. "Dennis is a fun auctioneer. He has a great personality," Trimmer said. Kubesh doesn't waste people's time when he's holding an auction. His average rate of sales is one lot per minute.

The auction will run from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, July 3. All items to be auctioned will be displayed by 9 a.m. The auction will provide collectors with an opportunity to bid on fine art, doll collections, china collections, firearms, and a host of other antique items. It should also provide people with good, fast-paced entertainment.

Visiting city officials from White Hall viewed Charlevoix's municipal docks with special interest since, like Charlevoix, White Hall is a lakeshore community with a municipal marina.

Half people took a walking tour of downtown Charlevoix. Among the things pointed out on the tour were the pier project, channel walkway, underbridge walkway, Hoffmann Park, the municipal marina and Odmark Pavilion.

While on the tour, the White Hall and Charlevoix officials chatted about various similarities between the communities and some of the projects Charlevoix has planned. Like Charlevoix, White Hall has a municipal marina. Among the projects Wiesner discussed with his counterpart from White Hall during the downtown tour were Charlevoix's new sidewalks and plans to install an irrigation system in downtown parks.

Following the tour there was a one-hour meeting at City Hall in which Charlevoix city officials explained the city's administrative structure, budgeting process, pro-

Letters to the editor

Chamber board supports present City administration

Editor,

The undersigned comprise the Board of Directors of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. In that capacity, we represent approximately 450 area businesses, the majority of which are located within the City of Charlevoix and immediate vicinity.

The primary focus of the Chamber of Commerce is commerce. Specifically, we work to promote the growth and retention of all facets of business within the Charlevoix area. In as much as your publication is supported by advertising dollars, I am certain that you would agree with us that having a strong business community is beneficial to the entire community. In working with and promoting commercial endeavors, the Chamber Board closely monitors the various governmental units. We regularly attend meetings of the Charlevoix School Board, the Charlevoix Township Board and various county boards and commissions. We pay particularly close attention to the Charlevoix City Council because its actions directly impact virtually every business enterprise in the Charlevoix area. Over the past few months, it is one were to only attend City Council meetings and sit through the public comment portion you would leave with the feeling that the City was in chaos, its infrastructure crumbling and its emergency services in complete disarray. This portrait of the state of affairs of the City of Charlevoix is not only misleading, it is completely false.

No one can argue that the mayor, the members of the Charlevoix City Council, the various department heads and all of the City employees are dedicated and work long, hard hours. A few people, however, only seem to want to criticize or overlook completely the results of those long hours and hard work. Very simply, the City of Charlevoix is one of the finest communities in the State of Michigan in which to live, work, and play. Not only is Charlevoix the envy of the surrounding communities but committees from communities in neighboring states have come here to study Charlevoix and to learn why it has been so successful. No matter how many different explanations you can cite for Charlevoix's success, the foundation for that success can be directly attributed to the dedicated efforts of the mayor and the Charlevoix City council and the various department heads.

The list of the mayor's and City Council's accomplishments over the last ten years is so long that it could literally fill your entire publication. (Perhaps it might be nice if you would highlight a few of those accomplishments each week - just a POSITIVE suggestion.) Those accomplishments not only benefit the business community, but add to the quality of life of everyone who lives in the City.

For example, the City created a Downtown Development Authority (DDA) which is the envy of every surrounding community. At this moment, both East Jordan and Petoskey are attempting to create their own DDAs in order to accomplish what Charlevoix has been doing for the last several years.

The City's airport has been expanded to the point where it is now the envy of Northern Michigan, all with little cost to local taxpayers. Along this vein, the Charlevoix City Manager is nothing less than a master at obtaining federal and state grants in order to improve and expand upon the City's facilities. In fact, since 1983, he has succeeded in obtaining nearly 6.3 million dollars in State and Federal Grants with which to improve Charlevoix. One need only look at the improvements at Ferry Beach and Depot Beach to appreciate these improvements. While traveling to view those beaches you should notice how beautiful the streets and sidewalks are because the City has rebuilt and/or resurfaced many miles of streets and sidewalks over the last ten years. Along those streets, the City has planted approximately 750 trees while earning the award "Tree City USA" in 1987. The municipal golf course is simply magnificent. The City's police and fire departments have been vastly improved and should be the pride of the community. The list of accomplishments could go on and on. We believe that these accomplishments are directly attributable to the efforts of the dedicated mayor, City Council and its administrators.

It is incredible to us that various members of the community and portions of the media continue to attempt to portray Charlevoix as anything less than a wonderful place in which to live and work. It is very discouraging to those who volunteer their time and energy in order to promote this wonderful community that a few negative members of the public are rewarded for their efforts with so much free publicity and "praise". Meanwhile, people who work long and hard in order to promote the community, and actually come up with solutions to problems rather than just criticism, are rewarded for their efforts by being subjected to verbal and written criticism on an almost daily basis. Imagine the impact this

In my wildest dreams I never expected the Mountain to go to Mo-hammed! But that's almost what happened to me when a real San Francisco Italian Restaurant opened in my neck of the woods. For those of you who don't know it, I spent the happiest years of my teen life in San Francisco. Since leaving the city of fine restaurants, I have often hoped to order a really good dish of pasta, only to be disappointed. But no more! Monte Bianco has opened its doors on the Charlevoix Boyne City Road.

Owners Mary and John Kelly — he's the native San Franciscan — have remodeled the old Nordic Bar. Both have had many years of experience in the restaurant business — hostessing, waitressing, bartending, and also as former owners of J.P. Kelly's in S.F.'s financial district. They knew exactly what they wanted. The ambiance had to be clean, bright and contemporary to complement the beautiful food created by their two Thai chefs, Boz Jinparu and sous chef, Man Chirushroen.

Their menu offers eight pasta dishes including angelhair with grilled prawns in a spicy red curry sauce; ravioli with shrimp in basil, cream and vodka sauce; and a mixed grill of lamb chops, filet of veal and medallion of beef.

The espresso machine also came from San Francisco. "We order the coffee beans from the Graffco Coffee Co. and the chocolate for our Mocha drinks from the Ghiradelli Chocolate Factory." Mary tells me. (I don't have to close my eyes to recall the heavenly fragrance of Ghiradelli's as I trotted off to school in the mornings.)

Chef Boz came to San Francisco from Bangkok. He worked for ten years at Amilio's restaurant in North Beach, where he learned the Italian cuisine under a Japanese chef. Yes, the world is shrinking.

Everyone asks Mary, "How did you happen to land on the Charlevoix-Boyne City Road?" and she replies with a genuine smile, "My brother has a place north of Harbor Springs in Goodhart, and we visited here every fall on our vacation. We've been looking for the right place for the past three or four years."

She points to the ceiling, "I bought the lighting fixtures two and a half years ago and they've been stored at my brother's until now. Chef Boz visited the area with us and he really loves it as much as we do. He's a skier so we think he will enjoy the winters here. We plan to be open year 'round except from St. Patrick's Day to May 1."

"Have you done any advertising?" I asked Mary.
"No we haven't. We did have an after-hours party for the Boyne City Chamber of Commerce. All our business has been word of mouth. Many of the local restaurants, like Pete and Micky's, have been so supportive. Wes, of the Rowe Inn has been most gracious. Terry Left of the Villager has been very helpful with information. We are extremely gratified and appreciative of the reception we have received in the community since we opened on May 25."

The small restaurant that seats 62, even has a San Francisco transplant, Shanna Strasberg working here as a waitress.

"Forgive me for saying this," I confide to Mary, "If only you had the real sour dough bread..."

"Oh, yes," she sighs. "San Francisco is bread heaven, isn't it?"
But sitting in the black and white restaurant, with a burgundy and charcoal carpet, heavy brass rails and mirrors to capture light and add dimension, Monte Bianco, even without that crusty, golden San Francisco sour dough bread, may be a bit of heaven for many of us this year.

negative criticism must have on a businessman seeking to find a place to locate a new business.

It seems that the majority of the residents and employers of the Charlevoix area do not take all of this negative criticism seriously. It is almost as though those of us who have been silent this long feel that the negative comments and criticism are nothing more than amusing stories to discuss over coffee. This is, however, a very inaccurate impression of the impact which this negative criticism is having. The business community in general and the dedicated hard-working mayor, members of the City Council and the City's employees in particular will surely suffer if this trend continues. It is, therefore, imperative that we voice our opinion and let the City know that we appreciate their efforts. It takes more than geography to create and maintain a community as wonderful as Charlevoix. It is time that we recognize the efforts of the people who are responsible for making Charlevoix a beautiful place to live and work. Only quality leaders and administrators will be able to keep Charlevoix ahead of the competition. It is time that the people of Charlevoix recognize the efforts of its hardworking dedicated mayor and City council and acknowledge the intelligence and dedication of the City's department heads and let them know that you appreciate their job well done.

On behalf of our members, the Charlevoix area business community, we say thank you.

Sincerely,

Heeres 50th

Marion & Bud Herres

Theodore (Bud) and Marion Heeres of Charlevoix will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house Saturday, July 24, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix.

The event will be hosted by their children, Charlie and Lauri Thomhill of Lansing; Ken and Ruth Ann Heeres of Maryland; Tom and Karen Burn of Washington; Rich and Sue Heeres of Battle Creek; and their seven grandchildren.

Bud and Marion (Potter) were married in Barnard Church on December 4, 1943.

Bud served in the U.S. Navy and worked at several area garages as an auto mechanic. He retired from the Charlevoix school district in 1986 where he was supervisor of transportation.

Marion, a full time mother while their children were small, was employed by Weathershield Products.

Bud and Marion are members of the Community Reformed Church. Bud is a member of the church choir. He continues to repair cars. Marion volunteers her time at the Rainbow shop. They both enjoy traveling and seeing their grandchildren.

Vietnam soldiers reunited

Greg Karr & Gene Farcas

When Gene Farcas answered his phone last week and a voice said, "This is Greg Karr," Farcas didn't have to stop and scratch his head to remember the person that went with the name. He was instantly taken back to another time and place. The time was 22 years ago, and the place was Vietnam. Farcas and Karr were Marine Corps buddies in the First Marine Division. Farcas hadn't seen or heard from Karr since their 12 month tour of duty ended.

Karr, his wife Sandy and their two daughters had planned to take a trip from their home in Orland Park, Illinois to Mackinac Island. Farcas's name came up in a discussion of their trip with another Vietnam veteran and friend. Karr's friend told him that Farcas lived somewhere in northern Michigan - it might be worth a try to look him up. When Karr got to the Holiday Inn in Petoskey, he opened up the phone book and promptly found Farcas' name. That's when he placed the call to his long lost friend.

Karr, his family, and Farcas got together in Charlevoix after the Mackinac Island trip. "It's just great seeing someone you haven't seen in 22 years," Karr said. One thing led to another, and now Karr and Farcas are planning a reunion of Vietnam veteran friends in the Chicago area.

Fashion show to help hospital

"Showcase of Fashions," a benefit luncheon and fashion show scheduled for Saturday, July 17, at One Water Street in Boyne City is being sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild to benefit the hospital's building program.

Rebecca Hancy, Guild president, says, "This year's fashion show will be bigger and better. We'll feature more clothes and more stores than last year." Fashions suited to women of all ages, figures, and types of wear, will be presented by 17 area stores.

Hancy says, "The money raised from this event will go toward satisfying the Guild's $25,000 five-year pledge to the building campaign. It's a chance to show your support for the hospital and have a good time, too."

Tickets are $15 and include tax and up. Tickets are available at Don's IGA and the Weathervane, in Charlevoix; One Water Street, Boyne City, and the E.J. Shoppe in East Jordan. For further information call the Fund Development Office at Charlevoix Area Hospital at 547-4024.

Above: The Charlevoix Community Church of God had a brief dedication ceremony following services Sunday morning to dedicate the church's new bell tower. The tower was constructed in honor of Delora Richardson, a lady who served the church in many ways for a number of years and died earlier this year.

Right: Rev. Bruce Hamilton watches as Mike Veenstra and Bill Lusk ring the bell in the Community Church of God's new bell tower.

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

Do you remember the little stone church on West Hurlbut? Back in the fifties we had a bell up in its steeple that pealed its call to worship each and every Lord's day. In 1974, when the sanctuary was remodeled, the bell was taken down and put into storage. Its voice was gone but not forgotten.

Earlier this year, when the Lord called a very special saint home to Heaven, my church family decided it might be nice to bring the bell back in honor of this beloved person. Drawings were made. Ideas were discussed. Mike Veenstra and Bill Lusk put the plan into action. A welder was engaged to repair the damage that the passing of time tends to hit all things with. Lumber was ordered. Postholes were literally carved out of the rocky ground.

About midway through the construction process, Rev. Bill Wood, pastor of the church when the bell was originally acquired, stopped by for a visit. He told of taking some men over to Mancelona to get the bell from a Methodist church that was being torn down. It was fascinating to realize that "our bell" had been calling folks to worship for probably a century.

The Sunday before last, just before our worship began, I opened the tower door and pulled the rope to let the bell sing out for the first time in almost twenty

In an age where so many things have changed, perhaps it is time to restore some time honored traditions. Bells sounding the call to worship have been reminders of God's faithfulness for generations. Bells marking the passing of loved ones have caused us all to stop and think. Bells celebrating the beginning of a marriage have been cause for celebration.

Yes, admittedly, the "newness" of having a bell will probably cause us to ring it at every important church occasion for awhile. But I hope the newness doesn't go away. God is good all the time and we have been awful about letting the world push that goodness aside. When a severe crisis comes along in your life, where do you turn to for help? We need reminders to look up not down or around. We need reminders to look within and value the faith we have in Jesus Christ.

Listen for the sound of church bells this Sunday. Several congregations have them. When you hear their call, be reminded and give thanks for the faithful love of the Lord that is at work in every believer's life.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

Inspirational singer to perform in East Park on July Fourth

Orcen, a female vocalist and songwriter, will be featured in an Inspiration in the Park Concert at East Park in downtown Charlevoix on Sunday evening, July 4, at 6 p.m. The concert will also feature audience participation in singing songs of praise and worship accompanied by the Worship Team from Charlevoix Assembly of God under the direction of Steve and Sara Stargardt.

Orcen is known for her spontaneous humor, sensitive songwriting and dynamic stage performance. She started playing guitar in the 7th grade and is self-taught for the most part. Her first album was recorded and released in 1980, the second in December of 1989. In addition to traveling throughout the United States sharing her music and ministry, Orcen serves as the Coordinator of Student Ministries at Spring Arbor College in Spring Arbor, Michigan.

Everyone is invited to the concert in East Park on Sunday, July 4 at 6 p.m.

Celebrant Singers to perform at Charlevoix Assembly of God

Jon Stemkoski's Celebrant Singers, an internationally known Christian music ministry will present a community-wide concert Thursday, July 8, at 7 p.m., at Charlevoix Assembly of God. The concert is free of charge although a free-will offering will be taken.

Concert attendees will be treated to contemporary Christian music, praise and worship, and personal witness and ministry. Featuring ten singers and a twelve-piece orchestra, Celebrant Singers will inspire and bless as they share the Gospel of Jesus Christ through a musical celebration.

Celebrant Singers have traveled through all 50 states and 52 foreign countries and have sung to more than 4 million people in live concerts and countless others via broadcast media. Nations of ministry include India, Iran, Egypt, East & West Africa, Latin America, all parts of Europe (including the former Eastern Bloc), Hong Kong, the Philippines, and most recently Cuba.

Everyone is invited - Thursday, July 8, 7 p.m. at Charlevoix Assembly of God Church - two miles south of US 31 on M-66.

Churches sponsor free comic strip

Five churches from around Northern Lower Michigan are co-sponsoring a free comic.

The "Cardinal Adventures" comic strip, written and drawn by a northern Michigan artist and printed by Central Printing of Gaylord, is sponsored by the Assembly of God, Gaylord; Community Church of God, Charlevoix; Friendship Church, Gaylord; Mount Hope Lutheran Church, Grayling; and Vanderbilt Community Church, Vanderbilt.

"Cardinal Adventures" is a full color, eight-page comic in a Sunday comics newspaper-style format. It offers readers a suspenseful adventure along with a Christian message. The current month's issue is entitled "Night of the Nephilim," and is based on accounts in the Books of Numbers and Deuteronomy in the Bible.

The comic debuted as a black and white strip in the pages of Gaylord's "Northern Star" shopping guide in 1990 and moved on to its own publication last summer. Over 4600 copies were released in Alpena, Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Crawford, Emmet, Montmorency, Oscoda, Otsego and Presque Isle Counties in 1992.

"Cardinal Adventures" is available locally at Charlevoix Bookstore and Central Drug in Charlevoix.

and facial plastic and reconstructive surgery specialist

"I think the most rewarding part of my work is facial plastic and reconstructive surgery. When you can make people feel better about how they look, you know you have affected their lives in a very positive way." Dr. Borovik says.

Dr. Borovik is now performing facial plastic and reconstructive surgery, as well as ear, nose and throat surgery at Charlevoix Area Hospital. He is a member of the American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery, the American Academy of Otolaryngology, and the American Medical Association. He is board certified by the American Board of Otolaryngology. He is a 1982 graduate of the Chicago Medical School and served his general surgery internship at Michael Reese Medical Center in Chicago. His residency in otolaryngology head and neck surgery was done at St. Louis University from 1983-87.

"Even though my practice is limited to ear, nose and throat surgery, and facial plastic reconstructive surgery, I treat the whole person. I try to understand my patients' emotional needs, as well as medical needs. No one needs to be shy about wanting to improve their looks."

Face lifts, eye lifts, nasal reconstruction, chin implants, cosmetic ear surgery, and dermabrasions are now a discreet and confidential service of Dr. Borovik and Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Dog dropping problem: The City steps in

By L. Scott Swanson

To each his own. Perhaps nowhere is that phrase more applicable than when referring to dog owners and their pets' droppings. In recent weeks, the Charlevoix City Council has heard complaints of dog droppings on city beaches. In response to those complaints, the council has asked city attorney Jim Young to draft an ordinance which would require dog owners to have their dog on a leash when not on their own property and to clean up dog droppings or be charged with a misdemeanor.

The discussion began last month when a local resident complained that his child had stepped in a dog pile while playing at Ferry Beach. Currently, the city has no ordinance mandating that dogs be kept on leashes or that dog owners clean up after their dogs. During the time since the complaint, city staff members investigated options for dealing with the problem and at the June 28 council meeting, city manager Mike Wiesner outlined some possible solutions. The three possibilities he discussed were: 1. Not restricting dogs from running on the beaches, but requiring dog owners to clean up after the dogs or face a $50 fine; 2. Banning dogs from beaches and the ball field and requiring clean up or a $50 fine; 3. Banning dogs from all city parks and beaches and requiring clean up or a $50 fine.

Wiesner noted that each of the three possibilities has both pros and cons.

Young, mayor Dave Novotny and some of the council members noted that dog problems are not confined to public parks and beaches. They said there have also been problems with people taking their dogs for walks and allowing the dogs to relieve themselves in other people's front yards.

Council members also voiced concern about dogs being unleashed. The specific concerns were that unleashed dogs have the potential to bite people or bowl over small children.

Monday evening's discussion was preliminary, but the council instructed Young to come up with a draft ordinance and bring it before the council at a later meeting. At that time the council will entertain further discussion and public comments.

In other matters at Monday's meeting the council accepted a proposed contract with Charlevoix Area Hospital to construct a larger water main to the hospital. The water main is necessary to give the hospital better fire protection. The larger water main will also improve service to some homes near the hospital. According to terms of the contract, the hospital will pay the $177,000 cost of the project. By Sept. 1 of 1994, the city will reimburse the hospital 18 percent of the cost ($31,860) at no interest. The council also approved a bid of $9,092.50 by Ranger Engineering of Charlevoix to do the engineering on the project.

Another bid which was accepted by the council Monday evening was for the demolition and restoration of the old light plant building and site on Ferry Avenue. The building was destroyed by fire earlier this year. The council accepted a bid of $74,955 from Harbor Excavating to clear the debris and restore the site. Restoration of the site will include improving a basketball court currently on the site and adding a new basketball court next to the old one. The city's insurer will pay $44,950 while the city will pay the remaining $30,000.

The city council chose not to accept a recommendation from the city planning commission to change the city's weed control ordinance. Currently the ordinance says that the city can either require property owners to mow, or have the city mow and bill property owners, if weeds on the lot are more than 16 inches high. The planning commission recommended changing the height to 12 inches.

Council member Ted Felter expressed skepticism asking Wiesner if he really felt the change is necessary. Wiesner replied that he wasn't the one who made the recommendation and that it came from the planning commission.

"I think it's a waste of time," Felter said.

The remainder of the council concurred and no action was taken. However council members Cheri Hoffman and Butch Russell said that if the planning commission feels there are compelling reasons to change the ordinance, they would be happy to listen to those reasons.

Computers infiltrate Charlevoix and Emmet homes

New club formed and bulletin boards grow popular

By L. Scott Swanson

If you listen closely, perhaps you can hear it. It's a click, click, clicking noise and it's getting to be more and more common in northern Michigan. Computer users are tapping their keyboards and communicating with each other on networks called bulletin boards. Last year there was only one bulletin board in the Charlevoix and Emmet County area. Now, there are six.

Robert Thompson of Petoskey is the system operator of one of those bulletin boards. He is also president of the Northern Michigan Area Computer Club (NOMACC). Although the bulletin board is based in and the computer club meets in Petoskey, Thompson says many of the people involved are from Charlevoix. As an example, he notes that one of the bulletin board users is the Charlevoix Middle School. The middle school logged on after one of the middle school students told the instructor about the bulletin board.

The bulletin board Thompson operates is called the Great North bulletin board. Computer owners use the bulletin board to talk to each other and exchange files and software. Software is a computer term for programs which run the hardware (computers and related machinery). The Great North bulletin board allows only the exchange of freeware and shareware (software which is not commercially copyrighted). The Great North bulletin board is also linked to other bulletin board services. Thompson said the two most popular hook-ins on the Great North bulletin board are the IBM users conference and the Rush Limbaugh conference.

As well as being the system operator, Thompson is also a frequent user of the bulletin board. "I'm afraid I often stay up until one or two in the morning," Thompson confessed.

To link up to a bulletin board system a computer needs a computer and a modem. A modem is a communication box which allows one computer to be linked with another via a telephone line. Computer prices fluctuate, but at the moment a person could probably buy a pretty good computer and modem for somewhere between $1,500 and $2,500. Thompson estimates that in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties there are probably between 400 and 500 people who have computers in their homes. Of those, about half have modems. He also pointed out that communicating between computers is getting to be more popular because data compression programs and faster modems are making the process cheaper and faster.

NOMACC, the computer club, is in its early stages - organizing just two months ago. Presently, it has about 50 members. Thompson says the members come from all over Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. Many of them are young people, but there are also some father/son combinations and some older people who just want to know about computers, because they have grandkids using them.

"I hope that when NCMC (North Central Michigan College) starts up in the fall that we will attract some students," Thompson remarked.

The club meets once a month and

Robert Thompson is the president of NOMACC (Northern Michigan Area Computer Club) and also the system operator for the Great North computer bulletin board. In the past year five new computer bulletin boards have been started in the area.

each month will discuss some particular aspect of computers. Recent topics have been modems, bulletin boards, graphics and the basics of different computer systems. The club is the computer version of nondenominational - meaning that it includes IBM and other DOS based, Apple, Amiga and Commodore users.

"It's a pretty nice little club. The meetings aren't very long, but we have a lot of fun," Thompson said.

In addition to the informational meetings, the club would like to set up a computer swap-meet sometime in August or September.

People interested in the computer club may contact Thompson either by calling 348-9706 or calling the bulletin board at 348-7525. Other bulletin board numbers in the area are: Bye Bank, 348-3303 between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m.; Northern Data, 347-00942; Byte Master, 535-2723; Tree Shaper, 348-8161; and Micro-net, 547-0318.

Melissa Cox selected to Class C Coaches All-State softball team

Melissa Cox of Charlevoix has been named to the Class C All State softball team by the Michigan High School Softball Coaches Association.

Cox, a senior catcher, batted .506, scored 34 runs, had 30 RBI and stole 23 bases. She will be playing softball at Aquinas College in the fall.

Cox has started for the Rayders for four years. During the past three years the Rayders have averaged 20 wins per season. Cox was named to the All Conference and All District teams four times and to the All Region team twice. She led the Rayders in hits for four years, batting lead off this past season. At Aquinas she anticipates splitting time between catching and the outfield.

Cox is Charlevoix's second All State softball player in the past two seasons. Stacey Tilton was named to the All State team last year.

Jim Bowman of Charlevoix receives Congressional tribute

(Editor's note: The following letter and information were brought into our office earlier this week and concern a Congressional tribute paid to Charlevoix native Jim Bowman. Bowman graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1951. He played football at Charlevoix High School and later at the University of Michigan. Following college, he entered the Air Force where he became a pilot and later began a career in athletic coaching and administration at the U.S. Air Force Academy.)

Editor,
This past week I received a letter from Jim Bowman who grew up in Charlevoix and a copy of a letter from Paul E. Gillmor, member of Congress. Would you please print this letter.

Jim has been a personal friend of mine since his boyhood days and I am very honored to know him, his dedication to the Air Force, his ethics, and his pride in our country.

Sincerely,
Gordon N. Neff

TRIBUTE TO JIM BOWMAN
HON. PAUL E. GILLMOR of Ohio
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to a very special individual who will be visiting my district this weekend. Jim Bowman, Assistant Athletic Director for Candidate Counseling at the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Jim Bowman has been a part of the U.S. Air Force Academy since 1958. Known to his many friends as simply "Bo," he has served in his current position since 1975, scouring the country to recruit those few athletes who have both the athletic and scholastic ability to excel in the elite, winning program known as Air Force athletics.

Bo has indeed touched the lives of countless young people, including many from Ohio, challenging them to push themselves to the limits of their abilities. The fruits of his labor can be seen not only on the playing fields at the United States Air Force Academy, but in the squadrons of the U.S. Air Force, in the boardrooms of American industry, and in the classrooms of American schools.

Mr. Speaker, while Jim Bowman's accomplishments in his career in intercollegiate athletics indeed sets the standard for the term "winner," his demeanor, his forthrightness, and his way of doing business also sets the standard for the term "class."

I ask my colleagues to join me in saluting Jim Bowman for his contributions to the U.S. Air Force Academy, to wish him and his lovely wife Mac good health, and to welcome him back home to the Midwest.

Letters to the editor

Historical Society should have taken stronger stance to save water tower

Editor,

Shame on the Charlevoix Historical Society! Geoff Reynolds, their executive director, finally found the courage to come forth, at the June 21 Council meeting, emphasizing he was representing only himself. He admitted they have the knowledge to show that our water tower is a historic structure. Also, they know several organizations which could be approached for funding to save it.

But it was too late! The council had already made up their minds to destroy this landmark. No new information, nor argument short of a check in hand, was going to sway them.

Then the Society's president, Mr. Bud Kohler, spoke to the council to re-emphasize that the Charlevoix Historical Society did not take a stand one way or the other regarding saving this admitted historical structure. He suggested we "take lots of pictures - because it's coming down."

What is the purpose of a Historical Society if not to at least TRY to save its community's history? If they felt they were too involved with the Depot building, or they are too politically timid, we certainly let them know we were willing to do their job on this one. But they chose to ignore us, and withhold the names of possible sources of funds we were seeking - that is contemptible!

Mr. Kohler should change the name of his society to the Charlevoix Historical Photo Society. Shame!

Sincerely,
Larry Freedman

Worker health grants available

Michigan workers lead the nation in death from chronic disease. But there is something that can be done to reduce the incidence of chronic disease and improve worker health. Employers may apply for up to $3000 in grant funds for screening and risk reduction programs at the worksite.

Funded services include blood pressure and cholesterol tests and control, fitness tests, health risk survey, weight loss, health eating and smoking cessation. Services must be provided by a vendor approved by the Michigan Department of Public Health (MDPH). Public and private worksites are eligible to apply, but those with high risk employees, little or no wellness programming and fewer than 500 employees will receive higher priority.

These grants are part of the Worksite and Community Health Program (WCHP) of the Michigan Department of Public Health and are administered by District Health Department #3 in the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego.

Application forms and vendor lists are available from the health department and are brief and easy to complete. Grants will be awarded in August for services to be provided in September, 1993. It is expected that this program will continue in fiscal year 1993-94.

For more information call or write Ann Smith at District Health Department #3, 220 West Garfield, Charlevoix, MI 49720, phone 547-6523.

Artist to help raise funds for Center

Come meet "The Real Nancy Drew." She isn't the young, female detective many of us used to read about. She is Nancy Swan Drew, mixed-media artist, nationally syndicated cartoonist, free-lance writer, and business owner.

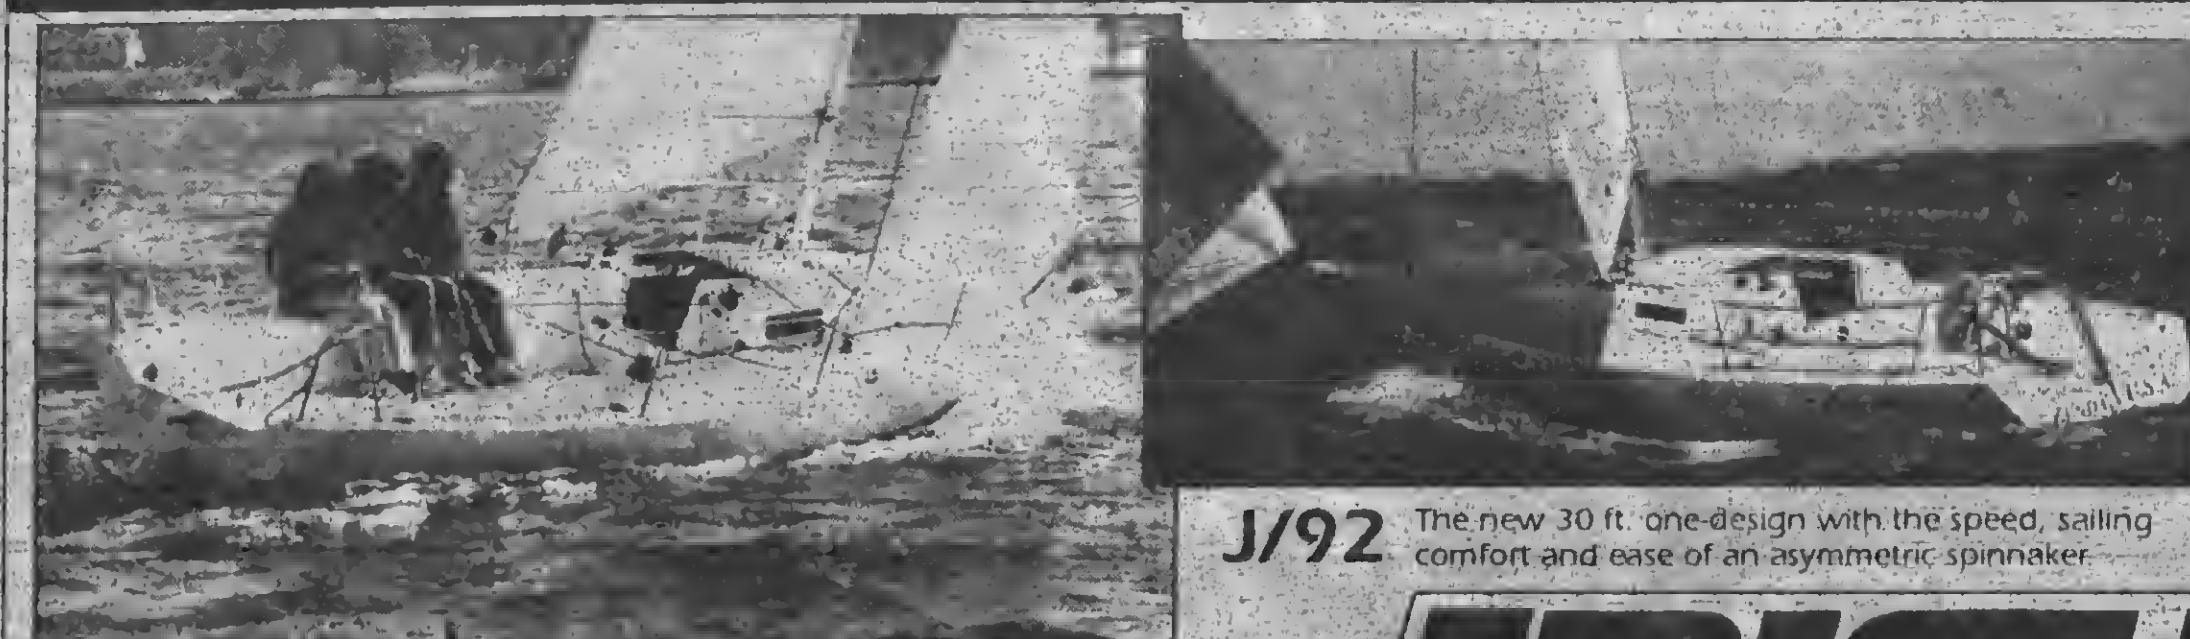

Local people may have seen Nancy's work at her store "The Real Nancy Drew" on Main Street in Harbor Springs, but all of us have an opportunity to experience her creative whimsy at an upcoming benefit for the Women's Resource Center. Because this is a fundraiser, Drew is offering some great bargain prices for her work.

A silent auction involving more than 60 pieces of her work will take place Wednesday, July 21, 1993 from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Stafford's Perry Hotel in downtown Petoskey. (You will be able to preview all of these pieces beginning at 2 p.m. and continuing through the auction. Winners of each piece in the silent auction will be announced at 9 p.m.)

Bidding tickets must be reserved by calling the Women's Resource Center at 616/347-0067 or sending a check for $10 to them at 423 Porter Street, Petoskey by Monday, July 20, 1993. The price of these tickets includes Stafford's out-of-this-world hors d'oeuvres and a chance to win blue chip door prizes.

Rabies are now rare, but precautions should still be taken

Although rabies seldom result in human fatalities in the United States, it remains a potentially dangerous public health problem. Each year more than 20,000 Americans have to undergo antirabies treatment as a result of exposure to potentially rabid animals. Other major problems associated with animal bites include cost of treatment, disfigurement, infection, fear and worry, and death.

Since 1986, there has been only one positive case of animal rabies (skunk) in the northern eight counties of lower Michigan. In 1991, 36 cases of animal rabies were reported in Michigan (32 bats; 2 skunks; 2 dogs). In 1992, 15 cases were reported (10 bats, 1 cow, 1 dog, 1 goat, 1 horse). Other warm blooded wild (coyote, skunks, raccoons, fox, woodchucks, bobcats, and other carnivores), and domestic (live stock, dogs and cats) animals are also capable of transmitting the disease. Rodents and lagomorphs (rabbits and hares), almost never call for antirabies treatment. The last two reported cases of human rabies in Michigan occurred in 1948 and 1983.

Rabies is a virus found in the saliva of rabies infected animals. If an infected animal bites your pet or you, the infection is transmitted and affects the nervous system. Even a break in the skin could absorb the rabies virus on contact with the infected saliva. Rabies is a fatal disease, but can be prevented.

Every pet owner has the responsibility of helping to prevent rabies outbreaks. This responsibility includes cooperating with community sponsored rabies control programs, immunizing pets, keeping pets under control, understanding the basic signs of rabies, and knowing what to do if bitten by an animal. If you have a pet be watchful of changed behavior and call the veterinarian for advice.

Individuals must refrain from handling stray, injured, and sick animals, wild or domestic. Parents should urge children to avoid and not handle unknown dogs and cats, bats, skunks, raccoons, foxes, or other wild animals that are found. Do not attempt to rehabilitate or keep wild animals as pets. Other serious diseases besides rabies are transmitted by wild animals.

If you are bitten or scratched by an animal, please contact a physician for guidance, and notify the county animal officer. The essential measures in preventing problems following a bite or scratch includes:

1. LOCAL TREATMENT OF THE WOUND. Immediate and thorough washing of all wounds with soap and water is perhaps the most effective measure in preventing infection to include rabies. After washing the wound, rinse with water and cleanse it with a topical antiseptic.

2. EVALUATION AND TREATMENT OF THE WOUND. A physician should be contacted immediately. Evaluation and prompt treatment of bites and scratches will prevent future problems. Treatment may include further wound cleaning and care. Tetanus (Td) vaccine and antibiotics to prevent infection, and antirabies treatment if indicated.

3. ANIMAL CONFINEMENT OR TESTING. Healthy, wanted pets can be confined or observed for ten days. Unwanted or stray dogs or cats and wild animals should be destroyed and tested. Rodents (i.e. chipmunks, mice), and lagomorphs (rabbits and hares) rarely call for antirabies treatment. The state laboratory will not routinely test these animals unless the bite history is very unusual. Please contact the county animal control officer, local environmental sanitarian, or a veterinarian. DO NOT destroy the animal by shooting it in the head. Animal brains cannot be tested if damaged or left unrefrigerated and outside in hot weather.

According to Dr. Youngs, the essential measures to follow in preventing serious consequences through an animal bite are to avoid strange animals, vaccinate domestic animals, keep pets under control, notify the animal control officer when exposure occurs, cleanse all wounds thoroughly, seek prompt medical attention, confine or test animals for rabies, and contact the local environmental sanitarian if you have questions.

Heather Buckner (center) recently received this year's Charlevoix Rotary "Foot In The Door" scholarship. The $500 scholarship is presented each year to a Charlevoix High School senior who will be attending North Central Michigan College. Shown with Buckner are (left) Rotary President Bruce Hamilton and NCMC President Bob Graham. In addition to the Foot In The Door scholarship, the Charlevoix Rotary also recently awarded $100 scholarships for outstanding middle school academic achievement to Mike Post, Jess VanGuilder and Chelsea Gorkiewitz.

Barnard Grange to host potluck breakfast

The Barnard Grange will host a Fourth of July potluck breakfast. But it won't take place on the Fourth of July. Even though it is a Fourth of July breakfast, it will take place July 3. It is being called a Fourth of July breakfast because calling it a Third of July breakfast just wouldn't sound right. The potluck breakfast will begin at 8:30 a.m. July 3 at the the Grange Hall on Barnard Road. People attending are asked to bring their own table service at a dish to pass. Everyone is welcome.

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments involving Charlevoix area people.

Sara L. Ward of Charlevoix has been awarded a music scholarship to attend the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp for summer study. The scholarship was awarded by the Marshall Music Company of Lansing. Sara is the daughter of Brad and Lynda Ward.

Five Charlevoix students were named to the North Central Michigan College Dean's List for the winter semester. The five are: Christina Lindstrom, Jay C. Morris, Mark J. Newman, Sandra M. Novotny and Bonnie R. Scheels.

Two Charlevoix High School students, Sean Horton and Carrie Wakul, recently completed two weeks at an educational seminar at Alma College. The seminar was entitled "Biomedical Sciences: The Wonder, Horror and Responsibility." Students from throughout Michigan attended the seminar.

John K. Jaskierski of Charlevoix was among the winter quarter graduates of Michigan Technological University. Jaskierski received a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering.

Among the students named to the Michigan Technological University spring quarter deans list are three students from Charlevoix. They are: Michael L. Himebauch, a senior majoring in Electrical Engineering; Matthew I. Robinson, a sophomore majoring in General Engineering; James L. Zeitler, a junior majoring in Civil Engineering.

E.L. Dammann of Charlevoix will be continuing his theatre studies in the fall of 1993 at The Jacques Le Cog International School in Paris. Dammann, the son of Tom and Sara Gay Dammann of Charlevoix, is a 1989 graduate of Charlevoix High School and a student at Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, New York.

Two Charlevoix students, Marylea Haggard and Krista Martin, were among the students named to the Grand Valley State University winter semester Dean's List.

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Guy W. Gengle, son of William F. and Sue Gengle of Charlevoix, recently participated in the 10-day combined military exercise "Team Spirit - 93" conducted in the Republic of Korea. Gengle is aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Bunker-Hill, forward deployed to Yokosuka, Japan.

Gengle joined almost 100,000 personnel from all branches of the U.S. military and the Republic of Korea. Fourteen U.S. and 29 South Korean ships took part in this year's exercise. The Team Spirit land, sea and air training exercises have been held periodically since 1976 to improve the defensive readiness of the Republic of Korea. The large scale operations tested the two nations' ability to work together as they deployed large numbers of troops, equipment and supplies in and around South Korea.

An amphibious landing involved surface ships from both countries and more than 9,500 U.S. Marines.

This exercise demonstrates the Navy and Marine Corps' teams ability to respond on short notice to crises in distant lands, from the sea.

The 1991 graduate of Charlevoix High School joined the navy in June, 1991.

Beaver Island plans July Fourth celebration

Beaver Island is preparing for its annual Fourth of July celebration, complete with parades by land and sea, a carnival and fireworks over the bay. All of the events take place in metropolitan St. James.

The schedule of events is as follows:

Noon: Fourth of July Street Parade.
1 p.m.: Boat parade in the harbor.
1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.: Carnival in the center of town.
Dark: Fireworks over the harbor.

Auction to help fund Camp Quality

Camp Quality, a summer camp for children with cancer, will be hosting a fund raising auction the evening of July 10 at the Lakefront Square parking lot in downtown Boyne City. There will be a silent auction from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. and a voice auction from 7 p.m. to about 8:30 p.m.

In conjunction with the auction, restaurants from Boyne City will be providing hors d'oeuvres and Chris Martin and his band will provide music.

Admission to the auction is $5 per person. All proceeds will go toward the camp. There is no charge to the children who attend the camp. Money to run the camp comes from donations and fund raising events such as the auction.

display many talents in Charlevoix Craft Fair

By Laurie Lounsbury

The 25-year-old Charlevoix Craft Fair this Saturday in East Park will feature nearly 200 craft displays, many of which are old favorites with the Charlevoix community. But like adding zesty new spices to a popular old recipe, there will also be some unique new entries at this year's fair.

Among the innovative new exhibitors is Becky Rogalla, a Charlevoix resident who has given a whimsical, upbeat style to an enduringly practical idea. Rogalla makes peeper keepers, straps that hold sunglasses around your neck when they're not on your face. Rogalla's peeper keepers are a far cry from the plain black straps that held your grandmother's glasses around her neck. Rogalla uses neoprene rubber for the basic strap, then adds brightly colored beads, bangles, bells, and conchos. "I use whatever I can find," Rogalla says. The result is a bold, intriguing device that doubles as a functional item and sunglass neck art.

Rogalla got the idea for her peeper keepers when she found a similar item at an art gallery. The peeper keeper at the art gallery was decorated with brass beads and titanium twists. The price tag on it was $42. Rogalla loved the look but not the price tag. She decided to re-create the same look with less expensive materials and offer it at a much lower price. Rogalla

Tax bills will be low this summer

But will make up for it in the winter

By L. Scott Swanson

Property taxes and physics make for an interesting mix. Late this week, or early next week, Charlevoix taxpayers will receive their summer property tax bills. The bills will be much lower than usual.

But before anybody starts celebrating, remember one of physics more celebrated laws: For every action, there is an equal and opposite reaction. For local taxpayers, that reaction will be a winter property tax bill which is higher than usual.

In recent years summer and winter tax bills have been closer to equal. The reason for the larger disparity this year is the failure of the school's property tax proposal in June. School district voters rejected a school district request for 16.55 mills by a vote of 637 to 621. Since that time, the school board has revised the request to 14.55 mills. Voters will decide the fate of that request at an Aug. 10 election.

In recent year's half of the school district's total millage has been included on the summer tax bill and half on the winter tax bill. But since the next school election won't occur until after summer tax bills are sent out, this year only a much smaller portion of the school taxes will be included on the summer tax bill.

For taxpayers in the City of Charlevoix, last year's summer tax bill was for a total of 27.6377 mills. (See accompanying box for a definition of a mill) That broke down into 8.5 mills for city operations, 1.56 mills for city debt retirement, 4 mills for city infrastructure work and 13.5777 mills for school operations. This summer's tax bill for city residents will be for 18.0846 mills. That's 9.5531 mills less, or 65 percent of, last year's summer tax bill. It breaks down to 8.5 mills for city operations, 1.41 mills for city debt retirement, 3.66 mills for city infrastructure work and 4.6146 mills for school operations.

Last year's winter property tax bill for a resident of the City of Charlevoix was for a total of 21.3172 mills. That broke down to $5402 for county operations, 2423 for county transit, 7466 for the Grandvue Medical Care Facility, and 13.5777 mills for school operations. This year's winter tax bill for city residents (assuming voters approve the proposed school millage Aug. 10) is likely to total about 31 mills. That would be about the same millage for the three county tax categories plus 23.7792 mills for school operations.

For the owner of a home with a market value of $80,000 the approximate summer and winter tax figures will be $720 on the summer tax bill and $1,240 on the winter tax bill.

Where Property Tax Dollars Go

The following information explains by dollar amount and percentage of taxes where property tax dollars go for a city resident. Figures are based on a home with a market value of $84,478 (which is about average in the City of Charlevoix). The City tax figure is based on the 1993 millage levy. Other figures are based on 1992 millage rates. Figures were compiled by City Treasurer Rick Brandt.

| Governmental Unit | Tax dollars | Percentage |
|--------------------|-------------|------------|
| City total | $568.96 | 27.9% |
| County operations | $191.77 | 9.4% |
| County transit | $10.23 | .5% |
| Grandvue | $31.54 | 1.6% |
| Char-Em ISD | $93.37 | 4.6% |
| Charlevoix Schools | $1,147.02 | 56% |

Market value - The price a home would theoretically sell for.

State Equalized Value (SEV) - Fifty percent (half) of market value.

A mill - $1 for every $1,000 of SEV.

Total property tax - Total mills multiplied by SEV.

Son ends up following in his father's tire tracks

By Laurie Lounsbury

Joan Balch knows better than most about the expression, "Like father, like son." When Balch looks out of her kitchen window, she might see her husband Jerry working on his 1969 Camaro Rally Sport. Or she might see her son Karl working on his 1969 Camaro Super Sport. The nearly identical cars are owned by the Balch father and son team, Jerry and Karl.

The two Balch men didn't plan to have nearly identical classic cars. Jerry Balch picked up his Camaro at an auto show and swap meet in

Letters to the editor

Careys say "Thank you"

Editor,

THANK YOU FROM THE CAREYS:

It is difficult to find the words to express our deep gratitude and appreciation for all of you - our wonderful family and friends - who have been so supportive during this most trying time. From the day the tumor was diagnosed you have showered us with your love through prayers, visits, hugs, calls, flowers, cards and letters.

Your kind and encouraging words have remained with us throughout this ordeal and have been a source of great strength for us. When the burdens seem insurmountable, we remind ourselves of all of you who are fighting fight along with us and that somehow rejuvenates us and gets us through the tough times.

We are so appreciative of every one at the low office of Blakeslee, Chambers, Peterson, Dalrymple & Christopherson, who stepped in and took over the workload, and to the clients who were so understanding. We also thank those of you who helped with Topper's Painting, Inc., and kept our projects going.

Then the Charlevoix community goes one step further and organizes a benefit and sets up a benefit fund to assist us. How can we possibly begin to thank all of you for your contributions? The words "thank you" and "we love you" sound so trivial; they pale in comparison to the overwhelming feelings and emotions you have stirred within us. Special thanks must go to Steve Ager at the Argonne, Maggie and Murray, and Cliff Jones for their performances, and all those who assisted. All of you who organized the benefit went out of your way and we were - and are - so grateful. Space limitations prevent us from mentioning all of you by name but we know who you are and we are so impressed with what you did for us. What a beautiful event you put together. Once again, we were overwhelmed by the outpouring of love and support from all who attended.

Special thanks must also go to our Traverse City family and friends who made the effort to travel to Charlevoix to be a part of the benefit. We remind ourselves daily of the many blessings we have in all of you who are pulling for us. We will certainly do everything within our power not to let you down. We believe that with all of us fighting this fight together we can't lose.

From the bottom of our hearts and with all the love we have to give - thank you and we love you.

Topper and Nina Carey

Historical Society defended

Editor,

I would like to defend Geoff Reynolds and Bud Kohler from the tirade in a letter to the editor last week.

I was born and have lived in Charlevoix all my life, and was instrumental in reviving the Historical Society in 1973, and was the first president of the organization. Geoff and Bud could not speak for the Society until they had polled the membership. The Society is naturally interested in retaining old landmarks, but not at the taxpayer's expense. I believe I was two years old when the water tower was constructed and do treasure it as a landmark. But how many landmarks have vanished in the name of progress? I think I could name fifty, but they are retained in photos and documents and artifacts in the Society's files.

I will remember the howl that was raised when the city removed the drinking fountain that existed on the southeast corner of Bridge and Antrim. The Chicago Club and Belvedere along with other citizens petitioned to save it. It was a minor ailment and a great laxative. Chaucers and other people filled their jugs daily. Now we have Veterans Park in its place and the odor and stained sidewalk and fountain are gone.

When Dr. Frank Wilkenson coined the phrase "Charlevoix the Beautiful," he was thinking of the future, not the past. For in those days our waterfront was disgusting, filled with net reels, barrels of fish offal, unkept docks and ramshackle buildings with raw sewage entering Round Lake. I, for one, would never want to bring back the so-called "Good Old Days." Charlevoix is now Charlevoix The Beautiful, but it became that by progress, not sticking to the past. Is not the Weatherlane better than the Argo Milling Co.? Geoff and Bud are doing a good job. Let's think of the future and remember the past.

Sincerely
Ralph S. Hamilton

...similar taste in muscle cars

Knoxville, Tennessee in 1991. He had gone to the show on a spur of the moment decision with fellow car buffs from Charlevoix. When he got there, he fell in love with the gleaming, black and white Camaro. The car wasn't even for sale, but with persistence, Jerry talked the owner into parting with the car. The former owner watched sadly as Jerry left with the beautifully restored vehicle. "He had tears in his eyes when he sold it to me," Jerry said.

Exactly one year later, Jerry's son Karl went down to the same car show and swap meet in his 1977 Corvette. He sold his Corvette in the swap meet, then realized he'd have to buy another car in order to get back home. That's when the orange and black Camaro Super Sport caught his eye. While he spent a few minutes thinking about it, someone came along and bought the Camaro. Karl was disappointed until he spotted the same car one hour later, for sale again, but with a higher price tag. This time Karl didn't hesitate. He bought it on the spot and took it home with him.

While the cars are similar in design and appearance, they were very different in maintenance needs. Jerry's car was nearly perfectly restored. Jerry changed the rims on the car, going back to the original style, but that was about it. Karl completely rebuilt his car's engine. Karl learned a lot about auto mechanics from his father. He also has a two-year degree in automotive technology from Northwest Michigan College in Traverse City. "Most of the stuff I learned at school doesn't apply to these old cars, though," Karl said.

Jerry doesn't need to tinker with his Camaro very often, which leaves him time to work on a 1931 Model A pick-up truck that he's completely restoring. When that's done, he may get the wanderlust to find another car. "I'd like to have a 1962 Chevy SS 409," Jerry admitted.

For the time being, Karl is content with his Camaro. "I want to keep it and restore it all back to original," Karl said.

The two will continue to work on their cars for the upcoming car show this Saturday. "There's always something they can do to soup them up or make them look sharper," said Joan Balch, the understanding wife and mother.

Street rods to muscle into Charlevoix July 10

The First Annual Custom Street Rod Muscle Auto Show will be held in Charlevoix in the K-Mart parking lot Saturday, July 10, from 8 a.m. to 3:30. Trophies will be presented at 3:30. There will be a model car contest for any interested children. Door prizes will be awarded throughout the day. Grand door prizes for kids include two bikes and a radio controlled car. Ron Zednick, local racer, will be present with his racing team and car. The Charlevoix Lions Club and the Montessori school will provide food concessions.

At 6 p.m., a car cruise around Lake Charlevoix will begin at the K-Mart parking lot. A dance will be held after the cruise at K-Mart from 8:00 p.m. to midnight. Live entertainment will be provided by TNT at the dance.

The Charlevoix Street Legends Classic Car Club, the show's sponsor, expects 300 to 400 cars to attend.

Garden Club to discuss produce

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club will meet July 13 at the home of Peggy Johnson on Cedar Lane. Pauline Russell and Nancy Wood will serve as co-hostesses.

Lee Bennett of Glen's Market in Charlevoix will be the guest speaker. Bennett will discuss summer fruits and produce.

Club members Derith Lane, Rebecca Haney and Phyllis Block will give reports on the recent Garden Club convention in Kalamazoo.

Rankin - Martin

Kimberly & Michael Martin

Kimberly Elaine Rankin and Michael Dean Martin, both of Charlevoix, were married June 19 in an afternoon wedding at the Community Reformed Church on Charlevoix. One hundred and fifty guests witnessed the double ring ceremony, performed by Reverend Larry Grooters.

The bride is the daughter of Joyce and Edward Rankin of Livonia. The groom is the son of Sonja and John Martin of Charlevoix.

The church was decorated with ivy baskets filled with burgundy carnations, daisies, and baby's breath.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an off-the-shoulder, ivory gown which was full length in the back and slightly shorter in the front. The dress had a satin bodice with lace over the top, ribbon trim on the top of the bodice, and sleeves with lace tulle and ribbon over the top. The skirt of the gown was satin with layers of tulle, trimmed with thin ribbon and lace flowers. The hem was trimmed with ribbon. The veil was trimmed with matching ribbon, and adorned with pearls and satin flowers.

An organ and flute duet was performed during the ceremony.

The maid of honor was Lorette Berg of Farmington Hills, and Michelle Lay of Farmington Hills was the bridesmaid. They wore tea-length, off-the-shoulder burgundy dresses with a yolk of ivory lace. They carried flowers of burgundy carnations, ivory roses, ivy, and baby's breath.

The flower girl was Chelsea Wilmoth, the bride's niece, from Ferndale. She wore a full length burgundy dress with ivory lace around the shoulders, coordinating with the bridesmaids' dresses.

The groom's nephew, Travis Murray of Charlevoix, was the ringbearer. The best man was Brent Cole of Charlevoix. Acting as groomsmen were Ken Richardson of Farwell, Pat Avery of Charlevoix, and Bryan Jarema of Charlevoix. Ushers were Mike Otto and Randy Stittsworth.

A reception was given by the bride and groom's parents at the Belvedere Casino. Assistance was provided by Michelle Wilmoth, the bride's sister-in-law, Cal and Marsha Cheadle, and Dominique Havens. The casino was decorated with candles and flower baskets.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at the Argonne restaurant the night before the wedding.

The couple relaxed at their home on Robinson Street in Charlevoix in lieu of a wedding trip.

The bride is a 1991 graduate of Michigan State University. She works as a substitute teacher.

The groom is a 1988 graduate of Central Michigan University and works for Systems Management, which provides computer systems for the medical profession.

...1993 Craft Fair is this Saturday

also kept durability in mind when she designed her peeper keepers. She uses plastic beads, colorful paper clips, rubber spirals and other materials that will stand up to heavy use and abuse. The price of Rogalla's peeper keepers ranges from $7 to $10.

Rogalla spent the long winter building up an inventory of peeper keepers. She'll have more than 300 peeper keepers to sell at the craft fair. Each peeper keeper is unique in design. Rogalla could have saved herself time by making several peeper keepers in the same style, but she shunned that idea. "It would get mundane to do the same thing, I don't want to be a factory, so I do them all differently."

Because the peeper keepers are appealing to a broad range of ages, she makes peeper keepers in popular college colors. She has Michigan State University green and white peeper keepers along with maize and blue peeper keepers for the University of Michigan fans and students. She hopes to supply college campus stores with peeper keepers in the future, but right now she's focused on the craft fair. "I made a commitment to do this, so I'll see it through and hope it goes well," she says.

Quilter Marsy Burns isn't new to the craft fair, but her quilted back packs are. They'll be making their debut this year as the newest item in Burns' collection of quilted offerings. Burns started in the craft fair five years ago with quilt-appliqued sweatshirts. Now she makes traditional bed quilts, quilted bunnies and bears and her latest, quilted back packs.

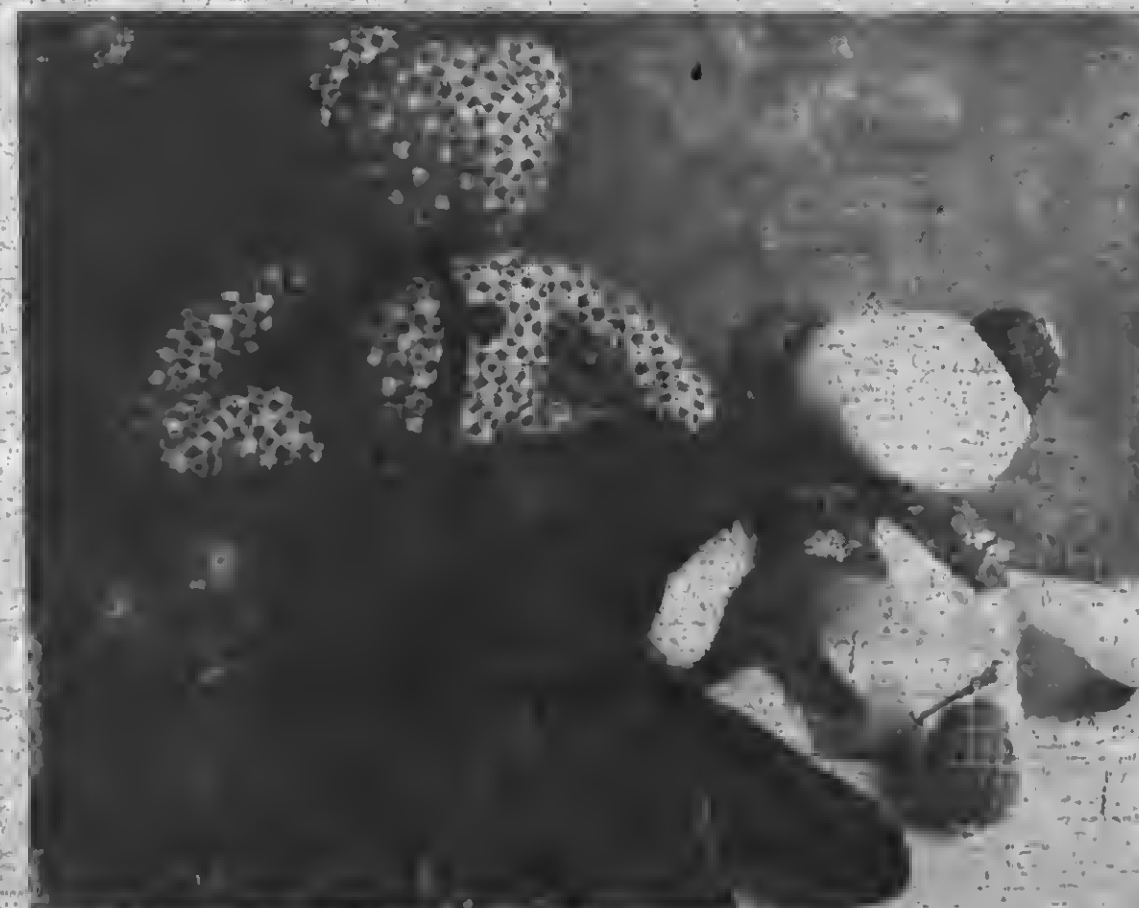

Burns uses contemporary designer fabrics for her quilted back packs, including fabric by Hoffman and R.J.R. She uses traditional as well as contemporary quilting fabrics for her other projects, but right now she's most enthused about the designer fabrics. When asked how she decides what fabrics to use, she said simply, "If something catches my eye and I like it, I'll do a quilt."

Burns started sewing as a young girl in a 4-H club. She won many awards for her sewing at the 4-H fairs. "I think that's what kept me inspired," she said.

Burns readily admits that her quilting is not done by hand. She prefers to do machine quilting on cotton fabric that can be tossed in the washing machine. "I like to make practical, usable quilts."

Construction contractor Steve LaBlance has access to a lot of wood and tools. He also has access to some extra time during the slow winter months. That's one reason he started to make pine furniture in his workshop at home. Furniture making suited LaBlance so well that he and his wife Becky started a new business, Cottage Furniture by Bonnie View. LaBlance will be entering his gleaming, white lacquered furniture in the upcoming fair.

LaBlance is helped in his new endeavor by his son, Scott, and his wife, Becky assists with the artwork and Scott joins his dad in the construction of the furniture. Each piece is hand-made of pine with a four-coat white finish applied in a semi-gloss acrylic latex paint. The styles of furniture range from traditional to adirondack and french country. LaBlance's wife said that the furniture is ideally suited for lawn and garden use. The finish on it makes it completely weatherproof. The LaBlances have opened up a retail store in Harbor Springs sell their furniture. "This is Steve's real love," Becky said of his furniture making.

Quilted bears, backpacks and sweatshirts will be among the items offered by Marsy Burns at Charlevoix's 25th annual Craft Fair this Saturday.

Charlevoix student to perform in East Jordan play

Seven-year-old York Smith, a second grader at Charlevoix Elementary School, will be on stage at East Jordan High School Auditorium this weekend with the world premiere performances of "The Promises and the Wicked Prince." Curtain time is 2 p.m. Friday and Saturday, July 9 and 10.

Tickets, available at the door 30 minutes prior to curtain, are $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children.

Playing the part of a bad man and a potential grave digger, Smith is one of a cast of twenty adults and children bringing to life the adventures of Olga, a Danish peasant girl of ancient times.

The play for children, written in rhyme by East Jordan playwright Lenore Bechtel, is loosely based on "The Traveling Companions" by Hans Christian Andersen. It is being directed by Bellaire's Michael Eddy, who has both acted and directed many plays for Antrim Regional Theatre. Producer is Howard Ellis.

The play is produced by Jordan River Players, the theatrical arm of Jordan River Arts Council. It is partially funded by grants from Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs. Additional performances will be at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday, July 16 and 17.

Police search for missing girl

Charlevoix City Police are looking for a 15-year-old girl who is presumed to be a run away. Shena Lee Walker of Charlevoix was reported missing June 30 at 12:20 a.m. Since that time she has reportedly been sighted in Petoskey and Boyne City. Walker is five feet tall, with a dark complexion, black hair and brown eyes.

CMU to offer Motorcycle safety course in northern Michigan

Central Michigan University is offering a motorcycle rider education course July 23-25 at Harbor Springs High School.

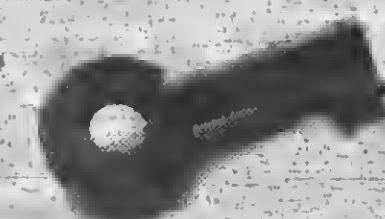

The weekend course, sponsored by CMU, is partially funded by a Michigan Department of Education grant. CMU is offering the course on riding and street skills throughout central and northern Michigan for the eighth consecutive summer.

State law requires successful completion of the course by all 16- and 17-year-old motorcycle operators before they apply for an original motorcycle endorsement on their operator's license.

Cost is $25. For registration information, call Paula Russell, CMU College of Extended Learning, (517) 774-7141.

BUSINESS

Entrepreneurs make pitches for business funding

The Northern Michigan Enterprise Forum hosted its first annual business forum Tuesday, June 29 at North Central Michigan College. The event was sponsored by the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance whose mission is to create and retain jobs in Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

The forum featured 12 entrepreneurs and business people who made business plan presentations with the intent of securing financing. The audience was comprised of investors, venture capital companies, commercial finance companies, bankers and accountants. Prior to the event, professionals from marketing, finance, legal and accounting fields volunteered as advisory team members to help entrepreneurs prepare their business plan presentations.

After the formal business plan presentations were made, there was an opportunity for informal mingling when potential investors asked detailed questions and products were displayed.

Three corporate sponsors, Consumers Power Co., Michigan Bell, an Ameritech Company, and Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., provided financial support for the program.

The Enterprise Forum was initiated one year ago by the S.C.O.R.E. (Service Corp. of Retired Executives) who say this is an opportunity to locally fund new business ventures. Planning assistance was provided by the Petoskey Chamber, Harbor Springs Chamber, Old Kent Bank, First Community Bank, Consumers Power Co. and the Traverse Bay EDC.

The Enterprise Forum provides citizens and investors an opportunity to support local business. By stimulating the growth and creating of companies, the local economy is enhanced. These new businesses create a demand for local goods and commercial services and strengthen the area's business network. The additional payroll provided supports families who invest in homes and purchase local goods, thereby increasing cash flow in the economy and creating a positive ripple effect on other businesses.

An active exchange program is being facilitated between the Northern Michigan Enterprise Forum and the Traverse Bay Enterprise Forum in order to maximize entrepreneurs' exposure to the investment community.

For more information about the program of future programs, call Tom Johnson, Steering Committee Chair, at the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance, 582-6482.

Warmth: You can get too much of a good thing

Hot weather disorders are a potentially serious threat to any individual during episodes of high temperature and humidity. Hot weather disorders are preventable if people are aware of the conditions that cause injury and know how to prevent them.

Dr. Brian Youngs, District Medical Director, believes all individuals should be aware of hot weather disorders. He is especially concerned for athletes trying out for a team or just attempting to get into condition. Individuals in poor physical condition, not acclimated, overweight or husky, wearing heavy clothing, overexerting themselves and sweating excessively without adequate fluid intake are at special risk. Other groups at risk of heat injury include the young, especially infants; the elderly; persons taking medications (diuretics); and individuals with a serious illness (diabetes, hyperthyroidism, dehydration, congestive heart failure, abnormalities of skin and sweat glands, infection with fever, and central nervous system disease), or a history of a heat disorder; and people who consume alcohol or exercise vigorously.

With advanced planning and good measure of common sense, heat related illness can usually be avoided. Individuals known to be at risk or other individuals supervising sporting events and monitoring the activities of others should observe the following preventive measures:

1. Drink plenty of water. Fluid consumption should be as much as 50 percent greater than the amount dictated by thirst. Adequate fluid intake of water or fruit or vegetable juice before or during strenuous exercise is essential to reduce risk.

2. Increase the intake of salt. Increased salt and fluids particularly help prevent heat exhaustion and heat cramps. Salt can be taken in the form of a salty food, such as salted nuts. For heat exhaustion and heat cramps, ingestion of 0.5 to 1.0 level teaspoon of salt per quart of water should resolve symptoms. Do not take salt tablets unless specified by a physician. Persons on salt restriction should consult a physician before increasing their salt intake.

3. Reduce activity during the heat. Strenuous activities should be reduced, eliminated, or rescheduled to the coolest time of the day. Minimize the amount of strenuous physical activity that's undertaken, especially in the sun and in the hottest times of the day. Sporting activities should be scheduled for the early morning or the evening.

4. Avoid the heat as much as possible. Individuals at risk should stay in the coolest available place, not necessarily indoors.

5. Spend more time in air-conditioned places. Air-conditioning in homes and buildings markedly reduces danger from the heat. If acquiring an air-conditioner is not economically feasible, spending more time each day (during hot weather) in an air-conditioned environment affords some protection.

6. Wear loose and light-colored clothing in hot, sunny weather. Other methods of keeping cool, such as taking cool showers or swimming, may be useful.

7. Contact your physician to determine if you are at increased risk because an illness or any medicine or drugs you may be taking (especially tranquilizers, diuretics, and anticholinergics).

8. Sugary beverages, which decrease gastric emptying, and alcoholic beverages, which are dehydrating, should be avoided.

9. Sponge body surfaces with cool water to assist in preventing heat stroke. If heat stroke symptoms occur, immediate medical attention should be sought. Heat stroke is a life-threatening medical emergency.

10. Identify individuals in any of the high risk groups, increase efforts to have them keep cool, and emphasize the importance of maintaining contact with others for early detection of signs of heat illness.

11. Participants in hot weather sports events must make sure they are adequately acclimated. At least a five to six week training period, building up gradually and done in the same heat conditions as the event, is essential.

12. Teach patients and team members to recognize the early symptoms of heat injury: stumbling or clumsiness, headache, nausea, dizziness, excessive sweating or lack of sweating, and changes in mental status.

13. Be aware of the real degree of environmental heat stress - the cumulative effects of air temperature, humidity, wind velocity, and radiant heat - to be able to make informed decisions about risk.

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, July 7, 1993 - PAGE 19

This Fourth of July picnic apparently took place at a home near the water in Charlevoix. It's difficult to see, but in the background is water and a faint view of the opposite shoreline. This home could have been located on Round Lake on the Belvedere side, near the water.

Turn up the heat on hamburgers

Brian L. Youngs, M.D., Medical Director/Health Officer of District Health Department No. 3, believes that the public should be provided information about prevention of foodborne illnesses. Residents should be aware that the potential for illness exist all the time whether they are camping, at home, on a picnic, or eating in a restaurant. People should also know that foodborne illnesses are uncommon, that food and water supplies are generally safe, and that the chance of acquiring an illness while eating in a licensed restaurant is unlikely.

Recently, a strain of Escherichia coli which can cause serious illness has been reported to the health department. Escherichia coli is a bacteria with many strains, most of which live normally in the intestines of humans and animals without causing disease. The new strain can cause bloody and non-bloody diarrhea and abdominal cramping. The infection can lead to a blood and kidney illness. Most cases have been linked to undercooked ground beef and hamburger. Other food items have included roast beef, raw milk and fresh-pressed, unpreserved apple cider. Person to person spread in a day care or nursery setting is also possible. To prevent infection, beef, especially ground beef, should be cooked thoroughly until the interior is no longer pink and the juices are clear. The Food and Drug Administration has issued an interim recommendation to increase internal temperature for cooked hamburgers to 155 degrees F (86.1 degrees C). Undercooked beef should not be served to young children, the elderly, and the immunocompromised. No one should drink raw milk. Careful hygiene, frequent hand washing and exclusion of children with diarrhea from day care are also important.

Agreed to leave the height of grass at which City staff can begin enforcement action on cutting at 16 inches.

County decides not to re-open solid waste plan

By Laurie Lounsbury

In a nearly unanimous decision, the Charlevoix County Planning Commission voted to turn down Waste Management Incorporated's request to re-open the solid waste plan. Planning director Larry Sullivan gave several reasons for denying the request. They were: "The DNR will require the county to re-open the plan in 1994. *There are federal legislative changes currently being made on the solid waste planning act that will occur between now and 1994. If changes were made right now to the solid waste plan, they might have to be changed again after the new federal changes are in effect. *No need has been demonstrated to open the waste plan. *Planning Department and its work program will not get done because solid waste is a very controversial and time consuming issue.

The planning department had voted several weeks ago to approve waste management's request to re-open the solid waste plan. The decision was narrowly passed by a four to three vote of only seven planning commissioners. When Sullivan took the planning department's decision to the Charlevoix County Board of commissioners for their final approval, the request was turned back to the planning department. Chairman Don Smith said he wanted the planning department to give reasons as to why the solid waste plan should be re-opened and he wanted a stronger vote to approve it. Smith didn't feel that four votes in favor on a nine member board was sufficient.

Barney Way, president of the Cedar Ridge Landfill, was unavailable for comment on the planning commission's decision.

State demands $444,311.56 from local school for 1980s TCE contamination response costs

School to retain environmental attorney

By L. Scott Swanson

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is demanding $444,311.56 from the Charlevoix Public School District, claiming the school district was responsible for groundwater contamination discovered more than a decade ago. School district officials don't believe it has been proven that the school is responsible for the contamination and will retain an environmental attorney to fight the demand. School officials and the school attorney are scheduled to meet with officials from the DNR and State Attorney General's office Aug. 5 in Lansing.

At a June 30 meeting, school board members unanimously supported a motion to hire an attorney with environmental expertise to represent the school district in fighting the demand. In considering the motion, board president Scott Beatty said the question before the board was "Is it important to retain legal counsel? His answer to that question. "Anytime you're slapped with a demand for half a million dollars, I think it is."

The notice of demand dated June 25 was hand delivered to school superintendent Dr. Roberta Jackson. It was signed by Alan J. Howard, Chief of the Environmental Response Division of the DNR and by A. Michael Leffler, Assistant in Charge of the Environmental Protection Division of the Department of the Attorney General.

Jackson said DNR officials from the Gaylord DNR office contacted school administrators for a meeting about TCE problems. She said that when she and school business manager Rich Kelly met with the DNR officials they were handed a letter which was a notice demanding the school pay $444,311.56. Jackson said she and Kelly were surprised by the notice. Neither Jackson nor Kelly were with the Charlevoix school system in the early 1980s

"Is it important to retain legal counsel? ... Anytime you're slapped with a demand for half a million dollars, I think it is."

Charlevoix School Board President Scott Beatty explaining why he supported retaining an environmental attorney in response to a state demand for $444,311.56.

when the contamination problem came to light.

Contamination of Charlevoix's city water system was discovered in September of 1981. A test by the Michigan Department of Public Health discovered higher than allowable amounts of trichloroethylene (TCE). At that time the city's water was supplied by lake water and groundwater from a well near Lake Michigan. Monitoring found the ground water to be the source of the TCE.

In June and July of 1982 the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) drilled 13 test wells in the vicinity of the municipal well. Water from the monitoring wells was found to contain TCE and perchloroethylene (PCE). PCE never turned up in the municipal well. Charlevoix's municipal well was added to the EPA's National Priority List of contaminated sites in September of 1983. In June of 1984 the EPA approved a decision to build a new city water plant with the EPA to pay 90 percent of the costs and the state 10 percent. The new water plant, which draws water from Lake Michigan, went on line in the spring of 1987. An intake problem was corrected during the summer of 1992.

According to the notice of demand, "Remedial investigations conducted by the EPA and the state from September 1983 to February 1985 determined the source of the TCE contamination was the property comprising the Charlevoix Middle School. The groundwater contamination concentrations were highest in the area of the school and decreased in concentration downgradient. No contamination was detected upgradient from the school. Although no discrete source of contamination was found, data indicated the Charlevoix Middle School property was the only possible source of contamination."

An itemized list of state costs accompanying the notice of demand is broken down into categories such

Driver training remains a thrill

By Laurie Lounsbury

The bridge is up, the first shift at the factory just let out and traffic is backed up in four different directions. You're making a bee line for Bridge street when you discover that you've got a student driver in front of you. You can hear his gears grinding as he tries to let out the clutch and poke the nose of his car into traffic. He finally makes his move, but stalls the car. Your blood pressure is rising in proportionate levels to your exasperation. You want to honk your horn, stomp on the gas and swerve around the student driver, when suddenly you're transported back to a time long ago, when you were 15 years old and behind the wheel of a car for the first time in your life. You remember white knuckles clutching the wheel and fear rising in your throat as cars whiz by you. You can almost feel the desperation that used to rise from the pit of your stomach - desperation to pass your driver's training class and win the coveted prize, a learner's permit.

Jim Kanine is one person who never forgets the fragile, insecure feelings that accompany driver's training. He is one of the four instructors in Charlevoix who teach the drivers' education program. "This is a tough town to drive in," Kanine said. "You'd think that everyone who ever went through this would empathize with them." Charlevoix does pose it's own unique problems for student drivers. Pedestrian tourists wander aimlessly into the street without checking for cars. Bridge traffic clogs the town's main artery every half hour. The light at the bridge is green for nine months out of the day, lulling the locals into a belief that it is, was, and always will be green. Even in the summer, the bridge light turns red only once every half an hour. Kanine's favorite story of a hair raising incident with a student driver took place at the bridge. Kanine's student driver drove blithely onto the bridge, oblivious to the changing bridge light. The gates came down in front and behind them, leaving them trapped on the bridge with bells clanging steadily around them. The bridge couldn't go up, because they were perched upon it. "It was very embarrassing," Kanine said.

...driver training: an experience we all share

Kanine admits that as an instructor, it's easy to let your guard down in situations that are routine for experienced drivers. After maintaining razor sharp alertness with a driver on the highway, he starts to relax when they make the turn onto Garfield and are almost back to the high school parking lot. "I'll be feeling good. We'll pull into the parking lot and I'm thinking we made it, we're alive, then the driver will forget to put on the brakes and jump the curb while he's parking," Kanine said.

Kanine had one student driver who performed magnificently in the downtown traffic, setting Kanine's mind at ease. He was quite relaxed as the driver prepared to turn into the high school parking lot. For some reason, the driver forgot to let off the gas and put on the brakes as she made the turn. "She took the corner, it wasn't on two wheels but it was close - it was fast," Kanine said. As the driver sped around the corner, she compounded the error when she almost hit another car - the car of a driving instructor who was leaving for the day. Kanine understands that what student drivers need most is confidence building. They need to be allowed to make their own decisions on the road. "What you have, but they don't is judgement, and that comes from experience," Kanine said. Kanine tries to let the students make their own judgements on the road unless their lack of judgement presents a life threatening situation. It's often difficult for him to know when to intercede on the student's behalf and when to keep quiet. As he described it, "It's a fine line of paranoia."

The instructors are aware that student drivers often frustrate other motorists, but they accept that as a part of the program. "If we don't drive where there's traffic, the kids don't get the experience they need," said Jerry Puhl, a seasoned veteran of driver education. He and Kanine are equally frustrated by other motorists that tease or torment student drivers. "Some people like to play games with the student drivers," Puhl said.

Unlike geometry or world history, driver education is one class where the students are attentive, ready to learn, and willing to study. The same kids who spend their Saturday mornings sleeping until noon will be sitting on the curb in front of the high school at six in the morning for their driver's training. "They want it (their permit) badly," Kanine said. "That's one thing that hasn't changed. It's still a big deal to get your driver's license."

With 14 years of teaching experience under his belt, Jim Jinsky knows where the rewards are in the nerve-racking business of driver's training. "It's a lot of fun seeing them progress from nervous kids to confident, mature adults," he said.

Jennifer Kuzmik and Ruth Lashmit are two enthusiastic student drivers with their sights firmly set on the goal ahead. "We're hoping our moms will let us drive their Camaros," Lashmit said.

OPINIONS

by EDITH GILBERT

What impressed me most, when I went to see the current photography exhibit at the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey, "China: Between Revolutions", was how far the art of photography has come since the '20s.

Young people today, who conveniently snap pictures with a throw-away camera, will be amazed by the photographic achievement of young Sidney Gamble. This early camera buff made two trips to China between 1917 and 1927. With his cumbersome Graflex, he not only took, but developed 4000 prints 81 of which are now on exhibit. Please remember in those days film was not as advanced as it is today. Negatives needed to be processed immediately, which Gamble did in caves along the trail. We're told it took seventeen full loads of water to develop and wash the film. When one considers that it also took fifteen sedan-chair-coolies to carry the small group of travelers and their seventeen pieces of baggage, one can't help but be even more impressed with the scope of the current exhibit.

Thanks to the influence of Sidney Gamble's daughter, Catherine Curran of Harbor Point, this outstanding photography show was brought to our area as part of a national tour in cooperation with the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service. It was organized by the China Institute in America and the Sidney D. Gamble Foundation for China Studies.

Gamble, grandson of the founder of Procter and Gamble, made his first visit to China in 1908 with his parents. After graduating from Princeton he returned to China and took most of his photographs to illustrate his scholarly research. In 1921 he published his first book, "Peking: A Social Survey." He carefully documented data on Peking's population — incomes, health, recreation, occupations and such important matters as police services and orphanage structures. The philosopher John Dewey, praised the range of topics it covered and termed it "indispensable to further studies of China."

The sharp black and white pictures of street scenes are of particular interest to me because I lived in Shanghai from 1924-27. My family did not own a camera at that time and I regret that there are only a few pictures of us in existence which were taken by a friendly camera buff. Most people had to go to a photography studio to have their portraits taken.

That's what makes these studies so remarkable. There is a man still wearing his hair in a queue, the long braid that was the symbol of Manchu rule; There are the turbaned men who belong to the Qiang minority. There are the farm children pumping water on a bamboo water wheel. There is the wealthy dowager with her tiny, bound feet. And there is a round faced baby dressed in a silk tiger suit to protect him from harm and illness.

"According to a review in the New York Times, 'The selection of photographs in the exhibition reveals a deft eye and a fluid intelligence. Unlike earlier Western photographers in China, Gamble did not search for spectacular landscapes or record exotically costumed individuals within the confines of a studio. Rather, he photographed in a candid, deceptively casual way, taking street scenes and images of people at work that seem quite modern for their time.'"

A videotape comprised of historical footage shot by Gamble on 16 mm film in 1920 is included in the exhibit. For both camera buffs and China watchers the photographs which are attractively hung on black mesh floor to ceiling scrolls are a must. The exhibition runs through Aug. 13 at the McCune Arts Center, open Mondays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Letters to the editor

Thanks for help with teen night

Editor,
In our attempt to organize a weekly event for the youth of the Charlevoix area, we have had some problems generating enough interest to keep the function going. It is with regret that we have to discontinue the event and hopefully try again next summer. We would like to thank the organizations and volunteers who gave us support. Also thank you to the local businesses that allowed us to use their window space to advertise the Sunday night events.

Sincerely,
John & Sherry Fiedorek

Thanks for help with car show

Editor,
The First Annual Street Legend Car Show was completed this past weekend with a very good turn-out. The weather Sunday wanted to get nasty, but it passed and a good time was had by all. I, as president of the Street Legends Car Club, would like to take this time to thank the many who made this first show such a success. Many sponsors donated wonderful trophies and door prizes. There were also many others who gave of their time to make the show a success. They know who they are and we wish to thank them.

Again, I say thanks,
Earl Muma, President
Street Legends Car Club.

Oh Boix

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments involving Charlevoix area people.

John O'Brien of Charlevoix was among the spring graduates of Grand Valley State University. O'Brien is the son of Don and Mary O'Brien of Charlevoix. He graduated Magna Cum Laude with a bachelor's degree in business administration with an emphasis on facilities management. He is a 1989 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Spec. Edward G. Wuepper recently completed a mobile subscriber equipment switching system operator course at the U.S. Air Force base in Fort Gordon, Ga. Wuepper is the son of Kenneth J. Wuepper of Saginaw. His wife, Kristina, is the daughter of Sam and Jill Washburn of Charlevoix.

Kevin Janisse, instructor of the Charlevoix Kuk Sol Won martial arts club, recently passed his test to become a second degree black belt. The 4-hour test in Sauli Ste. Marie covered both skills and knowledge. In conjunction with the testing, several Charlevoix martial arts students attended a seminar under the direction of the Kuk Sol Won grand master from Korea. Janisse said that next year he hopes to have the Charlevoix club host the seminar with the grand master. In a recent martial arts competition in Traverse City, Janisse won the grand championship in forms competition while several Charlevoix club members fared well in various competitions.

Two Charlevoix youth hockey players recently attended Michigan Tech University Hockey Development Center training camps. Erik Butcher attended camp July 4-9 while Bobby Christoph attended the camp July 11-16. The camps teach stickhandling, passing, shooting, skating and checking skills through drills and scrimmages. Instructors include top high school coaches in addition to current and former college and professional players.

Matthew Gibbons of the Aquinas College track team has been named to the 1993 Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference All Conference Track Team. Gibbons, a 1990 Charlevoix High School graduate, participated in the long jump, 200 meter dash and 4 x 400 meter relay in the conference meet. He had a long jump of 21'2", ran the 200 meters in 23.2 and ran the third leg of the relay race. Gibbons is the son of Marilyn Gibbons and the late Michael A. Gibbons of Charlevoix.

Heart Start raising funds for defibrillators

Charlevoix Heart Start, in cooperation with the Charlevoix City Police Department, has initiated a fund-raising campaign to purchase two heart defibrillators - one for each of the city patrol cars.

Approximately two years ago, the Heart Start program raised enough money to purchase defibrillators for the Charlevoix ambulance units. The defibrillators have been used in several medical emergencies.

Recently, Charlevoix City Police officers completed training as emergency medical technicians. Often, police arrive at emergency scenes prior to an ambulance.

People wishing to contribute to the current fund raising effort may send contributions to First State Bank of Charlevoix, c/o Heart Start, P.O. Box 58-201 State Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Several classes planning reunions this month

Class of '43
The Charlevoix High School graduating class of 1943 will host their 50th class reunion Saturday, July 17 at the Grey Gables. There will be a social hour beginning at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Friends of the class members are invited to join the class at 9 p.m. For additional information, contact Sara Cummings at 547-4232.

Class of '78
Members of the Charlevoix High School graduating class of 1978 are invited to an informal 15-year class reunion from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., Sunday, July 25 at Ferry Beach.

The reunion will be a casual get-together. For additional information, phone 547-4994.

The class reunion for the Charlevoix High School graduating class of 1963 has been cancelled due to lack of interest. The reunion had originally been scheduled for July 23.

The Community Church of God in Charlevoix was the location for the wedding ceremony of Debbie Sue Garten and Kevin Michael Janisse. The wedding took place on May 22 at noon. Eighty guests witnessed the double ring ceremony performed by Pastor Bruce Hamilton.

The church pews were decorated with large white satin bows. The altar was decorated with white mums with white foil and sonja colored satin bows. Candelabras graced each side of the altar, decorated with ivy, baby's breath and large white satin bows.

The bride was escorted and given away by her brother, Greg Garten. She wore a crystal organza gown, with full renaissance sleeves enhanced with bows and roses. The fitted bodice was decorated with silk lace, beads and sequins. Her gown had a full skirt of silk lace and organza with a ruffled, cathedral length train.

The bride carried a bouquet with a cascade of white lilies, sonja and kyic roses, stephanotis, baby's breath, ivy, astilbe and tulles.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Holly Patenge. Bridesmaids were Kim Weeter, Sandra West, sister of the groom, and Gayle Hofbauer. They each wore tea length, coral, open-back printed bengaline dresses.

Each attendant carried a bouquet of white and sonja mini carnations, stephanotis, astilbe, baby's breath and tulles.

The best man was Brent Penfold. Groomsmen were Robert Janisse Jr., brother of the groom, Alan West, brother-in-law of the groom, and Randy Weiss.

Ushers were David Nieszoda and Greg Garten. They wore long tailed black tuxedos with coral cummerbunds and bow ties.

Pastor Bruce Hamilton sang a solo, "I Believe" for the couple. Organist was Barb Shupert.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride and groom hosted a luncheon reception at the Hayes Township Hall in Charlevoix.

The rehearsal dinner, also hosted by the bride and groom, was held Friday, May 21 at Village Inn Pizza in Charlevoix.

After a surprise honeymoon cruise to the Bahamas, Key West, and Fort Lauderdale, Florida, the couple now reside in Charlevoix.

The groom is the engineering supervisor for Ionex, Inc. in Bellaire. The bride is the receptionist for Drs. Joy, Stewart, and Newcomb in Charlevoix.

Artist enjoys whimsical animals

Wildlife artist and illustrator Joel Tanis is returning to the Koucky Gallery with his whimsical animal watercolors July 16 for a two week one-man show.

It will be a triumphant encore for Tanis, a 26 year-old Holland native, who had his first northern Michigan one-man show at Koucky Gallery last year.

The young artist returns to Charlevoix with a major book contract, a successful line of greeting cards, and a contract to fly to Nairobi, Kenya, this fall, for a one-man show for the African fund for Endangered Wildlife.

The gallery will host a public reception for Tanis, July 17 from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Best known for ingenious combinations of vivid color, in child-like line drawings, over detailed realistic illustration, Tanis' work has elements reminiscent of, but not necessarily inspired by, both Jean Dubuffet and Paul Klee.

Tanis' view of lions as "reely just big cats that live in the jungle", for example, juxtaposes a realistic stalking lion in deep grass with a leaping lion drawn with a minimum of childish circles against two views of house cats, one detailed, the other only circles and triangles.

Tanis' fascination with children's views and animals led him to collaborate with writer and Charlevoix native Jeff Grooters, on "The Dragon Pack Snack Attack," a children's book about dragons who have discovered fast foods. Four Winds Press, a subsidiary of MacMillan Publishing, has announced and end-of-summer publication date.

Then in September, Tanis leaves for a two-month African journey which includes a one-man fund raising show in Nairobi, under the sponsorship of the African Fund for Endangered Wildlife.

Tanis acknowledges that his works all have an "environmental twist," most are involved with "where animals live."

But, the artist says, "I want my viewers to smile." And he adds, "My influences include Bill Waterston who does Calvin and Hobbes as much as the great classics."

Weeds are going wild in Charlevoix's petunia beds

The weeds are on a rampage and showing absolutely no civility they have gone as far as attacking innocent petunias as they were lying in their beds. Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB) President Bruce MacArthur is calling for volunteers who are willing to wage a counter attack to turn back this proliferation of weeds.

"It's just been ideal conditions for growing things, including weeds," MacArthur explained. Prison crews from Camp Pellston have been assisted by prisoners from the Charlevoix County jail and by volunteers, but in some places the weeds are still getting ahead of weeding efforts.

KCB has asked property owners along Bridge Street and Petoskey Avenue to lend a hand with weeding in front of their property and many of them have done just that. As a reward for their efforts, KCB has been giving the property owners Keep Charlevoix Beautiful license plates. Any Bridge Street or Petoskey Avenue property owner who has been weeding the petunia beds, but has yet to get a license plate may pick one up at the Chamber of Commerce.

MacArthur noted that if this weed assault can be beaten back, perhaps the petunias will be able to re-establish themselves as the dominant plant in the petunia bed and make weeding easier for the rest of the summer.

Anyone willing to help should feel free to step right up and weed. "We're looking at all possibilities to get the job done," MacArthur noted.

Culls celebrate 50th anniversary

Saturday, June 19, 1993, marked the 50th wedding anniversary of Captain Raymond J. Cull and Roberta Claire Left on Beaver Island. They were married in Holy Cross Church with Rev. Fabian Keenan officiating. Ray is a retired Great Lakes captain and Claire has always been a homemaker.

The Culls maintain homes in both Port Charlotte, Florida, and St. James, Beaver Island. Their "Ten Acts of God" hosted the celebration in their honor.

Festivities began with mass at Holy Cross. Father Joseph Scallon, S.J., led the celebrants into the church. They were followed by their ten children and spouses, Dale and Nancy Cull, Michael and Kitty Cull, Dennis Cull, Bill and Carly Bell, Bonnie Rice, Mary Beth Cull, Jimmy and Mary Ann Cull, Michael and Julie Cherry, Gary and Peggy Bowersock, John Cull, 20 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Barry Pischner and Tammy McDonough were soloists during the church ceremony. Following the mass, a reception dinner for 280 guests was held in Holy Cross Hall. Friends and relatives came from Grand Rapids, Saginaw, Bay City, Chicago, Traverse City, Detroit, Six Lakes, Muskegon, Cheboygan, Bridgeport, Jackson, Charlevoix, Phoenix, Arizona, and Torrence California.

The reception hall was beautifully decorated in gold and white, with bouquets of flowers and floating candle lights on each table. Garlands of white and lights adorned the walls which held family history pictures.

Richard Gillespie was Master of Ceremonies. After introductions and toasts, dinner was served. Following the dinner there was dancing to music provided by relatives and friends from Beaver Island and Charlevoix. Ray and Claire led the anniversary waltz, and in their turn, the children and spouses danced with their parents before the usual dancing began.

Marvin J. Elzinga

Marvin J. Elzinga, Sr., 85, of Traverse City, formerly of Ellsworth, died Thursday, July 8, 1993, at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City.

He was born in Ellsworth on January 26, 1908, the son of James and Jessie (Wassenaar) Elzinga.

On June 23, 1934, in St. Ignace, he married Isabel M. Roo, and she survives.

He served as postal officer at the Fort Hamilton, New York base. He served as Postmaster in Ellsworth for 40 years, building a new post office in 1959.

He was a member of Belltower Reformed Church. He was Post Service Officer of the Jansen-

Richardson American Legion Post #488 until his retirement; he was a life member. He was secretary of the Ellsworth Community School Board for 22 years. He was a member of the Ellsworth Lions Club until his retirement. He served on the Antrim County Selective Board following World War II. In 1983, he was appointed by Judge Unger to the Soldiers and Sailors Relief Fund Committee.

Surviving besides his wife Isabel are four sons, Marvin J. Elzinga, Jr., of Conway, William E. "Chuck" Elzinga of Columbia, Maryland, Steven D. Elzinga of Lambertville, Michigan, and Terry R. Elzinga of Jamesville, New York; 8 grandchildren, 2 great-grandchildren; three brothers, Henry L. Elzinga of Lansing, Arthur R. Elzinga of Belding, and Herbert C. Elzinga of Lowell; two sisters, Cornelia Raymer of Charlevoix, and Maxine J. Elzinga of Traverse City. Funeral services were held Saturday, July 10, at Belltower Reformed Church with Colia M. Hastings officiating. Burial will be in Atwood Cemetery. Memorials may be made to Belltower Reformed Church.

John A. Klooster

John A. Klooster, 78, of Ellsworth, died Saturday, July 10, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

He was born March 24, 1915, in Banks Township, the son of Alex and Hattie (DeYoung) Klooster.

On November 25, 1937, he married Agnes Sitzema in Banks Township where they made their home. They moved to Lansing where they lived for three years before returning to Ellsworth. In 1948, they purchased Wilson's Health Center and changed the name to John's Health Center. In 1954, they built a new building, gradually expanding as a restaurant. They operated the business (now the Country Kettle) until their retirement in 1974.

Mr. Klooster was a member of the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church.

He is survived by his wife Agnes; three daughters, Mrs. Bill (Donna) Wynsma of Ellsworth, Mrs. Larry (Bonnie) Oosterhouse of Grand Rapids, and Mrs. Ron (Darlene) Smith of Acme; 7 grandchildren; 3 great-grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Julia Sage, and one brother, Versie Klooster, both of Central Lake, several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, July 13, at 1 p.m. at the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church with the Rev. David Weemhoff officiating. Burial will be in Ellsworth Cemetery. Memorials may be made to Banks Township fire and Rescue. Arrangements were made by Hastings Funeral Home.

School board decides not to hire a curriculum director

By L. Scott Swanson

By a 4-3 vote June 30 the Charlevoix school board decided against hiring a curriculum director for the coming school year.

Hiring a curriculum director was supported by board members Scott Beatty, Mary Lee Campbell and Joan Buday, but was opposed by Ardeth Wieland, Steve Czerkes, Ben Cunningham and Larry Levengood.

The curriculum director would have been a half-time administrative and teaching position. Rather than being an addition, it would have been a redefinition of an administrative role which previously was that of assistant high school principal and athletic director. Richard Swenor, who was the assistant high school principal, has been hired as elementary principal to replace Vane Smith who has retired.

School superintendent Dr. Robert Jackson favored hiring a curriculum director to oversee the implementation of curriculum recommendations made by school committees.

Campbell said she feels the curriculum director is a position the school must have. "Writing the curriculum is one thing. Getting it implemented is an entirely different thing," she said, noting that funding for the position is included in the 1993-94 school budget.

Wieland favored having current administrators oversee implementation and added that she felt that faculty members should be able to handle curriculum changes without a lot of prompting. "We're talking about capable people who have this information in their grasp and deal with it every day and now we're talking about putting some person in between to tell them how to do it."

Buday noted that committees have spent several months developing curriculum improvements and the school board now has to follow through. That sentiment was echoed by Beatty and high school principal Dave Smith.

"We've done a lot of work on curriculum. We're at a critical point," Smith said.

Beatty noted that in 1997, students will have to pass the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) test in order to receive a state endorsed high school diploma.

Levengood and Czerkes both expressed reservations based on funding. They said they understand the need for curriculum improvements, but want to see how the Aug. 10 millage election comes out. Czerkes also said that he wants the board to look at the entire school budget.

"The community has spoken (and said) that we need to tighten up our belts," he said.

Levengood said he is not opposed to implementing curriculum improvements, but the question is how to do it and the budget issue.

Jackson noted that at the next board meeting the board will be reviewing a line-item budget. In other matters at the June 30 meeting, the board elected officers for the coming year. Beatty was elected board president. Campbell secretary, Levengood treasurer and Czerkes vice president.

Valerie Klempnow's cigar smoking fish were among the most eye-catching exhibits at Charlevoix's 1993 craft show Saturday. Klempnow is based in Bay City.

Grandvue Auxiliary plans annual tag-day fund raiser

Grandvue Auxiliary members met for a potluck and annual meeting July 8 at the gazebo in front of the facility. There were 30 members present.

New officers elected for 1993-94 are: President, Helen Deming; Vice President, Joanne Schenck; Secretary, Jean Korhase; Corresponding Secretary, Marie Schmitz; Secretary, Mary Geiken. 1993-94 membership dues are now being accepted by Geiken.

In addition to electing officers, the annual county-wide tag-day scheduled for July 16 was discussed. This year's tag-day proceeds will go toward the purchase of two exit door alarms.

Second ward recall election scheduled Aug. 30

By L. Scott Swanson

Voters in Charlevoix's second ward will decide whether to keep or recall council member Ted Felter in a special election which has been scheduled for Monday, Aug. 30. The recall election is the result of a petition which was filed in April by Gabe Campbell, a resident of the second ward.

As a reason for the recall the petition cited Felter's alleged "failure to communicate with, or respond to, his constituents in the Second Ward of the City of Charlevoix. His answering service is on to receive phone calls, but it is almost impossible to talk to him, face-to-face, about any issue of concern to the voters. Part of his duty as a councilperson should be to be available to the people whom he represents."

Felter, who is in the first year of his second two-year council term, said of the recall rationale, "Personally, I think it's a lame excuse. It's not the real reason they're trying to recall me."

Felter said some people are upset about the dismissal of four volunteer firemen earlier this year, but that the dismissal is not, and according to the city charter cannot be, a council decision. "They couldn't put down that I wouldn't hire the firemen back as an excuse," Felter said.

Felter will be able to provide a rebuttal of 200 words or less to be placed on the recall ballot. In a phone conversation with the Courier Tuesday morning, Felter said he didn't know whether or not he would do that or whether or not he would actively campaign against the recall. He said that for now, he just plans to wait and see what happens during the next few weeks.

In a phone conversation with the Courier this past Monday, Campbell said he was pleased that an election date has been set. Asked if he felt the recall effort would be approved by second ward voters, he said, "You never know. I think it will probably go." He added that he and other people behind the recall drive are not trying to knock the town down, but they feel there are some problems in the town which need to be corrected.

In regard to allegations that the recall is motivated by issues other than Felter's alleged lack of availability to constituents, Campbell acknowledged that there is a relationship, but he explained that the relationship is that when things were going on with the fire department and constituents wanted to voice concern to Felter, they were unable to contact him. Campbell added that consequently, he and other second ward constituents decided to initiate a recall effort in hopes of replacing their present council representative with someone who would be more accessible.

Asked if he would be actively campaigning for the recall between now and the Aug. 30 election, Campbell said, "Yeah, I'll try to get people to go and vote." However, he noted that he would be encouraging people to vote on the matter whether they agreed with his position or not.

20,000 bees drop by for a visit

Last Thursday afternoon approximately 20,000 Italian honey bees decided to take up residence at an office building on the corner of State and Park Streets.

People inside the building first discovered the bees on a railing on a back stairwell. The bees were using the railing as a staging area as they moved into a hole in the back wall of the building. Although bees were getting inside of the wall, they didn't seem to be getting into the building.

Local Department of Natural Resources (DNR) officer Roger Bush was notified and he contacted Jay and Tim DeKorne, beekeepers from Ellsworth. The DeKorne's are second and third generation beekeepers and approached the swarm of bees with no discernible apprehension.

Although the beekeepers were able to remove many of the bees which were still outside the building, they were unable to get to those which were in the wall.

Those bees will eventually either leave of their own accord or be exterminated.

Dr. Deckinga is a member of the active medical staff at Northern Michigan Hospital. He received his medical degree from Loyola University of Chicago, did his internship at the University of Florida Shands Teaching Hospital, and his residency in general surgery at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics. He is also a member of the courtesy staff at Osego Memorial Hospital in Gaylord, and War Memorial Hospital in Sault Saint Marie, Michigan.

His office is located at 820 Arlington Street in Petoskey.

Crooked Tree to host art auction at Dunmaglas

The 14th Annual Auction for the Arts is coming Thursday, July 29, 1993, to the Barn at Dunmaglas on Boyne City Road in Charlevoix. Admission is $7.50 per person at the door. Chairperson, Pat Bass promises a spectacular evening beginning with a champagne preview and hors d'oeuvres at 6 p.m.

An expanded silent auction opens at 6 p.m. with tables periodically closing during the evening. Auctioneer Ernest DuMouchelle will begin the live auction at 8 p.m.

Among the beautiful items featured this year will be a 1910 parlor reed organ, a handpainted fireplace screen, a crystal bowl, a samovar urn, handmade throws, antiques, jewelry, paintings and gift certificates to area restaurants and shops. Back again is the popular one-week vacation for four couples at Heron's Nest in beautiful Bermuda. For the contemporary dining room, there is a five-foot, square oak and teak table custom-made by Boese Wood Products. There is something for everyone in all price ranges.

New this year will be "Buy a chance from a Crooked Tree." Numbered leaves on the Crooked Tree can be purchased for $10. The numbers on the leaves correspond to displayed gifts. The match will be revealed at the end of the live auction.

For those who enjoy dining under the stars, box supper will be available from Dunmaglas. Reservations must be made by Wednesday, July 21, by calling the McCune Arts Center at 347-4337. A cash bar will also be available.

The Auction is the Virginia McCune Arts Center's biggest fund raiser of the year. Proceeds from the Auction go directly toward keeping the Arts Center in operation. It ensures that there will be music and dance lessons, pottery and art classes as well as art displays from local artists to the traveling shows from the Detroit Institute of Arts and the Smithsonian. Art touches all of our lives in one way or another and we are all artists in our own way.

Beaver Island prepares for annual Museum Week

The Beaver Island Historical Society will host its 14th annual Museum Week from July 19 - 24. Originally designed to acquaint Islanders and summer visitors with the Society's two museums, the Mormon Print Shop and the Maritime Museum, Museum Week has evolved into a celebration for both adults and children of the Island's cultural, natural, and political history. This year's theme, titled "Your Beaver Island Connection," will showcase Native American, French, Mormon, and Irish cultures and their relationship to the settling of Beaver Island.

As has been the custom for the last 12 years, "Music-of-the-Porch" will inaugurate the week at 8 p.m. Monday evening. "The Porch" is the porch of the Mormon Print Shop where local musicians, including nationally acclaimed singer and composer Claudia Schmidt and local favorite Kevin White, will perform. On Monday afternoon, an exhibit of drum-making by Islander Eric Helene will take place on the Porch.

Tuesday's theme will be the Island's Native American connection with Island resident Don Meisler demonstrating basket-making on the Porch at 2 p.m. At 8 p.m. at the Holy Cross Church Hall, Frank Etawageshik, head of the Odawas and historian of the Native Americans in the area, will present "The Native American Connection," a summary of the Island's first settlers. Etawageshik is a well-known potter and story teller in the Indian tradition.

Wednesday, the Island's French Connection will be celebrated by both a ceremony honoring Father Baraga, who carried on the French missionary tradition, and a dramatic presentation of early French and Voyageur life. Speaking at the Baraga ceremony, which will be held near the site of Baraga's landing on the Island, will be Kay Hughes of the Bishop Baraga Society. Buses will leave the Print Shop at 1:45 p.m. for the site. At 8 p.m. Raymond and Carol Rewald of The Forces of Montcalm and Wolfe, an organization which is concerned with living history presentations of the French and Indian War era, and Ralph Navcauz of the Monroe Historical Society will demonstrate the life, costumes and customs of the Voyageurs and early French settlers at the campsite at the Island's Whiskey Point, ending at sunset with a musket salute.

No Museum Week would be complete without the Reptile Show by Professor Jim Gillingham, Director of CMU's Biological Station on Beaver Island. Professor Gillingham, affectionately known by local children as "The Snake Man," will conduct a Nature Walk for Children on both Thursday and Friday mornings and present his "Real Live Reptile Show" for children of all ages Friday at 2 p.m. in the Church Hall.

Thursday afternoon will be devoted to celebrating the 100th anniversary of "Dr." Protar's move to Beaver Island. Antje Price, who has researched the history of the island's mysterious doctor so beloved by islanders of the past generation, has composed a special program for the occasion. The program will begin at 2 p.m. in the Church Hall.

Thursday evening, Beaver Island's Irish Connection, which no visitor to the island can possibly miss, will be presented by Kitty McNamara, President of the Beaver Island Historical Society and owner of America's Emerald Isle Imports store. McNamara will discuss the history of the Irish immigration to the island in the nineteenth century and its connection to the Irish isles at 8 p.m. in the Church Hall.

Beaver Island's Mormon connection and King James Jesse Strang, will be presented Friday evening by Professor John Cumming, former director of the Clarke Historical Library of CMU and an authority on the Mormon settlers of Beaver Island at 8 p.m. in the Church Hall.

Concluding Museum week will be a rollicking pub concert by Arranmore, a contemporary-pop-folk act based in the Chicagoland area, on Saturday evening in the Church Hall. Arranmore's recordings are featured on many of the fine folk music radio shows both here and in Europe with group founder Kevin O'Donnell's song, "The Illinois and Michigan Canal" now a standard in Celtic music circles. Leading off the evening will be Irish Tenor, Barry Pischner, who leaves no Island eyes dry. All is all, a fitting ending by the Island's Irish Connections for Museum Week 1993.

As in other years, island painters, potters and photographers will present an Art Show, this year in the Beaver Island District Library, and the schooner, Madeline will once again be docked at Gillespie's wharf on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Beaver Island can be reached by ferry boat two or three times daily from Charlevoix or by plane from Charlevoix, Traverse City, Pellston, and Harbor Springs. Call the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce for more information on travel and housing arrangements at 616-448-2505.

Crashing the gate

Last week a driver failed to stop for a bridge gate on the north side and ended up breaking the gate. Police chief Dennis Halverson said that in a typical summer, three or four bridge gate arms will be broken. Bridge and Michigan Department of Transportation workers quickly replace the gate arms.

...State demands $444,311.56 from Charlevoix school

as: employee salaries and wages; employee travel expenses and interim response measure (new water plant) costs. Items on the list total $444,311.56.

The notice of demand states, "Demand is hereby made for payment of the above amount plus any costs which continue to accrue, including any and all interest as authorized to be recovered under state and federal law. Interest shall begin to accrue on the date of receipt of this notice of demand."

After stating the demand, the notice said that a meeting had been scheduled for 10 a.m., July 15 in Lansing and asked school officials to call by July 5 to confirm their intent to attend. Subsequent to receiving the demand, school officials have talked to DNR officials and the meeting has been postponed to Aug. 5. The notice discussed the possibility of the school district resolving the matter by agreeing to pay the money demanded according to terms of a binding Administrative Order of Consent (AOC).

The demand goes on to say, "The MDNR and MDAG (Attorney General's office) will allow a 90-day period to amicably resolve any disputed items and then enter into an enforceable agreement with the state to reimburse the state its response costs.

"If you choose to forego negotiation of an AOC, you will have 30 calendar days from the receipt of this letter in which to submit a certified check or cashier's check made payable to the 'State of Michigan.' The MDNR will then bill you annually for any costs that are incurred by the state that are not included in the enclosed cost package."

Near the end of the notice, it says that if the matter isn't resolved in the matter outlined earlier in the letter, the state will take "appropriate legal action to recover all response costs." That action may include a lawsuit and the state may place a lien upon the (middle school) property.

The school board appointed a committee of board members Beaty, Larry Levenson and Mary Lee Campbell to work with Jackson and school business manager Rich Kelly in hiring an attorney to represent the school.

As of Tuesday morning Jackson said the committee is considering several law firms with environmental expertise, but has yet to hire one. She also said that the EPA has indicated that it will not be seeking reimbursement from the school system.

Lifeboat from Bradley returns to Beaver Island

Boat brings back memories of 1958 shipping tragedy

By L. Scott Swanson

A lifeboat from the Carl D. Bradley recently returned to Beaver Island and for many long-time residents of the area it brought back with it chilling memories of one the Great Lakes worst shipping tragedies.

In the early evening hours of Nov. 18, 1958 a brutal storm caused the 600-plus foot steam ship Carl D. Bradley to break up and sink approximately 12 miles southwest of Gull Island. Of the 35 men on board, only two survived. They survived after spending more than 14 bone-chilling hours in a lifeboat.

Before the ship went down, other crewmembers unlashed the ship's starboard lifeboat. But they were either unable to get into the lifeboat or were washed overboard because when the lifeboat was found, it held no survivors.

Recovery operations following the sinking turned up the lifeboat and brought it to Beaver Island, which served as a staging site for the recovery operation. Subsequently the lifeboat was taken from the island and its whereabouts was a mystery for many years. Recently, Bill McDonough of the Beaver Island Boat Company found the boat and persuaded its owner to part with it so that it could be put on display at the Beaver Island Historical Museum.

For the past few weeks, as it awaits a spot in the museum, the boat has been sitting in the parking lot of McDonough's Market on Beaver Island and has drawn quite a bit of attention.

"It's unbelievable the reception this boat has gotten," McDonough said. He noted that every day dozens of people have been going over to the boat and looking at it.

McDonough has been trying to do some historical research on the disaster and came across an article written by J. Clary describing the wreck of the Carl D. Bradley and the search and rescue which followed. McDonough has placed a copy of that article on the boat.

For the past year, the lifeboat had been at Put-In-Bay, an island in Lake Erie. Prior to that it belonged to the Great Lakes Historical Society for a number of years. At first, it had been in a yard behind to society's building in Vermillion, Ohio and later had been in a warehouse in Cleveland, Ohio. When the society needed more space and had to sell some artifacts, Duggan purchased the boat. Duggan was at the warehouse to purchase another boat as a decorative item for his ferry company at Put-In-Bay. He saw the Bradley lifeboat and decided to purchase that too.

...lifeboat brings back memories of Bradley sinking

McDonough had met Duggan through the Great Lakes ferry boat association and the two men and their families had become friends. As McDonough and Duggan were talking one day, Duggan mentioned that he had picked up the Carl D. Bradley lifeboat.

McDonough recalls telling Duggan, "You're going to have to get something different."

Duggan then asked McDonough, "What do you mean?"

"That boat belongs on Beaver Island," McDonough told Duggan.

Initially, Duggan was a bit hesitant, but then his wife sided with McDonough and told her husband that in his heart he knew that what McDonough was telling him was right. Duggan agreed to part with the boat.

McDonough then had to figure a way to get the boat back to Charlevoix. He approached Mel Renaud at Dry Harbor Marine and asked if he had a trailer which would haul the boat. Renaud went out in the yard at his shop and found a trailer that was the right size. The trailer belonged to Vince Olach and Renaud said he would have to contact and see if it would be all right with him to use it. Getting permission to use the trailer proved to be no problem. He has a home on Beaver Island and was sympathetic to the cause.

Renaud volunteered to accompany McDonough on the trip and they went down and got the boat off

Put-In-Bay onto the mainland and then hauled it back to Charlevoix where it was put aboard the Beaver Islander and taken to the island.

"I can't tell you how excited people are," McDonough said. "Especially the older people are talking about it."

The boat instantly brought back memories to islanders of the Bradley sinking. McDonough said he's talked to several people who have shared various recollections of the ship. Phil Gregg has a photo which shows how a dent in the lifeboat came from a cradle on the Bradley. Archie Minor was on board another ship which was caught in the same storm, but took shelter near Washington Island. According to microfilm copies of Charlevoix Courier articles at the Charlevoix Public Library which tell of mountainous seas and winds in excess of 60 miles per hour which caused the ship to sink.

According to various articles, the ship which was built in 1927 had struck bottom near Cedarville in October of 1958 and there may have been some structural problems with some of the bulkheads. She had dropped a load of limestone at Gary, Indiana and was headed for winter lay-up when she was rerouted from a trip to Manitowoc, Wisconsin and sent to Rogers City for another load of limestone.

Despite high winds and heavy seas, the Bradley was progressing past the Beaver Island chain without any significant problem at 5:26 p.m., Nov. 18. Moments later the ship snapped. As the Clary article describes it, "Suddenly there was a tremendous bang which was heard certainly by everyone aboard. The sound had a definite ring of danger. Peering aft from the bridge, in the obvious direction of the noise, Captain Bryan and Fleming could hardly believe their eyes. The Bradley's aft section was sagging! Captain Bryan ordered engine stopped, rang the general alarm and ordered Fleming to send a distress call.

Fleming shouted this desperate message:

"MAYDAY...MAYDAY...THIS IS THE CARL D. BRADLEY. WE ARE BREAKING IN TWO AND SINKING. OUR POSITION - APPROXIMATELY 12 MILES SOUTHWEST OF GULL ISLAND...ANY SHIPS IN THE AREA PLEASE COME TO OUR AID..."

The nearest ship in the area was the German freighter Christian Sartori. It was only four miles away, but given the rough seas was nearly two hours before arriving on the scene. Upon arrival the Sartori initially found only a raincoat and tank. Later that night the Coast Guard Cutters Sundew and Hollyhock from Charlevoix and Sturgeon Bay joined the search.

Mays and Fleming were picked up by the Sundew between 8 a.m. and 9 a.m. the next morning. Only 18 of the 33 bodies were recovered. Many of the bodies were brought back to Charlevoix where the city hall served as a temporary morgue.

City passes dog and cat ordinance

Sidewalks and sandboxes are now safer

In an effort to make the parks, sidewalks and sandboxes of Charlevoix the Beautiful a safer place to live, work and play the city council has passed an ordinance regulating dogs and cats and their droppings. The ordinance was adopted by the council at Monday evening's council meeting.

The issue of dogs running unleashed and leaving piles in city parks was raised earlier this summer when a resident complained that his child had stepped in a dog pile while playing at Ferry Beach.

The council took the matter under consideration and instructed city staff members and city attorney Jim Young to draft an ordinance which would address the concern on a city wide basis.

In presenting the proposed ordinance Monday evening, Young noted that enforcement would be simpler for the city if the state would make dog problems a tickable offense. But the state legislature has not done that, consequently violation of the ordinance must be a misdemeanor offense. That means that if someone were charged with violation of the ordinance and pled not guilty the matter could end up in a jury trial.

Prior to adoption of the ordinance, Larry Sullivan, a second ward resident, asked the council to include cats in the ordinance. He said that over the years in addition to problems with dogs, city residents have had problems with cats leaving droppings in children's sandboxes. Several councilmembers agreed that cats have also been a problem and the ordinance was amended.

The ordinance, as adopted states that dog or cat owners must have their pet on a leash or in a home or vehicle when the pet is not on the owner's property. Pet owners also must immediately clean up after their pet if it defecates on property which does not belong to the owner.

The penalty for violating the ordinance is a misdemeanor with a maximum punishment of a $500 fine or 90 days in jail.

OPINIONS

Editorial

Charlevoix government is peculiar, but it generally works

Although it started with a certain amount of acrimony and suspicion and later entailed a fair amount of snickering, an ordinance passed Monday evening by the Charlevoix City Council to regulate dogs and cats and their droppings offers an interesting insight into the workings of Charlevoix city politics.

Historically, Charlevoix City Council politics have been contentious. That's something which goes back decades. If you talk to people from surrounding communities, they often scoff and ask how anything gets done in Charlevoix. Well, the truth is that although things in Charlevoix government may not get done the easy way, they generally end up getting done. It's been that way for years and years regardless of the personalities involved.

The dog/cat issue is a prime example. Earlier this summer a resident complained about dog droppings on Ferry Beach. The guy's kid had stepped in a dog pile and understandably, he wasn't happy about it.

Curiously, whenever any kind of a complaint, even a complaint of dog droppings on the beach, is brought before the Charlevoix City Council, one of the first issues of concern for some people is the complainant's motive. Yes it's absurd, but as a person sitting at the council meeting, you could watch people and almost see the wheels turning. Could this complaint be taken at face value? Was it merely a matter of someone pointing out a problem which needed to be addressed? Or was it more than that? Was there an ulterior motive? Given past months of complaints about fire department controversies and other things, was this dog dropping complaint just another lightly veiled attempt to make the present city administration look bad?

As a resident of the city with no axe to grind, you can only answer those questions with questions. "Who knows? And who cares?" In the view of an average citizen, it doesn't matter what motivated the complaint. All you care about is that if indeed there is a problem, then it should be fixed.

So regardless of what anybody surmised was the motivation behind the complaint and regardless of any twists, turns or snickering in discussion, ultimately the problem was addressed. In fact, the council went beyond the scope of the problem at Ferry Beach and took the big view, drafting and adopting an ordinance which addresses problems caused by dogs and cats throughout the community. And as a person who lives or visits the community of Charlevoix, that's all you could have wanted - an appropriate solution to the problem.

In a way, things are funny and they're not necessarily always pretty, but things generally work out for the best and the community goes forward. Such is the history of Charlevoix city politics.

Hospital says thanks for Home Tour

Editor,

We want to publicly thank Kappa Sigma for making the 1993 Charlevoix Home Tour a big success. Over the years it has become an event that is always looked forward to with great anticipation by area residents and visitors. And, this year's tour was especially interesting with a wide variety of home styles and furnishings shown. Our praises to Denise Poinner for heading up the tour and for all her efforts over the past two years.

Our sincere appreciation to all the workers who gave of their time to be hosts and hostesses at the homes and especially to the home owners who let us invade their privacy.

Please know that everyone here at the hospital deeply appreciates being the beneficiary of this energetic undertaking. Thank you to all who made it possible.

Sincerely,
Richard L. Krueger

Venetian: The planning's done, let the fun begin

By L. Scott Swanson

The 63rd annual Venetian Festival is ready to march, fly, float and boom beginning Thursday, July 22 and lasting through Sunday, June 25. Per usual, thousands of visitors are expected to be in town for the many Venetian events.

Festival chairman John Taylor said that although the festival all happens within the space of four days, planning and organizing the festival has become a year-around endeavor. In fact, even before the 1993 Venetian Festival has taken place, he's already been working on plans for two new events in 1994.

Taylor notes that while the festival only lasts for one weekend, he hopes that it showcases Charlevoix and pays dividends to the community throughout the year. "It draws people into town and they say, 'This is a beautiful place. Let's come back when it's not so crowded'."

Among the things which may stand out at this year's Venetian Festival are a visit from the Pride of Baltimore sailing ship and corporate sponsorship of various Venetian events.

The Pride of Baltimore is a replica of a top sail schooner from the 1800s. The boat is currently on a two-year tour of the Americas. Charlevoix will be the only stop on the western Michigan shoreline. Taylor said the visit by the Pride of Baltimore is the festival's really big news this year along with the expanded drum and bugle corps championship scheduled for Friday evening at the football field.

Several of the drum and bugle corps will be staying in town to march in Saturday's street parade which begins at 11 a.m. There will be seven marching units in this year's parade. Parade chairman Joe Trojanek says this year's parade will have more than 75 entries and be the biggest and best ever. Prior to the parade there will be a precision fly-over by planes from Island Airways. Trojanek estimates the parade will last about an hour and a half. It will be broadcast live on WMKT, AM 1270. There will also be a public address system downtown. This year's parade marshal is James Wineman.

Burger King is sponsoring this year's parade and had funded the printing of parade programs which will be distributed prior to the parade along the Bridge Street parade route. The parade will form on East Carpenter Street. Any former Venetian queens who wish to ride on the float should meet at the float on Carpenter Street between 10:30 a.m. and 10:45 a.m.

Sponsors for the festival include: Charlevoix County State Bank, overall festival sponsor; Midwest International, fireworks; Pizza Hut and Pepsi, drum and bugle corps championship; Burger King, Crown Motors Limited and Dunmaglas, street parade; Appledore, tall sailing ships; Irish Boat Shop/Searay Boats, Dilworth Boat Shop, Vacation Break of Hillsborough, boat parade; and WAIR, Ameritech Pages Plus, WMKT/WKHQ, promotions.

Taylor said the corporate sponsorships have allowed events to be improved and is also an effort to have the festival at least break even in terms of revenue. The Chamber of Commerce sponsors and coordinates the festival which for the past several years has operated in the red.

Taylor said many of the sponsorships are trade-out things where the companies do something for the festival in return for promotional consideration.

In order to help people get around more conveniently during the festival the Chamber of Commerce has arranged for the Charlevoix County Transit Trolley to operate in town during the weekend from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Sunday and from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday. The cost to ride the trolley is merely $1 for a day-long pass. The trolley stops and schedule will be as follows: Char-Em School office on the hour; Bridge Street by Pointes North :05; Michigan Beach :10; Clinton Street behind Central Drug Store :15; Capri Motel :25; Charlevoix Municipal Airport :30; K-Mart parking area :35; Castle Farms :40; Ferry Beach :45; Bridge Street by Bridge Park :50; Depot Beach :55.

The trolley will also be running in Charlevoix during the weekend of the art fair and festival.

McCardel - Dalen

Mark & Michele Dalen

Michele McCardel and Mark Dalen were married July 4 at Graham Chapel in Harbor Springs. Rev. Dale Ostera officiated the double ring ceremony which was witnessed by 70 guests.

The bride is the daughter of David and Mary McCardel of Charlevoix and Lansing. The groom is the son of William and Millie Dalen of Omaha, Nebraska.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Baskets of star lilies and ivy cascaded onto the back of the altar. Bows of star lilies and white satin ribbons adorned the pews.

A bouquet of white roses was carried by the bride. Her dress was white silk organza with a portrait neck of silk dupioni, organza and Venice lace. The leg of mutton sleeves and bodice of the dress were hand-sewn pearls and sequins. The dress had a chapel length train. A seed pearl tiara attached the matching veil.

Robin Maurer provided organ music for the wedding. Soloist Nancy MacArthur Smith sang Sunrise, Sunset and Ave Maria.

Sara and Kimberly Bredfeldt, nieces of the groom, served as flower girls. They wore pastel floral dresses trimmed in lace. Barry McCardel served as ringbearer. He wore a navy suit with cardigan, white shirt with a Peter Pan collar and knee socks. Sean McCardel, David McCardel and Dr. Brian Mc-

Cardel, brothers of the bride, served as ushers.

A reception was given by the bride's parents at the Country Club of Boyne. Entertainment at the reception included a strolling violinist, piano music and dancing to the Larry Wojcik Band.

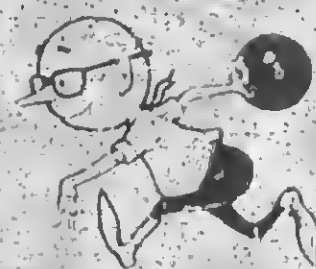

A rehearsal dinner was given by the groom's parents at Stafford's Weathervane.

Following a wedding trip to Mackinac Island and Lake Tahoe, California the couple will be at home in Chicago, Illinois. The bride is a flight attendant for United Airlines. The groom is an importer and owner of a national chain of retail stores.

Oh Boix

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments involving Charlevoix area people.

Coast Guard Petty Officer, 2nd Class Rodger S. Knoop, whose wife, Leslie, is the daughter of Michael and Susan Miller of 109 W. Upright St., Charlevoix, was recently awarded the Coast Guard Humanitarian Service Medal while serving at Coast Guard Loran C. Station, Baudette, Minn.

Knoop received the award for extraordinary service during the period from October 1, 1991 through November 1992. During this period, the men and women of the Coast Guard undertook several massive operations that involved the entire service in selfless acts of humanitarian assistance far beyond the call of duty.

During this time, he participated with other members of the Coast Guard in duties ranging from maritime search and rescue, and marine environmental protection, to national defense and law enforcement.

The 1983 graduate of North Tama High School of Traer, Iowa, joined the Coast Guard in July, 1983.

Lieutenant Junior Grade Russell Coolman was promoted to his present rank in a ceremony May 29, 1993 aboard the USS Vicksburg (CG59), currently in port at Mayport Florida. Coolman is stationed aboard the USS Vicksburg which will deploy for the eastern Mediterranean in January of 1994. Coolman is a 1987 graduate of Charlevoix High School and a 1991 graduate of the US Naval Academy.

Charlevoix resident Jordan Nystrom is attending the Michigan Tech University Hockey Development Center (July 18-23) to improve and enhance his hockey skills. At the camp, he is honing his stickhandling, passing, shooting, skating and checking skills through rigorous drills and challenging scrimmages. In addition to his on-ice activities, he is training in the off-ice development center. Each participant not only is involved in classroom instruction, which includes video critique, but also receives a full written evaluation at the conclusion of the camp.

Michigan Technological University, home of three NCAA Championship hockey teams, started the hockey development center 22 years ago under its legendary hockey coach John MacInnes. Instructors, including top high school and college coaches, along with current professional and former Tech players, provide individual coaching for young hockey players ages eight through seventeen.

City council turns down proposal to increase ambulance rates

By L. Scott Swanson

A proposal to increase city ambulance rates by 50 to 100 percent failed at Monday evening's city council meeting. The initial proposal was to raise the base rate for residents of the city and surrounding townships which have contracts with the city for fire and ambulance protection from $100 to $150 per run. The proposal also called for base rates for nonresidents and residents of surrounding townships which don't have contracts with the city for fire and ambulance protection from $150 to $300.

The motion which the council voted against called for an increase in the nonresident rate, but left out the increase for residents. The motion failed 3-2, consequently for the time being there will be no increase for either residents or nonresidents. Council members Ted Felter and Cheri Hoffman voted in favor of the motion. Council members Butch Russell, Bruce Livingston and Don Meggison voted against the motion.

The proposal resulted from a Hayes Township decision to no longer receive city fire protection. That decision and subsequent loss of revenue to the city has left the city's general fund with a revenue shortfall of $26,700 in relationship to what was budgeted for the current fiscal year.

In previous years, Hayes Township has contracted with the city for fire and ambulance protection. Earlier this year the township sought to change the price structure of the contract. The city disagreed. Hayes Township then took bids for fire protection and decided to purchase fire protection from the Charlevoix Township Fire Department rather than from the City Fire Department. The township is still contracting for ambulance service from the city, at least for the time being.

In a memo to the city council, city manager Mike Wiesner recommended increasing ambulance rates to offset $6,000 of the anticipated revenue loss. The memo proposed to cover the remaining $20,700 with money from the city's contingency fund. In the memo, Wiesner said that, "Hopefully, in the future we will proceed to look at forming a fire and ambulance district with the surrounding municipalities."

Some council members and audience members at Monday evening's meeting opposed the rate increases and said they would rather see the full-time fire department staff cut from four to three people.

Council member Butch Russell said the price increase would only be a one-year fix. He said people have indicated to him that they favor cutting employees rather than raising rates and that the department ran with three employees in the past.

Council member Cheri Hoffman favored raising the rates rather than absorbing the shortfall through a general fund appropriation because she feels the department should be as self-supporting as possible. Hoffman and council member Ted Felter opposed cutting an employee in the middle of the year, preferring to try the increased rates for the time being and consider staffing levels when the budget for next year is discussed in February. Hoffman spoke in favor of looking at the matter this year as discussions of forming a fire and ambulance district continue.

Council member Don Meggison and council candidate Bob Timms said they feel the council is trying to solve a fire department problem by raising ambulance rates. Timms said he questioned the link.

"I would strongly suggest you eliminate one fire department position," Timms said. Of the proposed rate increase, he said, "This smells a bit like the federal government. Tax and spend."

Second ward resident Gabe Campbell was critical of the proposed rate increase. He noted that many people are either uninsured or not completely insured and would suffer if rates are increased.

Construction workers used a large crane to reach the top of the steeple on the Congregational Church. Workers were removing shingles as part of a reroofing project which is the first step in a major remodeling of the church exterior. Rev. Phil Schairbaum said the exterior remodeling and landscaping project should be completed before winter.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

Walking around town, it is always a blessing to see families that have come to Charlevoix for vacation. Seeing Mom, Dad, and the kids exploring our streets together reminds me of trips our family took when I was a boy. My Dad was a big believer in doing something meaningful for us kids with his vacation time. We didn't just go to the beach or to grandma's. Somewhere along the way, he always managed to sneak in one stop that he felt we would always remember.

One summer, we went to a little town called Highland Falls, New York. It's a small village nestled along the Hudson River valley. In its own right, you probably would not expect too many people to have heard of it. It has a neighbor, however, that a lot of people will remember. The United States Military Academy calls it home.

I can remember walking the campus filled with granite Gothic buildings. I can still see the long grey line of cadets passing in review along the parade ground. Sounds of cadence and commands echoed from monument to monument. We went to the school bookstore and my Dad purchased a copy of "Bugle Notes," a handbook for plebes (which is what freshman cadets were called). The one thing he wanted to impress on me about the visit was the code the cadets lived by: "Duty, Honor, Country." Those were big words for a seven-year-old to roll around in his mind.

Looking back, I suspect that Dad had hoped that I might choose the service as a career. When you think about it, I did; just a different branch of the service. Instead of being a part of the long grey line, I am a part of a long history of serving and caring men and women who trace their heritage back to a little stable in Bethlehem. We were activated by a man who followed a code of holy honor that saw him willingly sacrifice His own life on a hill called Calvary.

Duty can take a Christian places they never dreamed and involve them in things they never expected to be involved in. Instead of West Point's "Bugle Notes," it is the Bible that tells us to be willing to go the extra mile in pursuit of duty. Honor resounds within the believers heart as we are reminded over and over again to "love one another as I have loved you." With all the ups and downs that can happen in this life, those who serve in this holy army should be encouraged when they remember where their citizenship really is. As blessed as we are to live in the United States of America, there is that wonderful country that awaits every faithful soul in heaven.

It's been more than thirty years since that family vacation visit to West Point. I would hope that my Dad would have been pleased at how I remember it. What are you doing to make a memorable summer for your family? Something you do with your children today could change their lives forever.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

Michael A. Blankenship

Michael A. Blankenship, 40, died July 14, 1993, at his home in Petoskey.

His funeral was held Saturday, July 17, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Andre Schludecker, OFM, of St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church in Petoskey, officiated. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery, Petoskey.

He was born June 19, 1953, in Flint, the son of Marvin and Jeanette Blankenship. He was raised in Flint and graduated from Carmen High School in Flint in 1971. He attended Ferris State University in Big Rapids and North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

He married Patricia Henige on Sept. 5, 1980, in Flushing, and they have lived in Petoskey for 10 years.

Mr. Blankenship was employed by Healthwares in Petoskey for the past five years. He and his wife, Pat, co-owned Village Inn Pizza in Charlevoix and Elk Rapids.

Survivors include his wife, Patricia Henige of Petoskey; his daughter, Lisa, and son, Matthew, both at home; his parents, Marvin and Jeanette Blankenship of Flint; brother, Mark Blankenship and his wife Kathy of Flint; and his in-laws, Donald and Norma Henige of Flushing.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Blankenship Children's Fund. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Irving L. "Bud" Hallett

Irving L. "Bud" Hallett, 70, of Charlevoix, died July 20, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Arrangements are pending at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

A complete obituary will follow.

Lutheran Church to host Bible school

Bible School program will be presented by Bethany Lutheran Church Aug. 9 - 12 from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

"God's Champions - Equipped to Follow Jesus" is the theme of the four day program. By visiting different "sports camps" each day, children will meet fascinating champions from sports and Bible times; all the while learning what it means to be one of God's champions. Kids, ages 5 through 12, learn the values of telling the truth, making good choices; sharing their faith, trusting God, and reading the Bible.

Each session will be at Bethany Lutheran Church, Bridge Street (across from McDonald's) in Charlevoix. For more information, call the director at 547-5725 for registration.

City policeman doing bike patrol

The Charlevoix City Police Department has recently added a bicycle patrol to its law enforcement repertoire. Officer Pete Shrift, sometimes accompanied by auxiliary officer Brian VanMeter has been doing some evening patrols on a bicycle.

Police chief Dennis Halverson had wanted to initiate a bike patrol with one of his officers and Shrift ended up being the officer selected. In the past, Shrift has competed in bicycle races. His brother is in the bicycle business.

Shrift said the bike patrol is in its early stages and has a lot of potential uses. One of the things Halverson wanted and Shrift has immediately noticed is that the bicycle allows the officer to have more personal contact with people. Some areas where the bikes have proved particularly effective are city parks and beaches. The bikes eliminate a barrier that the patrol car puts between the officer and the public.

Business Names

Charles Wilmot, president of Wilmot Electric, Inc., recently announced that Gregory L. Chappuis and Wayne Sundstrom have been appointed Vice-Presidents of Wilmot Electric, Inc., and have been named to the corporation's Board of Directors as well as shareholders of stock in the corporation.

Chappuis, who resides in East Jordan, has been appointed Vice-President in charge of Automation and Controls for Wilmot Electric.

Sundstrom, who resides in Cheboygan, has been appointed Vice-President in charge of Construction, Estimating and Procurement for Wilmot Electric.

Wilmot Electric's tenth anniversary of business was reached in January of this year. Chappuis has been employed with Wilmot Electric since its inception, and Sundstrom has been with Wilmot Electric since May, 1985.

This promotion of two long-term, proven, loyal business associates and personal friends is intended to reward them for their exemplary service and at the same time position Wilmot for stability and continuity for the future.

Police take to two wheels

Charlevoix auxiliary police officer Brian VanMeter (left) and police officer Pete Shrift have been on bike patrol in recent weeks. The bike patrol is a new part-time program the police department has initiated.

Camp McSauba continues to provide summer fun for Charlevoix children

By Laurie Lounsbury

Fun. It's a child's most sublime, summertime goal. Fortunately for Charlevoix area kids, the Camp McSauba philosophy ties right in to these childhood aspirations.

"The biggest goal here is for all kids to have fun," said Meg Fowler, the camp's director. Fowler said that activities at Camp McSauba are always flexible enough to accommodate all campers. "If they're having fun just playing, then we just play," Fowler said. Just playing can mean anything from bingo games on rainy days to T-ball games or new varieties of the old standard game of hide and seek.

Camp McSauba operates as a day camp Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Weekly sessions run through the middle of August. Structured activities include BB gunnery, archery, arts and crafts, and hiking. "We take good advantage of the nature trails," Fowler said.

Lyme disease is a serious debilitating bacterial illness that is spread by the bite of a tick. It is the commonest tick-borne disorder in the United States. 583 cases have been reported in Michigan since 1979. The illness has been diagnosed in residents of Northern Michigan. The highest risk months are May, June, and July. In 1992, 43 cases were reported in Michigan.

Lyme disease is hard to diagnose because its symptoms can vary from person to person and involve different parts of the body. Also, fewer than one-half of people with the illness remember a tick bite. Immature (nymph) ticks are easily overlooked because they are not much bigger than a pinhead. The most obvious early symptom of Lyme disease is a red skin rash which occurs within the first 3 to 32 days after the bite. The rash usually breaks out near the bite site within a week or two and develops into a reddish oval two to six inches across. It may be as large as 20 inches. Without treatment, it soon fades. The rash may have a firm center, feel warm to the touch, or provide a burning sensation, and disappear briefly, only to reappear elsewhere on the body. Occasionally, the rash shows central clearing and resembles a bull's eye. Even larger rashes can be missed because they are faint or occur on the back, groin, or armpit. Up to 30 percent of people with Lyme disease do not develop a rash. Flu-like symptoms may occur and include fever, headache, nausea, aching joints and muscles and fatigue. They may be the first sign of illness. If untreated, Lyme disease may cause heart, eye, and nervous system problems, and chronic arthritis weeks to years later. If you notice symptoms after being in a tick infested area, even though you were not aware of being bitten, see your doctor.

To protect yourself during the spring and summer months, stay out of areas likely to be infested with ticks. When exposure is unavoidable, do the following:

1. Wear light colored protective clothing, i.e. long sleeves that are snug at the wrists, shirt tucked in at the waist, and pants tucked into socks or boots.

2. Treat clothing with a repellent that contains permethrin, which kills ticks on contact. Apply DEET which repels, but does not kill ticks, to clothes and exposed skin. On the skin, use solutions with low concentrations (under 30 percent DEET). Avoid using DEET solutions on the face, on infants, or small children.

3. Do a thorough self inspection when you come indoors and inspect children when they come in. Studies show that transmission of the disease is unlikely if the tick has been attached for less than 24 to 48 hours.

4. Make sure pets are well protected with tick collars and powders, and check them daily during tick season.

5. Avoid brush piles, tall grass, and other vegetation where ticks may be located.

6. Mow grass short around your house and outbuildings.

7. Take a thorough shower or bath and wash clothing after working outside in the underbrush.

If you discover a tick attached to your skin, do the following:

1. Use tweezers (and not your fingers), and grasp the tick behind the head and slowly but firmly pull it straight out. Do not twist or jerk the tick. If the head is left in the skin, do not probe for it, but consult your doctor. Otherwise, treat the site as you would an ordinary wound.

2. Wash your hands and the bite area and apply antiseptic. If you must touch the tick, cover your fingers with tissue, then wash your hands thoroughly.

3. Save the tick and put it in a small container or jar labeled with the date, the body location of the bite, and where you think the tick came from. Put a small piece of wet paper or cotton in with the live tick. The health department will have the tick identified and tested for Lyme disease. Dead ticks should be placed in alcohol and can be sent for identification.

4. Watch the area of the bite for the appearance of a rash that resembles a bull's eye. If one appears or if you notice vague symptoms such as headache, fever, chills, fatigue, stiff neck, or painful joints and muscles, see your doctor immediately.

Lyme disease does not have to be a problem for people in Northern Michigan. Proper protective actions, along with early treatment can minimize problems related to this disease. Since there appears to be no tick repellent available that can be used repeatedly on the skin of infants and children without potential allergic or toxic effects, the best approach at present may be a twice daily body search and evening shower or bath following exposure to ticks. Questions about possible infection with Lyme disease should be directed to your physician.

General questions about Lyme disease may be directed to any local health department office: Petoskey, (616)347-6014; Charlevoix 547-6523; Gaylord (517)732-1794; or Bellaire (616)533-8670.

...Camp McSauba provides an outlet for children's excess summer energy

Perched in the dunes at North Point, Mt. McSauba offers a pristine, natural environment for children. Scheduled activities usually take place in the morning, leaving the afternoons free for a hike over the dunes to Lake Michigan for a little swimming.

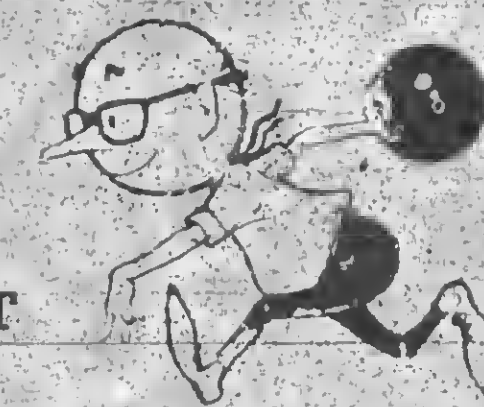

Thursday night is the highlight of the camping week. An overnight is held in the lodge, after cooking out and roasting marshmallows over an open fire under the stars. Campers used to sleep outside in tents, but new carpeting in the lodge made staying indoors for the night a more desirable alternative. "It's like a giant slumber party," Fowler said.

Campers' ages range from five to 13 years old. The last session of camp, from Aug. 9 to Aug. 13, is reserved for the nine to 13 year olds. "It's definitely the funnest session of the summer," Fowler said. "They're (the older campers) given more freedom and responsibility for themselves," she explained. Older campers have a terrific time planning elaborate counselor hunts and camper hunts. The daily hunts pit counselors against campers in a quest to be the best hiders or seekers. By the third day of camp, kids start wearing camouflage clothes and painting their faces so that they can blend in with the scenery and remain undetected by the counselors.

The cost of one week at Camp McSauba is $50 per camper. Because of donations made to the camp by charitable organizations, there are more than 20 camp scholarships available to campers needing financial assistance. For Charlevoix students who qualify for the free lunch program, full scholarships to camp are available. Students who qualify for the reduced price lunch program may obtain partial scholarships. For more information on Camp McSauba, call the Charlevoix City Recreation Department at 547-3253.

These four girls brought home a first place trophy from the Belding Gus Macker basketball tournament. They are: (from left) Ann Marie Terryberry, Amanda Eaton, Lisa Parrish and Lindsay Blechel. It was their second first place Macker finish this year.

Charlevoix to host 3 on 3 basketball tournament Aug. 8

Charlevoix will be hosting a 3 on 3 Summer Slam basketball tournament Sunday, Aug. 8 in St. Mary's parking lot. All proceeds from the tournament will benefit the St. Mary's School program.

The tournament will be double elimination. Teams will be computer matched according to age, height and playing experience. Players will call their own fouls and violations. Each court will have a "Slammaster" to oversee disputes and control the game. The Slammaster can call flagrant or intentional fouls with the penalty being comparable to a technical foul. A standard field goal will be worth one point, although there will be a two-point line. Possession will change after each basket.

The entry fee for the tournament is $40 and is due by July 31. Teams may consist of three or four players. Entry blanks may be picked up at Dairy Queen in Charlevoix and Petoskey, Buday's Home Electronics in Charlevoix and Petoskey, McDonald's in Boyne City, and St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

For additional information, phone 547-4541.

Regatta raises money for Camp Quality

July 17 marked the third annual Jim Kuhn Memorial Regatta & Benefit Race. This year's event was attended by 11 entries competing in 3 divisions.

Saturday's light air allowed only one race with the following results: Division I (JAM Fleet): 1st: Ken Heininger, Cheemaun; 2nd: Ira Brenehan, Gemini Too; 3rd: Hap Wright, Loup De Lamer. Division II: (Spinnaker 151 & up): 1st: Bill & Salli Hawkins, Night Moves; 2nd: Marty Jensen, Newsense; 3rd: Steve Swanson, Hussy. Division III: (Spinnaker 100-150): 1st: Tom Mueller, Gotcha; 2nd: Dave Strawbridge, Pygmalion; 3rd: Bill Kenieck, Assault.

The finish times were scored again using the "Camp Quality" handicap formula. For each $10 donation, the boat handicap is raised 3 seconds. Top donation boat was Night Moves with $1,100 raised to equal 495 seconds per mile handicap. A total of over $3,300 was raised for the Camp Quality program. The following businesses helped support this cause: Ace Hardware, Boyne Country Party Shop, Glen's Market, Sportsman's Bar, Dilworth & Lally Yacht Brokers, Sysco/Frost Pak, Charlevoix Screenmasters and the band "Slipknot."

Results: Division I: 1st: Cheemaun, 2nd: Gemini Too, 3rd: Loup De Lamer. Division II: 1st: Night Moves, 2nd: Newsense, 3rd: Hussy. Division III: 1st: Gotcha, 2nd: Assault, 3rd: Pygmalion.

Next year's race has been tentatively set for July 16th. The format will change to two local buoy course races. Contact the Boyne City Yacht Club members for more information.

Car show combined with golf tournament

A new event is being added to the Venetian Festival this year on Sunday, July 25, 1993, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the beautiful Dunmaglas Golf Course on Boyne City Road, just five minutes from downtown Charlevoix. (See related story on page 19.)

The classic - classic combines a classic car show on the grounds of the inn at Dunmaglas with a classic golf tournament to be enjoyed on the Dunmaglas course. Golfers everywhere are invited. Get a foursome together and participate in this best 2 ball of 4 event. Minimum handicap 48 for the foursome. $2,500.00 in prizes. Cost $75 includes 18 holes, cart, lunch and prizes.

Call for tee times and more information (616) 547-1022. Call to register your classic car and for more information: (313) 695-5747 or bring your car to the car show and register day of event.

Morning and afternoon tee times available, prizes of $2,500.00 based on 30 foursomes. Tee times before 10 a.m. are available.

Registration fee for classic/antique/road and custom/cars of special interest, etc. $10. Five dollars of each car registration will go to the Brian Roloff Fund. Brian, a Charlevoix resident and well-known area musician, was stricken with an inoperable brain tumor and is faced with extreme medical expenses.

Call for info or just bring your car the day of the show. 313-695-5747.

Venetian Festival: It was a bash

They wouldn't stand still so you could get a good count, but some estimates are that more than 40,000 people attended the 1993 Venetian Festival.

Among the highlights of the event was the entrance into the harbor of the Pride of Baltimore, a 92-foot-long replica of an 1812 tall sailing ship. The ship entered the harbor under sail during the street parade. Thousands of people lining Bridge Street for the parade rose as one as the ship's sails extended well above the top of the bridge. The Pride of Baltimore boomed her cannons and was answered by booms from the Madeline, another replica of an 1800s Great Lakes sailing ship which was already docked in the harbor.

Other festival highlights included Thursday evening's crowning of the 1993 Miss Charlevoix, Amy Parrish.

Friday evening featured the Venetian Drum and Bugle Corps Championship. Several of the corps stayed in town to participate in Saturday's street parade.

Saturday morning more than 400 runners participated in the annual Venetian Festival Drenth Memorial Foot Race. (Race results are listed on page 14.)

Saturday morning's street parade featured several bands, along with clowns, floats, old cars, fast cars and fire trucks.

Throughout Saturday afternoon and early evening East Park was filled with music and entertainment from the Clarence Odmark Pavilion.

Following the Venetian Boat Parade in the harbor a massive display of fireworks wrapped up Saturday evening's activities.

New scoreboard dedicated to Mike Reinhart

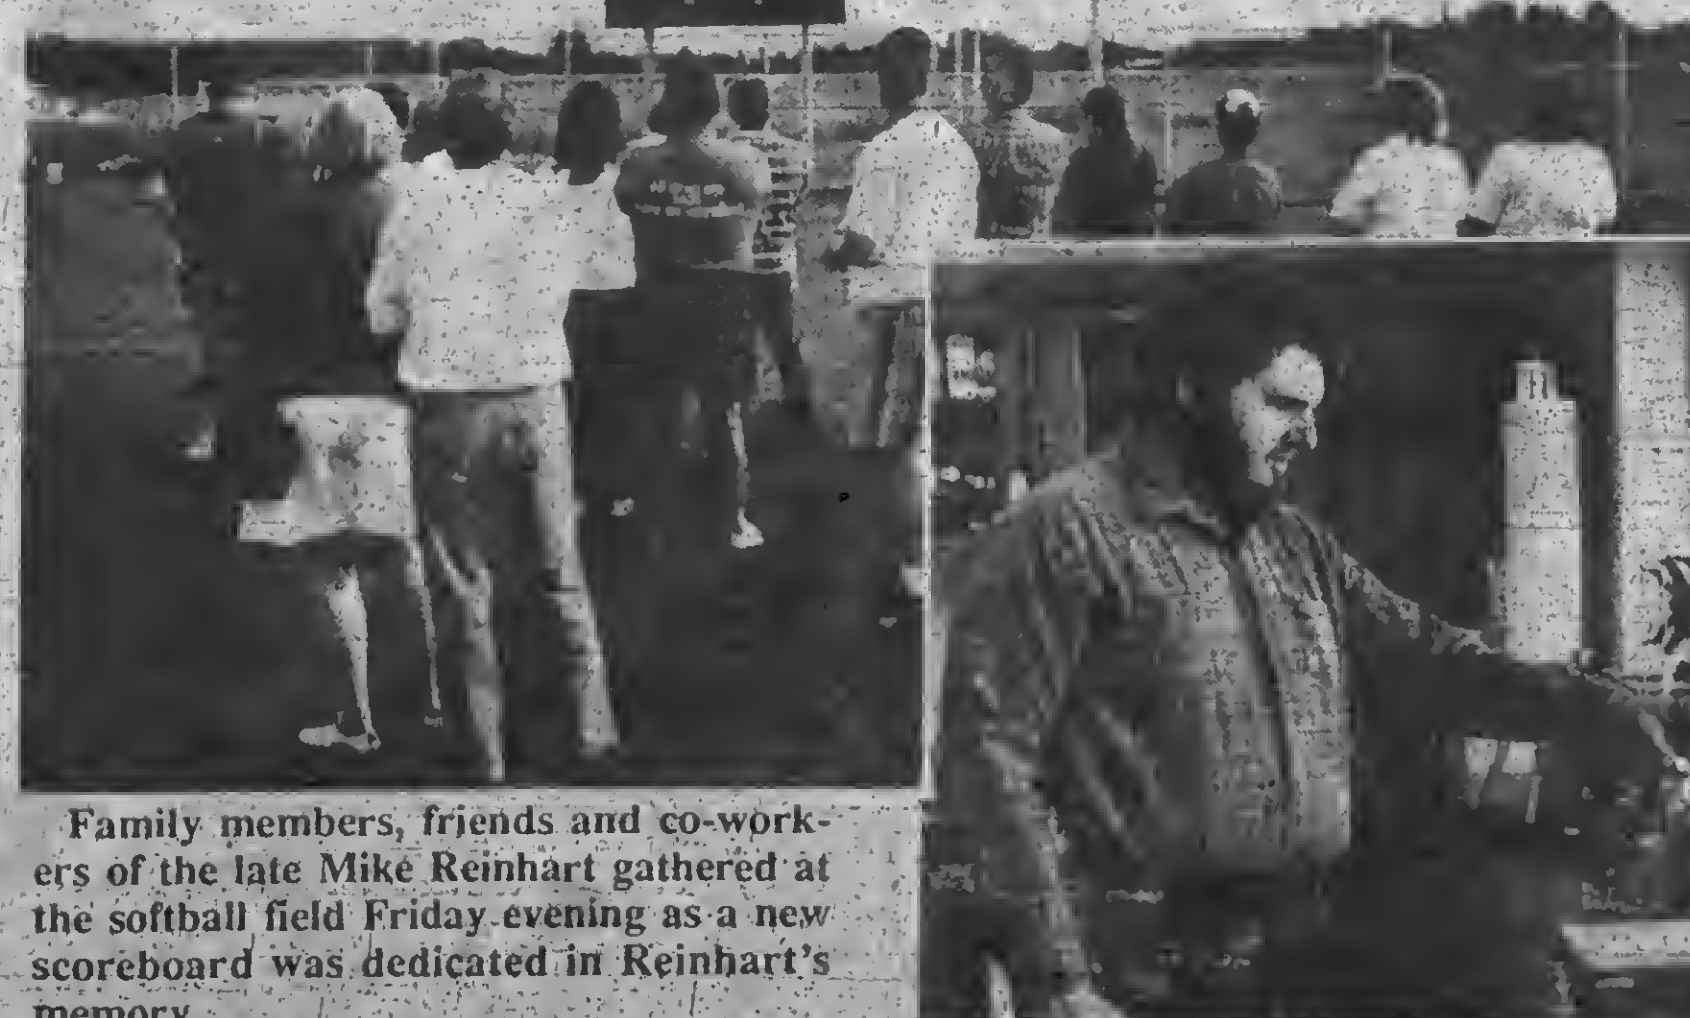

He enjoyed playing in and helping out with city recreation programs

By L. Scott Swanson

A new scoreboard at the city softball field was dedicated to the memory of Mike Reinhart Friday evening. Reinhart was a city employee for 17 years, most recently as water plant superintendent. He was also active in city recreation programs as a player, coach and just as someone lending a hand when one was needed to organize one thing or another. He died June 1 after several weeks of complications following stomach surgery.

Friday evening's ceremony took place in centerfield, beneath the new scoreboard. I attended the ceremony to take a picture for the Courier, but prior to the ceremony as I walked past second base toward the outfield with Reinhart's family, friends and coworkers, a Family members, friends and co-workers of the late Mike Reinhart gathered at the softball field Friday evening as a new scoreboard was dedicated in Reinhart's memory.

(Writer's note: Normally, news paper stories aren't written in first person form. But in this case, the subject of the story is a personal recollection of Mike Reinhart, someone I, like many other people in the community, had known and enjoyed dealing with for about 20 years. In writing the story, it just seemed to make sense to write it in a first person format. I thank Courier readers for their indulgence.)

...softball scoreboard dedicated to Mike Reinhart

memory came to mind.

When I was young, I used to hang out around the softball field a lot. I can't remember exactly how old I was when I started riding my bike to the softball field to watch the games, but as I recall, in those days they started kids playing tee ball at age eight and I can remember being at the softball field when I was still too young to get on a team. I played tee ball for a couple of years on the now defunct Black Sox team and then I moved on to Peanut League, where they actually pitched the ball, and played that for a few years.

In addition to playing, my friends and I used to watch the men's slow pitch games. This was before they moved the fence back. In those days the left field fence was quite a bit closer to the plate and home runs used to fly out of that park regularly. My friends and I would stand behind the left field fence with our gloves and catch home runs.

The score board in those days wasn't electronic. It was just a big board up on posts. The board had hooks in it and a bench between the posts. A big box contained a bunch of numbers and at the end of the inning whatever kid happened to be the scorekeeper would put up a number to show how many runs had been scored.

One evening I was sitting on that scoreboard watching a game. I was probably around 12 or 13 years old at the time. That particular summer the city recreation department was trying to get a fastpitch softball league started for kids who were beyond playing in Peanut League, but who were still too young to play in the men's league.

As I sat on the scoreboard, Mike Reinhart came walking up. I don't recall just exactly where or how we'd met, but I knew who he was and he knew who I was. At the time, he must have been in his early 20s.

"You playin' softball this year," he asked?

"Not yet," I answered. "I signed up for that new league, but I haven't heard anything from anybody."

"Well, I'm coaching one of those teams. You wanna play on it?"

"I might. Who else you got playin'?"

"Danny Oliver's going to pitch for us and I've been talking to some other guys," Reinhart said, noting that Beano Archey was also going to be coaching with him.

When he said Danny Oliver was going to be pitching, he had me persuaded. In those days, if you were a kid playing fastpitch softball in Charlevoix you wanted one of two guys pitching for your team - either Danny Oliver or Brian Warner. There were some other kids who pitched OK, but those two were clearly the best of the lot.

So I told Reinhart to count me in and he told me when the first practice was. When I showed up at the practice, I had a sneaking suspicion as to how this team had been assembled. Tom Morrison was playing shortstop, Jay Moore was over at first base and one of Ivan and Elaine Whitley's boys - I believe it was Dane - was catching. I was put at third base. My suspicion was that Reinhart had just talked to kids who he knew hung around the field and played a lot of softball. Consequently, he had ended up with a pretty fair team.

Come to find out later there was a player draft to organize the league and another team had drafted me. But by the time they got in touch with me by phone, I'd already been recruited off the scoreboard and was playing with Reinhart's team and was perfectly happy there. I told the other team, "Thanks, but no thanks."

As they dedicated the new scoreboard Friday evening and sang the national anthem, I enjoyed that memory. Later in the weekend I was up at the ballfield taking pictures of the Venetian fastpitch tournament and saw Reinhart's wife, Patty, and shared that memory with her. She said several people have come up to her since Mike's death and told her about different things like that which they remember about her husband. That has been one of many ways in which people of the community have attempted to be supportive in the face of Mike Reinhart's death. Patty said that some of the things Mike had done over the years to help the community, he hadn't even mentioned to her. She said that was kind of the way he was. He just helped out with things because he enjoyed it. He didn't do it for any acclaim or recognition.

Whenever someone who has been active and volunteered a great deal of time in a small community dies, the community feels a sense of loss. That is only natural. But despite the loss of one person like that, the programs that person worked with still continue. They continue because there are other good people who give of their time and do things like coaching kids' softball teams and lending a hand where one is needed. That's one of the nice things about a small community and one of the nicest tributes that can be paid by Charlevoix to people like Mike Reinhart.

Morris wins Petunia Party drawing

Carol and Chuck Morris won the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful early bird drawing for the fifth annual petunia party. The theme of this year's party is "A Sunday Sampler." Several Charlevoix area restaurants will be providing a variety of food for the party which will take place from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 30.

The early bird drawing took place during the Venetian Festival. The winners will receive two free tickets and a limousine ride to the party.

Ticket chairman Jackie Kruttsch reports that more than two-thirds of the 300 tickets available for the party have already been sold.

In the past the party has taken place in conjunction with an auction. This year only one item will be auctioned off. That is the organ which the late Al Breeze used to play.

Aug. 10 school millage request is one which can be supported

A school board request for 14.55 mills for school operational funding should be approved by Charlevoix School District voters at an election which will occur Aug. 10.

At 14.55 mills, school revenue from last year to this year will be increasing by about the rate of inflation which is something taxpayers should be able to tolerate.

School voters were correct in turning down a June proposal for 16.55 mills. Even though the proposal represented a half mill decrease from the 17.05 mills levied this year, due to increases in property assessments, property taxes as a whole would have increased well above the rate of inflation. Lowering the millage proposal to 14.55 mills offsets the assessment increases to bring the overall property tax increase back into line with inflation.

The educational system in Charlevoix and elsewhere is entering a new era. The America K-12 educational system has some shortcomings in comparison to the educational system of other nations. The citizens of this country are demanding educational improvement and they are demanding that resources expended translate into measurable results.

To the Charlevoix school system's credit, changes are being made. Granted, some of the changes are causing a certain amount of conflict within the school board and within the school system. At a recent school board meeting, a proposal to redefine the position of assistant high school principal to curriculum director was debated at length and ended up being turned down by a 4-3 vote. Charlevoix school district taxpayers should not be at all dismayed by the lengthy debate or the split vote. In fact, they should be pleased. The debate was dignified and carried on at an intellectual level. It was simply a matter of intelligent people drawing different conclusions from the same set of facts. That happens and it's perfectly healthy.

Another interesting facet of the debate is that it was public. More than one person who has attended Charlevoix school board meetings in the past has come away feeling that in regard to certain decisions, the motion and vote were merely a formality and that any debate and discussion had occurred before the public meeting. A movement toward more open debate and discussion is also quite healthy. As a taxpayer, it's much easier to support proposals to fund school board decisions if you understand the factors, both pro and con, behind the decisions.

Curiously, just as improvements are being made in school and community dialogue and in having the school system do some fiscal belt-tightening, the state legislature is claiming they're going to wipe out school property taxes next year. If history has taught Michigan taxpayers anything, it should be that it's not wise to count Lansing tax proposals as reality until they actually are reality. Lansing's latest tax proposal should be viewed with skepticism. Believe it when you see it.

Meanwhile, the local school system has expressed a willingness to start living within a bit tighter budget. As taxpayers we should take them up on that. On Aug. 10 taxpayers should vote yes and then continue to monitor the school system to encourage continued progress.

EDITH GILBERT

by EDITH GILBERT

I never expected to write a column this week, but here I go pecking away with my left hand!

For those of you who haven't heard, I missed the bottom step at the me-cute arts center stairway, and landed on my right elbow on a stone floor. I thought my elbow was dislocated, but after the ambulance took me to the hospital in Petoskey, they found in the x-ray that it had been fractured in 7 places.

Just like humpy dumpty, orthopedic surgeons, drs. me murray and damschroeder did their very best with nuts and bolts to put me back together again. I have had no pain since it was x-rayed and I will be in this cast for 6 or 8 weeks.

In the meantime, they kept me in the hospital for a week, because I live alone, and couldn't go home. It's embarrassing to admit that in spite of my requests for no visitors and no flowers, there was an outpouring of both, with all the phone calls to boot, the nurses laughingly told me they had never seen such a to do. I'm not proud of the fact that my roommate was moved down the hall for a little peace and quiet.

Some people may wish that I had fallen on my head, because there was no let up on my part during this confined period, to remain in contact with numerous people, regarding the need for corrective railings on the bridge, gary harsh, city planner, has recently given john hess, little traverse metal co., needed drawings and john will present a progress report at this wed's dda meeting. In addition, congressman stupak called me while he was in charlevoix during the venetian festival. he is alerted to both the safety and the appearance of the recently installed objectionable east side railing. we may expect a call from congressman stupak from wash. d.c. this week.

The historical society has written to the michigan department of transportation with the hope of acquiring the award-winning rails on the west side. the response has been positive. only a few details need to be resolved pertaining to the dismantling.

As for the venetian festival, fortunately, I was able to attend this year's outstanding boat parade and fireworks, in my 53 years of participating in and observing the event I must agree with all those who were present, that this was the best! hats off to young john taylor and his dedicated committee.

If my luck holds out, you will see me at the art auction on thursday at dunmaglas on the boyne city road. it's the major fund raiser for the benefit of the crooked tree arts council that serves both charlevoix and emmet county. they tell me there will be wonderful items in both the silent auction and the live auction this year. it's a great time to pick up a present for yourself or that special someone while enjoying the pastoral outdoor setting at sunset. moneys raised will go to keep the arts center open year 'round, including children's classes, music and dance programs, bus-ing students to and from exhibits and many other worthwhile cultural events.

Letters to the editor

Historical Society defends its record

Editor,

As authorized by the Charlevoix Historical Society Board of Directors, I would like to address the letter entitled, "Shame on Charlevoix's Historical Society," July 11, 1993, as stated by Larry Freedman concerning the 1906 water tower.

As the Executive Director of the Harsha House Museum I take responsibility for both negative and positive reactions our visitors might have concerning our facility and its services. But, I must clarify the events that took place up to the decision of the Charlevoix City Council to move ahead and seek the DNR grant to remove the 1906 water tower.

In April I received a copy of a letter from George McManus, State Senator, Thirty-Seventh District, addressed to Larry Freedman. In that letter Mr. Freedman was advised to contact the State Historic Preservation Officer in Lansing to discuss options available to Mr. Freedman and any other parties interested in preserving the 1906 water tower.

This was the only correspondence I received concerning the proposed preservation. Now, if Mr. Freedman or the Charlevoix City Council had contacted the Charlevoix Historical Society, I would have directed them to the same agency. My appearance at the June 21 city council meeting was to clearly state the Historical Society's position of all of its members; to remain neutral and aid any persons or agency wanting to preserve the water tower.

I would also like to stress other projects that the Charlevoix Historical Society has accomplished in the past and is currently involved in: "Charlevoix - A Century in Pictures", which was Charlevoix's first complete photograph history.

Number two, the 1979 acquisition of the endangered Ann Harsha home and subsequent Harsha House Museum renovation project which gave Charlevoix a beautiful public museum while also preserving an historic home.

Number three, the 1988 hiring of a full time summer director to aid museum visitors, assist researchers and aid public agencies in answering questions of historic importance statewide.

Number four, the 1991 publication of the "Historic Charlevoix" tour booklet, which serves both resident and visitors to Charlevoix with the ability to learn, in a guided manner throughout Charlevoix, about our historically important sites and their part in our heritage.

Number five, the 1992 acquisition of the nationally important Charlevoix Railroad Depot. This project's purpose is to provide a larger museum facility to serve Charlevoix residents and visitors, and to preserve one of Charlevoix's most important historic structures of the 1890s for future generations. We will also continue to monitor and pursue preservation projects as well as assist other groups in their efforts for projects that we are not able to fund.

Cats are not a problem

Editor,

A LEASH LAW for CATS?? Has any one of the prominent members of Charlevoix City Council (or Larry Sullivan) ever witnessed any of the following (either recently or in their illustrious past)?

1. Cat droppings in the middle of anywhere? (If you still have a sandbox, cover it up when you are not playing in it). I've outgrown mine.
2. Have you ever stepped in a cat dropping anywhere? I thought cats buried it?
3. Have you ever seen a cat drop

Currently the Society is involved in documenting the one-room schoolhouses of the county through photographs, oral histories and inventories. We are also heading up the documentation of Charlevoix County's log construction buildings in an attempt to preserve these structures as well as promote this unique building style for local school students and visitors to learn. And as always, the Charlevoix Historical Society is heading up local programs to promote Charlevoix's rich history of the public, receiving locally important artifacts, photographs and family histories, and making these preserved articles available to the residents and our generations to come.

The Charlevoix Historical Society is an alive and vital organization that not only preserves Charlevoix's history responsibly, but looks forward to the future Charlevoix offers to us all.

Sincerely,
Geoffrey D. Reynolds
Executive Director
Harsha House Museum

a dropping anywhere? They are private creatures. Some humans could learn from them.

I am sick and tired of stepping in tree droppings in the fall. Is there some way the City Council of Charlevoix could pass an ordinance prohibiting tree owners from allowing trees to indiscriminately drop their leaves all over the place? Maybe some sort of leaf-leash. What about harnessing up a few birds, they can get pretty messy.

A poetic look at the old water tower

Editor,

We are rather late getting our Couriers way out here on the edge of the continent, so perhaps the old water tower is already gone. But I am sending this poem with no apologies at all to Oliver Wendell Holmes, who is not in a position to care anyway.

OLD SILVERSIDES

Aye, tear that rusting structure down —
Long has it stood on high,
And many an eye has danced to see
That tower in the sky.

Beneath it rang the children's shouts
And burst the breakers' roar —
The landmark of old Charlevoix
Shall touch the clouds no more.

Its peak, once proudly pointed high
Will not be there in view —
The junkyard soon shall greedy claim
The tower that once we knew.

So hard to part with this old friend!
But Wrecker, wait a minute —
Just set it in the City park
And plant petunias in it.

Anne Olmstead
La Crescenta, California

Out of the Blue

Whether you whisper it in my ear,
Or whether I hear you shout it Makes no difference -- is that clear? --
If I have cause to doubt it!

FAMILY

Puffpaff 40th

Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Puffpaff

Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Puffpaff of Charlevoix recently celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary. They were married July 11, 1953, at the Congregational Church in Charlevoix. They have three children: Debbie Godfrey, Ann Marie Niell, and Kurt Puffpaff. They also have three grandchildren, Jeremy and Joshua Godfrey and Amanda Niell. All were present to help celebrate the special occasion.

Foundation awards seven grants

The Charlevoix Community Foundation has announced grants totalling nearly $10,000 to seven non-profit organizations in the area. The grants are the first awarded by the Foundation since its beginning nearly a year ago.

Projects selected for funding represent a variety of programs serving children, families, and older adults throughout Charlevoix County. The projects were selected by a community-wide distribution committee and the Foundation's Board of Directors from among 17 applicants who made requests of more than $57,000.

Programs that will receive Community Foundation funds, and the amount of their grants, include:

Raven Hill Discovery Center, a hands-on science and learning center for children and adults, was awarded $3,010 for development of exhibits and expansion of the facility. The funds will help Raven Hill qualify for a matching grant from the Frey Foundation.

Habitat for Humanity, an organization that engages volunteers and prospective homeowners in the construction and renovation of homes for low income families, was awarded $1,500. Funds will be used to help build a home in Charlevoix County.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters, matches volunteers with children who could benefit from a one-to-one friendship with a caring adult. The agency, which is based in Traverse City, was given $2,000 to help fund a professional caseworker who will serve families in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

The Charlevoix County Commission of Aging, was awarded $1,500 to meet increased demand for its home-delivered meals program. The Organization for Youth Activities, a program of the Beaver Island Community School, received $450 to hire staff and provide organized summer recreation activities for children who live on the island.

District Health Department #3, was awarded $500 to purchase educational materials for a preventative dental health program for area children who are on Medicaid.

The Jordan River Arts Council, will receive $500 for its Children's Summer Theater Festival and Arts Workshop. The program is designed to enrich the lives of area youngsters by giving them a variety of experiences in both the visual and performing arts.

According to Foundation Director Robert Tambellini, applications for grants will be accepted again later this fall. "We expect to award additional funds in December, although the amount available to grant will depend on our asset base," he says. "The community has been generous in its support of our Community Foundation. Many local gifts qualify for matching funds from the Kellogg and Frey Foundation — so our endowments have the potential to grow rather quickly."

More information is available by calling the Foundation office at 616/536-2440.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

There was a party on our front lawn this morning. How the guests always seem to know that it is time for a get together amazes me. You see, though I don't always realize it, I am the host of this fledgling gathering. It's not your run of the mill party either. The participants come in costume. Black almost always seems to be the leading color. But there are occasions where a splash of red is hinted. A bold one came with a green and yellow outfit that was truly unique for our neighborhood. The more casual ones come in subdued shades of brown.

When the event is in full swing, it usually gets underway fairly early. There is the expected small talk as the revelers jockey for the best position around the buffet. If you have ever been to a social event, you know how some who attend are constantly fluttering about. For some reason or other, they dash in and out. There are even what you might call heavy hitters who don't care who is in the way. They just push their way right to the front.

If you haven't figured out what I am describing yet, it is the fiesta that takes place around my bird feeder shortly after I fill it up. It never ceases to amaze me how they seem to know the food is there. I may forget about it for a week or two and then refill it. They know beyond any shadow of a doubt when it is full and they come.

There are folks I know, perhaps you are one of them, who could identify every single one of the winged guests that call in my yard. Maybe one day I'll get that good at it. For now, it touches my heart to hear their songs and see them eat. It also reminds me that whether I feed them or not, somehow their Creator always manages to take care of them. That really is something to consider when you understand that they truly are totally dependent on Him.

The Bible tells us there is a lesson there and not just with the birds. It speaks of the lilies of the field and the plains of waving grass. All of life is dependent on God. I get tickled when a chipmunk tries to get a share of the seeds that spill on the ground. That poor little guy earns his keep because his winged neighbors challenge him for every kernel. Somehow, he always gets a share too.

As fast as this summer is flying along, slow your life down a bit and take a good look around. It will boost your spirits in a hurry when you see just how very much God is at work in the world around you. With the same care He looks after birds and chipmunks, even the weeds in your garden, the Lord will look after you.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

Delbert Ingalls

Delbert Ingalls, 77, of Ellsworth, died Saturday, July 24, 1993, at Grandvuc Medical Care Facility. He was born June 27, 1916, in Banks Township, the son of J.M. and Mae (Schopf) Ingalls.

On December 31, 1934, he married Celia Crain in Ellsworth. They made their home in Detroit where Mr. Ingalls was employed at the Dodge Auto Plant. In 1942, they moved to South Arm Township where they were engaged in farming. He was employed at the East Jordan Iron Works for seven years.

Mr. Ingalls attended the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church for his entire life. He served on the East Jordan Co-op Board and the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners for 14 years. The Charlevoix Road Commission for six years and was a member of the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau.

He is survived by his wife Celia; four sons, J.M. and Charlene Ingalls of Orlando, Florida, Everett and Linda Ingalls of Ellsworth, Jack and Mary Lou Ingalls of Gladstone, and Allen and Colleen Ingalls of Ellsworth; two daughters, Mrs. Keith (Lyndel) VanderArk of Ellsworth and Mrs. Jerry (Ila) Cox of Muskegon; 19 grandchildren, 6 great-grandchildren, a sister-in-law, Mrs. Ella Ingalls of Charlevoix, nieces, nephews, and very good friends, Clarence and Bethel Boss of Ellsworth. He was preceded in death by his parents, two brothers, Henry and Ira, and one grand-daughter, Marcelle Ingalls.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, July 27, 1993 at the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church with the Rev. William Lyons officiating. Burial will be in the Ellsworth Cemetery.

Memorials may be made to the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church Parsonage Fund or to Grandvuc Medical Care Facility.

City acts to condemn property for new public parking

The Charlevoix City Council has begun the process of a "friendly condemnation" of the former Kusina Motors property between Antrim and Mason Streets. The city's Downtown Development Authority is pursuing the purchase of the property for $365,000 in order to build a public parking lot.

The agreement to purchase the property was approved in December of 1991 contingent upon the property receiving an environmentally clean bill of health. Soil tests done in 1992 found low levels of contaminant which are fairly common on automotive sites. Removing several loads of topsoil got rid of most of the contamination. In a letter dated May 25, 1993 the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) indicated that the site can be considered closed for the contaminant discovered in the soil tests.

Despite the DNR letter, the city is pursuing condemnation to assure that the city will not be held liable for future clean up costs by a federal authority. In the "friendly condemnation" process, the DDA will still pay the seller, Bernice Kusina, the agreed upon price, but only after the condemnation proceedings. The city council is involved because the DDA (even though it is a body of city government) can't condemn property.

In a memo dated July 14, city attorney Jim Young explained the 12 step process the city council will have to follow in order to condemn the property. At the council's July 19 meeting, the council began the process by acknowledging the receipt of the environmental reports done on the property. The next step is for copies of the reports to be sent to the DNR with a notice that the city will be condemning the property.

Builder Al Shindorf is complying with a court order to remove a home he built on wetlands. Shindorf was found guilty of violating the Wetland Protection Act in Charlevoix District Court. Judge Harvey Varnum ordered him to remove the home and restore the wetland, along with paying a $1,500 fine. The cabin was built near the shore of Harwood Lake.

Warner sculptures to be featured in art exhibit

Todd Warner and his outrageous wild animal and off-beat human sculptures will make only one appearance in Michigan this summer, at the Koucky Gallery, in Charlevoix from July 30 through Aug. 15.

Warner has canceled all shows except his Koucky Gallery engagement, including the Ann Arbor Street Fair where he has been a regular exhibitor for twenty years, because of the demands of several major commissioned projects in Florida and New York.

"With this show entitled 'Something to Smile About' Todd is introducing his new combinations of animals and people," gallery co-owner Nancy Koucky announced this week. "There will be crazy animal and people sculptures in a range of sizes, from several inches to his famous six and seven foot tall creatures," she noted. "We're anticipating this will be Todd's most amazing show yet because he has put all his energy into this one event."

"We're lucky Todd likes to vacation in northern Michigan, so we can have the show and he will be on hand for the opening reception," she added, explaining the public artist's reception will be Friday, July 30, from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Interviewed at his Boca Raton studios prior to trucking his menagerie north, Warner said he is including tall thin whimsical giraffes, bemused water buffalo, lovable wharthogs and the like, all crafted in combinations of clay, wood, and steel.

With an emphasis on humor, Warner's animals, both two and four legged, are intended to elicit a smile, "hopefully a guffaw," he adds.

A new safari piece which involves Doctor Livingston riding an elephant with a blue bird perched on his pith helmet is entitled "Dr. Livingston, I Presume." A fierce Native American atop a racing pin-dios prior to trucking his menagerie north, Warner said he is including tall thin whimsical giraffes, bemused water buffalo, lovable wharthogs and the like, all crafted in combinations of clay, wood, and steel.

Warner recently completed a commission by the Orlando Airport Authority to create a series of Florida-inspired sculptures, using such regional creatures as flamingos, alligators and tourists, for a parking facility.

This year, the Orlando Airport commissioned Warner to create a new series for the International arrivals building. "It's all whimsical, or course," the sculptor laughed. "We've got families frantically trying to catch planes, flying suitcases, all the imaginable comic airport scenes."

Humor permeates Warner's view of life. For McDonald's Corporation's restaurants along the New York State Thruway near Albany, Warner has created picnickers up a tree while bears below enjoy a picnic and a farmer clinging an apple tree to escape a charging bull.

"Collectors of Todd's work will see an evolution of his unique style, how he applies the same whimsical view of the world to humans as well as his well known off-the-wall animals," Nancy Koucky noted.

Fireworks lit up the sky over Round Lake on a warm summer evening as thousands of spectators watched from points all around the harbor.

Amy Parrish was crowned Miss Charlevoix at the 1993 Venetian Pageant.

Just some of the fun at the 1993 Venetian Festival

The Pride of Baltimore sailing ship made a spectacular entrance into the harbor Saturday morning and slipped quietly out early Monday.

The 1993 Venetian Parade featured several bands and a variety of entertainment. Several of the bands had competed in Friday evening's Venetian Drum and Bugle Corps Championship.

Lots of water means lots of work for marine officers

By Laurie Lounsbury

He has a deeply tanned face and piercing blue eyes with crinkles around the edges from squinting in the sun. He wears a uniform and packs a gun, but that's where his resemblance to Dirty Harry ends. Sheriff marine patrol officer Mike Moore is a benevolent arm of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department. A first year marine patrol officer, Moore said, "I just like the idea of helping people."

In the winter, Moore is a professional ski patroller at Boyne Mountain.

This summer he is one of four marine officers who patrol the lakes of Charlevoix County. With four men, two boats and a Wave Runner, the sheriff's department patrols a vast amount of water. Their time is divided, spending three days a week on Walloon Lake, seven days a week on Lake Charlevoix, and one day a week on the smaller lakes in the county, such as Thumb Lake and Deer Lake. "We cover everything up from the Antrim County line," Moore said.

Moore said that most of his time on the water is spent making routine inspections. Unlike land laws, marine officers may stop water vehicles for inspections without probable cause.

On any given day Moore will make between 18 and 25 contacts with boaters. The contacts usually end with a warning from Moore to correct a minor situation - not carrying enough personal flotation devices and driving too fast in a no wake zone are the two most common infractions.

Moore and the other marine officers respond to complaints called in to the sheriff's department. Most of the complaints come from the front area, where boaters fail to obey the no wake law through the narrows of the south arm. "I don't blame the people complaining," Moore said. "They've got a lot of money tied up in nice boats, and they don't want them banging against their docks from boat wakes."

Moore puts hundreds of nautical miles on the patrol boat each week, covering the vast expanse of Lake Charlevoix. Last Thursday, Moore received a complaint from a motel owner about rowdy swimmers on his docks. The complaint sent Moore from Hemingway Point all the way to East Jordan. When Moore got there the swimmers were gone, so Moore listened patiently to the angry motel owner as he told his tale of 30 college kids jumping and swimming off his docks, pointing out the damage that had been incurred. Moore left the scene, making a note to check back later in the day in case the culprits returned for more trouble.

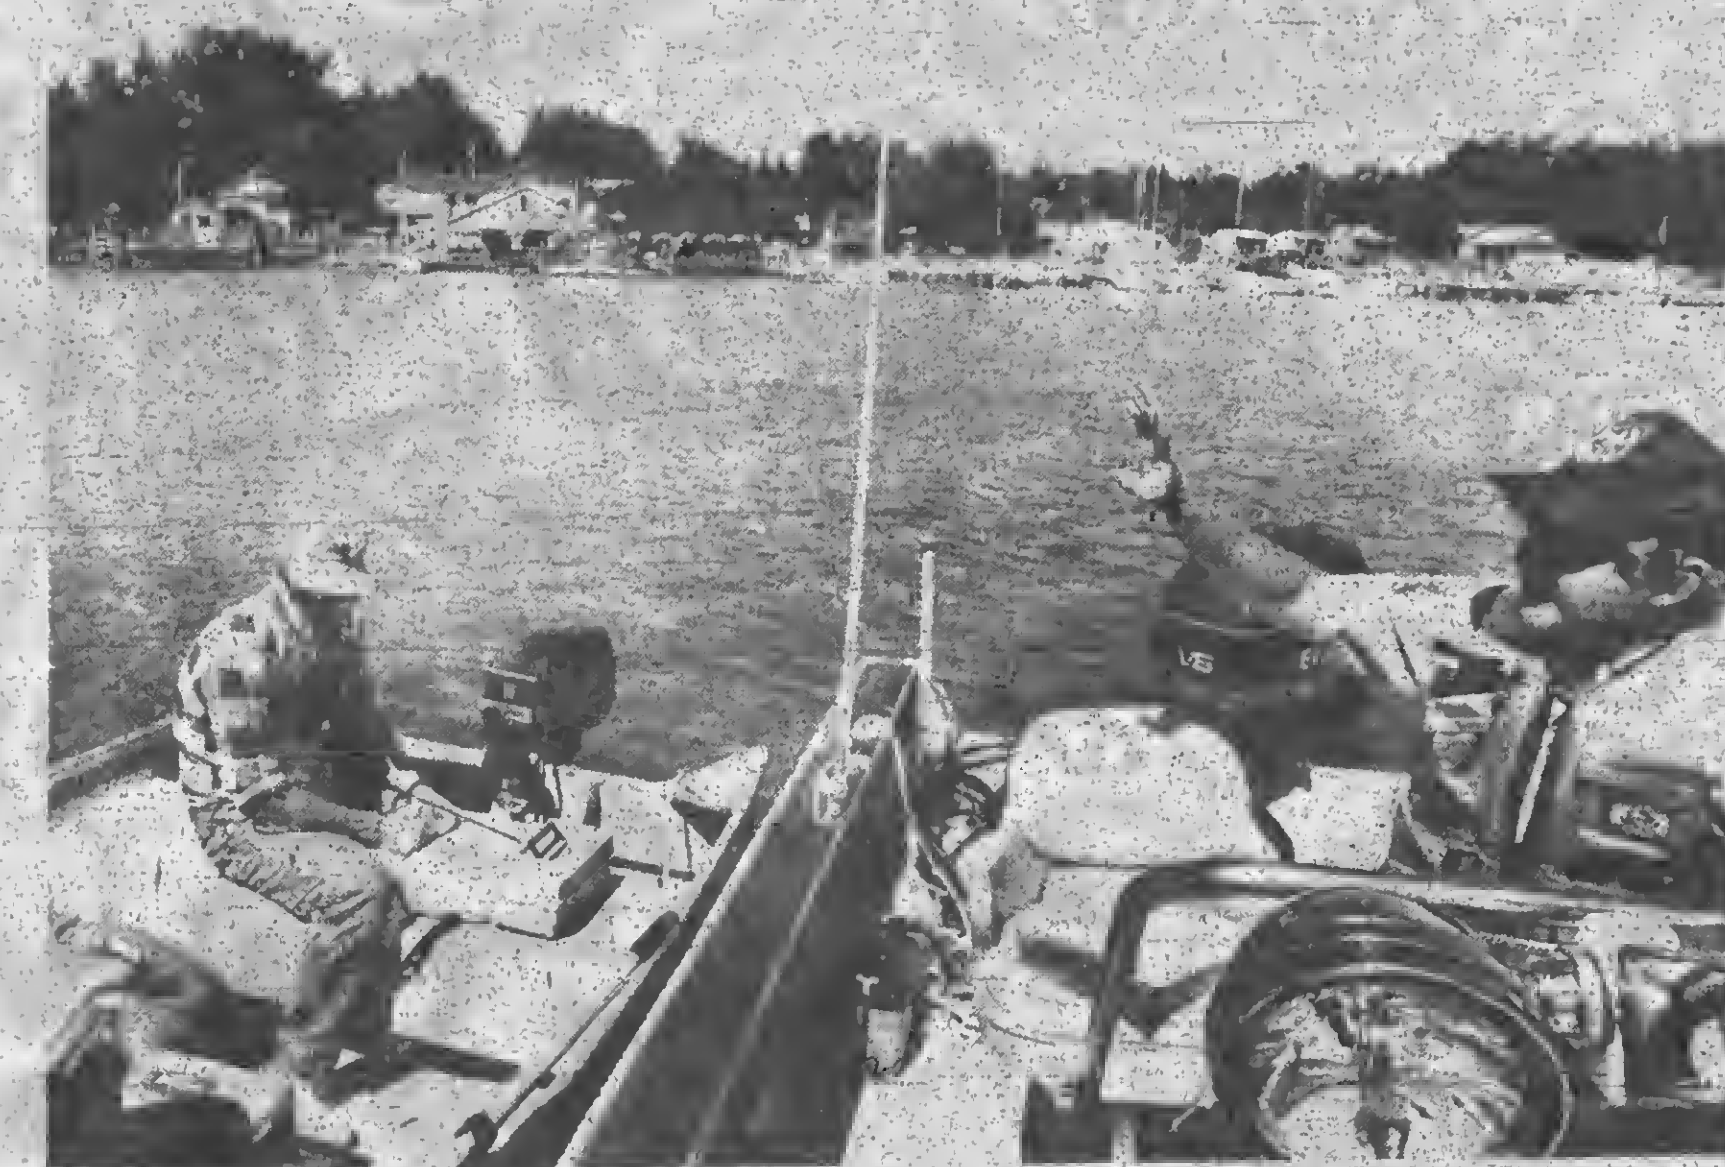

Moore then worked his way back up the south arm, stopping a couple of youthful boaters to ask about their age. In Michigan, a 12-year-old may operate a boat with a boating certificate earned by passing a boating safety class. The driver of the boat was 11, so Moore politely requested that the 13-year-old on board take over behind the wheel. Moore then detained a couple of fishermen who were without their registration papers. He radioed in the MC numbers so if the boat was stolen. A quick check vindicated the fishermen, so Moore waved them on with a warning to carry the proper papers in the future.

Motoring slowly along the circumference of Round Lake, Moore checked dinghies for MC numbers and registration. Dinghies used solely for transportation from a moored boat to the shore are not required to be registered, but as soon as the dinghy is used to take a pleasure cruise around the harbor it falls into a different category and requires vehicle registration. Moore stopped one dinghy to check for registration, although a life preserver check was unnecessary. Both the driver and her dog were wearing life jackets.

Moore spoke of other quirks and little-known facts of Michigan marine law. A person tubing or skiing behind a boat is not required to wear a life preserver, yet that same person riding on or being towed by a wave runner must wear a personal flotation device. Swimmers may swim in the middle of the lake, but they are not allowed to swim within the first hundred feet outside of a designated swim area. Boats cruising within 100 feet of a swim area should be traveling at a no wake speed. "I'm concentrating on swim areas and no wake zones this summer," Moore said.

Peacemeal Trio to perform in East Park

The Peacemeal Trio will perform its mixture of Irish, Scottish, English, and American traditional music Wednesday July 28 at 8 p.m. in the Bandshell in East Park, as the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau's third summer concert series continues.

This steady crew from Harbor Springs includes Maureen Scott, Bob Schneider, and Dale Scott. Maureen plays the hammered dulcimer, Appalachian style fiddle, and claw hammer banjo. Bob switches back and forth between the electric bass and lead guitar. Dale sings lead vocals, plays acoustic guitar and harmonica.

The Convention Bureau's summer concerts are scheduled each Wednesday at 8 p.m. and Saturdays at 1 p.m. through August, except when other events are in the park.

The Epsilon Jass Band, the next act in the Convention Bureau series, will appear Wednesday, Aug. 4 at 8 p.m.

University Women plan book sale

The area chapter of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) will host their annual book sale from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Friday, July 30 in Petoskey during Petoskey sidewalk sales. AAUW is seeking donations of good used books (with the exception of textbooks, magazine and Readers Digest condensed books) for the sale. To arrange to drop off the books contact Lucile Martin at 547-6746.

...marine officers stay active

Moore was pleased to report that boaters seem to be responding well to the change in the marine drinking and driving laws this year. Moore said they've had almost no trouble with drunken boaters. "We're going to be really aggressive if there are drunken boaters," he said. The marine laws regarding safe levels of alcohol consumption now parallel the road laws.

Moore always patrols wearing his life jacket. He said he hopes it will set a good example for others. He added that many drownings could be averted if people wore life jackets. "So often people are knocked unconscious first and then fall in the water. If they were wearing a life jacket, they wouldn't drown," Moore said.

Historical Society to re-enact 1919 manslaughter trial

Trial followed car crash in channel

Charlevoix Historical Society members will re-enact a 1919 manslaughter trial at the Society's Aug. 3 meeting. The defendant in the original trial was Guy Olney who was driving a car which crashed through a bridge traffic railing and into the channel in 1919. A passenger in the car, a Mrs. Ross, was killed in the accident and Olney was charged with manslaughter. At that time the bridge was not a bascule type draw bridge as it is today, but was a truss type bridge which pivoted, rather than raised, to open.

In recent years when contractors were remodeling the second floor of the old Van Pelt building (the building which now houses Trademark Clothiers) a transcript of the trial was found. At one time Rowley L. Lewis, the defense attorney in the trial had his office in the Van Pelt building. The transcript ended up in the hands of historical society member Lou Orlovski, who got the idea to present a historical re-enactment.

The cast of the presentation will be as follows:

Judge - the Honorable Frederick W. Mayne... Clem Olach.

Prosecuting Attorney - Ervan A. Rueggsgger... Richard May.

Defense Attorney - Rowley Lewis... Louis Orlovski.

John Nordrum... Larry Nunemak-er.

Dr. John Armstrong... Dr. Harry Custer.

Elmer Johnson... Bud Kohler.

Charles Bellinger... Charles Bellinger.

George Weaver, Sheriff... George Lusk.

Ellen Olney... Rita Orlovski.

Guy Olney... Dan Barron.

Narrator... William Vogel.

The article concerning the crash ran in the May 7, 1919 edition of the Courier under the headline "Plunges through gates at bridge."

The article read as follows:

Shortly after 10:30 p.m. Guy Olney came to the Wood's livery barn and borrowed the car to take Mrs. Ross home, after visiting with Mrs. Olney since 9:30 p.m. They left the Olney home about 10:45 p.m. Reports are conflicting as to the speed of the car as they approached the bridge, some placing it as fast as 30 miles, while others stated it was under 20 miles.

As the reports state, Olney did not notice that the bridge was open, having been swung but a few minutes prior for the entrance into Round Lake of the Str. Kansas. When within 40 feet he saw that the bridge was open, and in his efforts to stop the car, put on the brakes and tried to steer the car in the railing. When the brakes were applied, the car swung around skidded into the gates, breaking the one on the east side of the bridge, and slid into the channel backwards.

In falling the car struck the water close to the south abutment and sank to the bottom. In some manner

Olney extricated himself and swam to the abutments, where he was rescued by Fred A. Myers, whose attention had been attracted by cries of those who witnessed the accident. From the time the car hit the water, nothing has been seen of Mrs. Ross, nor no outcry was heard.

The car was removed from the channel early the following morning, and a deep dent was found in the back of it where it came in contact with gates, indicating that it must have struck the gates at more than ordinary speed.

Lake Association meeting to focus on property taxes

Richard K. Studley, Vice President of Government Relations for the Michigan Chamber of Commerce will speak about property taxes at the annual meeting of the Lake Charlevoix Association. The meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m., July 29 at the Charlevoix Yacht Club. The yacht club headquarters is located on Ferry Avenue. A picnic at 6:30 p.m. at Ferry Avenue Beach will precede the meeting.

School voters will decide fate of reduced millage proposal in Aug. 10 election

Charlevoix school district voters will vote on a revised millage proposal Aug. 10. Earlier this summer voters turned down a proposal for 16.55 mills by a vote of 637 to 621. The proposal voters will decide this coming Tuesday asks for 14.55 mills. (For a definition of tax terms such as millage and state equalized value, see accompanying information box.)

In terms of revenue to the school, the 14.55 mills being voted on equates to $4,758,530 or approximately 60 percent of the school's projected revenue for the 1993-94 school year. In a phone conversation with the Courier last week, school business manager Rich Kelly said school will open Tuesday, Sept. 7, whether the millage proposal passes or fails. However, if the proposal fails the school would probably run out of money sometime in October.

The 14.55 mill request is a 2.5 mill reduction from last year's school millage rate. It is a two mill reduction from what was proposed in June. In terms of total school revenue, the reduction in millage is offset by increased property values in the school district. School property tax revenue is total of property value multiplied by millage. (See accompanying box for explanation.)

In the Charlevoix school district, local property taxes account for approximately 85 percent of the school's total revenue. In the 1992-93 school year, school property taxes totaled $7,483,079. If the Aug. 10 proposal passes, school property tax revenues for 1993-94 will total $7,763,220. That would be a 3.7 percent property tax revenue increase. A portion of that property tax revenue increase will be offset by revenue losses in other areas. In terms of total revenue, the school district's total revenue for 1992-93 was $7,915,206. If the Aug. 10 proposal passes, the projected total school revenue for 1993-94 is $8,095,370. That would be an increase in total revenue of 2.3 percent. Overall inflation in the economy is currently around three percent.

Recently the state legislature voted to eliminate property taxes for school funding as of the 1994-95 school year. The Aug. 10 election concerns Charlevoix school district funding for the 1993-94 school year. That state legislature's action has no bearing on 1993-94 school year funding. It concerns funding in later years, and the effect it will have on funding for those years remains to be seen.

Voting will take place at the elementary school on Division Street. Polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Property tax terms

Market value - The price a home would be worth on the market.

State Equalized Value (or SEV) - Fifty percent of market value.

A mill - $1 for every $1,000 of SEV.

Property tax equation - Millage (.001 per mill) x SEV = total property tax bill.

Charlevoix doesn't roll up the sidewalks at 5 p.m.

Downtown area is a happening place in the evening

By L. Scott Swanson

All right, so it's not Las Vegas and it doesn't quite measure up to Fort Lauderdale during spring break, yet Charlevoix's downtown district is still a pretty hopping place during summer evenings. While in some other area communities, you can roll bowling balls down business district streets in the evening, in Charlevoix things are active. There are people walking around and there are things to do and see.

"It's always been busy in the evenings, although I don't know if it's been as busy as it's been this year," Jacqueline Merta, Executive Director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce said, of Charlevoix's downtown business district.

Kit Foster of Bridge Street Book

Shop, which opened earlier this summer across the street from the Chamber of Commerce, said evening hours have been great for business. Foster said that when the store opened, he had kind of targeted 9 p.m. as closing time, but that was never cast in stone. Now, his policy is "as long as people are in to browse and look, I keep the doors open." On occasion he has kept the doors open until 11 p.m.

Mary Jane Barnwell from the Charlevoix Book Shop which is located at the other end of the street, near the bridge, has also been pleased with evening hour business. She said the shop does a lot of business in the morning, but evenings have also been very good.

"Our busiest evening time is between 9 p.m. and 10 p.m. It's slow between 5 p.m. and 8 p.m., then it starts to pick up."

Fred DiMartino of Trademark Clothiers has been working in the retail business in downtown Charlevoix for nearly 20 years. In 1975 he was manager for Kadens, which at the time was located in downtown Charlevoix. In those days some of the downtown stores stayed open late on Friday evenings, but not many stayed open in the evening on other days. Di-

While sidewalks in other area communities may be deserted in the evening, Charlevoix's downtown sidewalks are active places until nearly midnight.

...evenings are active in downtown Charlevoix

Martino noticed that there were a lot of people strolling around during the evening and talked the owners into trying later hours. Now, virtually all of the downtown retail have extended summer hours. Merita noted that not only do the stores have extended summer hours into the evening, some have extended evening hours throughout the year.
 Different people cite different reasons for the high evening activity level.

DiMartino and Barnwell give a great deal of the credit to nature. "I think probably the biggest reason is the natural beauty we have downtown," DiMartino said.
 "People like to be near the water and there's such easy access here," Barnwell commented.

Merita cited a number of possible answers. Charlevoix's downtown business district is such a compact area that you can almost see from one end of it to the other. It's almost like an outdoor mall. She also noted that things such as the parks, municipal marina and channel walkway encourage people to walk around. She said there are also several excellent restaurants downtown and that it's quite common for people to have dinner and then take a stroll. In addition to the restaurants, the two cruise ships (the Appleadore and Miss Charlevoix) bring people downtown.

Foster said that he's noticed that people who are downtown during the evening tend to be a cross section of seasonal and year-around residents. He speculated that evening shopping is convenient for people on vacation because often times they spend the day at the beach or on the lake. Evening hours work out well for year-around people because their daytime hours are spent working.
 "Something Barnwell has observed which probably supports that theory is that if the weather is bad at night, then business is down. However, if weather is bad during the day, then business is up.

From a business perspective the obvious advantage of evening activity is that it maximizes retail earning potential. Business owners say that even though a lot of the evening activity is browsing, rather than shopping, that browsing often leads to later purchases.

"For businesses, the challenge of the evenings is staffing the stores. As DiMartino described it, the challenge is 'finding summer help that you can leave with the store and have faith that the store will be well taken care of.'"

In some ways the activity level downtown puts greater pressure on the Charlevoix police department as compared to other communities which don't have so much activity. The Charlevoix City Police Department hires a seasonal officer to do foot patrol downtown during summer evenings.

City police chief Dennis Halverson said there are a variety of odds and ends crime which the foot patrol officer ends up dealing with. Examples are complaints of bikes, skateboards etc. on sidewalks, loitering in parking lots, larcenies from cars, noise problems and a variety of parking complaints.

Halverson said that in addition to dealing with complaints and criminal activity, the foot patrol officer also does a lot of public relations work, answering questions and serving as kind of a representative of the community. This year, and last year, the foot patrol duty has been handled by officer Jeanette Griebel.

Halverson and Merita both said people feel safe during the evening in downtown Charlevoix.

As to the future and whether Charlevoix's downtown business district will continue to be an active place in the evening, DiMartino, for one, is optimistic. "A lot of towns have big shopping malls and complexes that pull people away at night. I don't think that will ever happen in Charlevoix. We have such a unique setting. I think downtown Charlevoix will always be strong."

OPINIONS

Editorial

Legal gymnastics shouldn't be necessary

As a Charlevoix taxpayer, you have to be a bit frustrated by what's going on in regard to three sites where there is suspected soil or groundwater contamination. Two pieces of property are sites the city is trying to purchase and the third site is the Charlevoix Middle School.

The two pieces of property the city is trying to purchase are the old Kusina Motors site between Mason and Antrim Streets and the former Ionex industrial site near the west end of Carpenter Street. The city wants to build a parking lot on the Kusina site and use the Ionex site for a new public works complex. Both sites, somewhere in their history, were contaminated. Both sites have subsequently been cleaned up to the point where contaminants are at an acceptable level. In fact, owners of both sites have received letters from environmental agencies saying the sites have been cleaned up.

Yet, despite this the city can't just go ahead and buy the two pieces of property. In order to protect the city from possible future liability claims (i.e. in order to cover the municipal butt) the city is going through a legal maneuver known as a "friendly condemnation" on the Kusina property and quite likely will do the same thing on the Ionex property. Friendly condemnation, aside from being a contradiction in terms, is a 12-step process which involves passing a variety of resolutions, publishing notices, filing a lawsuit, waiting for a consent judgment and ultimately conveying a deed. What it ultimately boils down to is the city buying the property, but doing so under the guise of taking the property for a necessary public purpose. The reason for this lengthy process is that according to the law if the city goes about acquiring the property this way, rather than simply buying it, then the City avoids the possibility of becoming a "PRP" in soil and groundwater contamination lingo, a PRP (pronounced purp) is a Potential Responsible Party. PRPs can be held responsible for the cost of cleaning up soil and groundwater contamination. And those costs can get pretty steep. In the world of soil and groundwater contamination, it's not good to be a PRP.

The Charlevoix School District is currently considered to be a PRP and the school board is finding out just how unpleasant that can be. On June 25, representatives of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and Michigan Attorney General's Office presented Charlevoix school administrators with a letter demanding payment of $444,311.56. Back in 1981, contamination was discovered in the city's water system. Consequently a new water plant had to be built. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), which is a branch of the federal government, paid 90 percent of the water plant cost while the state paid 10 percent. DNR and EPA tests done between 1983 and 1985 indicated that the groundwater contamination came from the middle school property. The tests didn't turn up any specific source of contamination, they just indicated that contamination levels were highest in the area of the school and decreased downstream from there.

That's apparently proof enough for the DNR and attorney general's office and they want the school to fork over $444,311.56 to pay for state expenses in the matter. The school has hired an attorney to represent them and there is a meeting scheduled later this week.

From a city taxpayer's perspective both the city and school situations are no-win. In a worst case scenario, the DNR and Attorney General's office will prevail, forcing Charlevoix school taxpayers to take nearly half a million dollars away from local students and give those dollars to the state. In a best case scenario the school would persuade the state to drop their case and the city's friendly condemnations would go smoothly and local taxpayers would merely be out several thousand dollars in attorney fees. It's a no-win situation.

This is not to berate local council and school board members or city and school officials. They're simply operating under the principle of better safe than sorry. They're simply doing what they can to protect local taxpayers, given the rules of the game. The problem is the rules of the game. Apparently, current state laws regarding soil and groundwater contamination put local taxpayers in a no-win situation. The state legislature should address itself to correcting those laws.

School board requests support for Aug. 10 millage proposal

Editor,

On behalf of the entire Board of Education of the Charlevoix Public Schools, I would like to urge voters to support the operational millage on August 10th. The Board would like to stress the following facts to the community:

*This represents a reduction of 2.5 mills in the operational millage from the previous millage request.

*In addition to reducing the operational millage, the budget has been reduced.

*The Board understands the community's desire for fiscal restraint in the budget, as well as in the ongoing contract negotiations.

*The Board of Education, in partnership with the community, has spent two years redefining and planning the future of the Charlevoix School District. Those efforts will continue in cooperation with the public.

*Over the past two years, parents, community members, and business leaders have been involved and will continue to be involved in planning within the school district.

*Without this renewal of operational funds, the schools will only be able to operate through the end of October.

Charlevoix Public Schools is, and will continue to be, an excellent school district. We may be proud of the students which we have graduated, and the schools need your support to continue these efforts.

Sincerely,
Scott T. Beatty,
President,
Board of Education

School superintendent defines goals

Editor,

We have many challenges and opportunities in the days ahead for us to insure that Charlevoix continues to be a leader in education. These opportunities will require energy and enthusiasm from all of us — school staff, students, board members, parents, community members and business leaders.

—we must pass the operational millage on August 10 to insure that educational opportunities will be provided to our students as currently planned. This millage is needed for operations this school year. Without the passage of an operational millage, Charlevoix Public Schools will not be able to have school past October.

—we must reach fair and equitable settlements in our contract negotiations that are supported by staff and community.

—we must resolve the TCE contamination issue with the DNR/State of Michigan.

—we must implement and teach the recently developed core curriculum in math, science, and social studies. We will be developing the language arts curriculum over the next several years.

—we must insure that our students do well on the state required tests in order that they are prepared for the state proficiency test for graduation in 1997. This will require further curriculum development and staff training.

—we must continue to have a high level of participation of parents, community members, and business leaders in the educational process.

—we must agree to a process for consensus building and conflict resolution so that our collaboratively developed plans for the future of education in Charlevoix are fully supported by staff, parents, and community and move forward in a timely manner.

I am looking forward with anticipation to the 1993-94 school year. Let's join hands and make this the best year ever!

See you in school!
Roberta Ann Jackson, Superintendent
Charlevoix Public Schools

Gathering ordinance needs to be reviewed

Editor,

As a tax paying resident of Charlevoix County, I would like to know how Castle Farms obtained a permit to hold a Heavy Metal Rock Concert at the same hour of Charlevoix Venetian Night.

This is the one night of the year that puts a maximum load on our police department personnel and other city and county tax supported emergency personnel. I believe a thorough review of gathering and promotional event ordinances should be an immediate task for the ELECTED OFFICIALS responsible for regulations involving our community welfare.

Sincerely,
Dick Lepman

FAMILY

Merryman - Meggison

Daniel & Rebecca Meggison

Rebecca Sue Merryman and Daniel Buell Meggison were married May 15 in a ceremony at the Brunswick Naval Air Station Chapel in Maine. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Merryman of Brunswick, Maine. The groom is the son of Mr. Jerry B. Meggison and Mrs. Kathleen M. Meggison of Charlevoix.

Two hundred and fifty guests witnessed the double ring ceremony performed by Bishop Russell Ames. The bride was given in marriage by her mother and father, John and Sharon Merryman.

The chapel was decorated with two large bouquets on either side of the altar and a lace aisle runner.

The bride wore a white, sweetheart gown with a Queen Anne's neckline. The dress buttoned up the back adorned with thick lace and leg of mutton sleeves. The dress was made of satin with a heavily beaded and sequined bodice, schiffli lace, a bow big bow in back, and a long train with see-through lace throughout. The bride wore a crown head piece with pearl and sequins. The veil was two tiered, with the top tier scattered with pearls.

The bride's bouquet was a large cascade with bright pink roses, white gardenias, white and pink lilies, white mini carnations, royal blue brocade, alstroemeria, freesia, and baby's breath.

The groom wore a white tuxedo to compliment the bride.

Before the ceremony, The Wedding Song and Ave Maria were played, while during the ceremony Here And Now, by Luther Van Dross was played. Celebration was played for the recessional.

Katherine A. Merryman, the bride's sister, acted as maid of honor. The matron of honor was Angela Bradstreet. Bridesmaids were Krista Meggison, sister of the groom, Bethany Ray, and Jean Skelton.

The bridesmaids wore long, off the shoulder royal blue dresses with wide, thick white lace all around the shoulders. They carried white lace fans decorated with royal blue and white flowers and ribbon streamers.

The flower girl was Jade Woods. She wore a long white dress with royal blue ribbons and flowers down the short sleeves and along the neckline. The dress had a royal blue and white big bow on the back. She wore a flower crown and carried a basket of fresh wild flowers.

The best man was Michael K. Seymour. The head usher was Edward Ostavits, and the groomsmen were Dave Coffin, the bride's brother, Jay Moilanen, and Richard McFadden. They all wore black tuxedos.

A reception was held at the Atrium, given by the bride's parents.

Decorations were done by the wedding party and both sets of parents.

The newlyweds spent their honeymoon in Cocoa Beach, Florida, and in Charlevoix. The groom's mother hosted a second reception for the couple in Charlevoix.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the Groom's parents May 14.

The groom is in the United States Navy, Seabee division.

The bride is working as a receptionist. She is studying for her R.N. degree.

The couple reside in Bowdoinham, Maine.

obituaries

Charles T. Bennett

Charles T. "Ich" Bennett, 63, of Charlevoix, died July 26, 1993, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

His funeral was held Wednesday, July 28, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Francis Partridge officiated with burial following in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mr. Bennett was born Sept. 29, 1929, in Cadillac, the son of Alvin T. and Esther M. (Shanessy) Bennett. He was raised in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1947.

Mr. Bennett served with the U.S. Navy for four years during the Korean conflict.

He summered in Charlevoix and wintered in Palm Beach and Naples, Fla., where he was employed as store manager of Maus-Hoffman.

Mr. Bennett was a member of the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 and St. Mary's Catholic Church, both in Charlevoix.

He is survived by two brothers, John E. of Winter Park, Fla., and William D. of Orlando, Fla.; two sisters, Mrs. Keith (Helen) Nickerson of Petoskey, and Mrs. John (Donna) Thompson of Tampa, Fla. He was preceded in death by his brother, Alvin.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. Mary's Catholic Church. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Evelyn Mae Hilligan

Evelyn Mae Hilligan, 81, of Charlevoix, died July 25, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

A memorial Mass was held Tuesday, July 27, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis officiated with interment in St. Mary's Cemetery. She was born Aug. 6, 1911, in Zealand, the daughter of John and Enora (Voss) Van Broe. She was raised in Grand Rapids and earned her teaching degree 1933 from Hope College. She taught at Howard City in 1935.

On July 13, 1936, she married James C. Hilligan in Portland. The couple made their home in Portland where she worked for St. Patrick's Catholic School for 10 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilligan summered in Charlevoix since 1941 and moved to Charlevoix permanently in 1983.

Mrs. Hilligan was an American Red Cross volunteer. She was a member of St. Patrick's Teachers Association and St. Patrick's Catholic Church. Mrs. Hilligan was the organist at the Portland Congregational Church for many years. She was also a member of the Michigan Republican Party, and St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix.

Survivors include her husband, Dr. James C. Hilligan of Charlevoix; one daughter, Patricia Immonen and her husband David of Greenville, Pa.; four sons, Dennis R. of Cincinnati, Dr. James J. and his wife Louise of Saginaw, Dr. Barry D. of Portland, and Michael D. and his wife Kathy of Charlevoix; 11 grandchildren; one great-grandchild; and two sisters, LaVern VanderHeide of West Palm Beach, Fla., and Eileen Kiedis of Waxhoe, N.C.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to St. Mary's School.

St. Mary's to host festival

St. Mary's Church of Charlevoix will host its Ninth Annual Parish Festival and Auction from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 8. The event will begin with a chicken barbecue which will go all day long. Other events include: a cash raffle; bingo; children's games; a three on three basketball tournament; and a concession stand.

All proceeds will go to the benefit of St. Mary's School. St. Mary's Church and School are located on the corner of Bridge and Garfield Streets.

BEACONS

by BRUCE HAMILTON

Father and son have been taking advantage of these warm summer evenings to take walks together. We have done several variations on the just plain go for a walk theme. We have dribbled basketballs down the road together and back. We have raced bicycles one way and walked back. Most of all, we have talked. Maybe it shouldn't have surprised me considering whose son he is (forgive a little parental pride), but I have been amazed at the depths of our discussions.

Monday night, he asked me what happens to your imagination when you grow up? When I probed him about what prompted such a question, he spoke of how his friends and even his sister seem to be changing. The things that they used to always do together for fun or pretending don't seem to be the same anymore and he wasn't sure that was such a good thing.

We looked at the clouds together and discovered "a basketball court in the sky with the sun being the biggest hoop you ever saw! What a neat place for a slam dunk!" He wasn't sure he was going to like some of the changes that were headed his way. I grinned as I said to him that one day he would realize girls were people too. I assured him that imagination is a valuable part of your life even when you become an adult. I did tell him, however, that some adults don't exercise their imaginations nearly as much as they ought to.

I believe that an imagination is one of the most wonderful blessings that God has given us. One of the things we need the most in life are those little flights of fancy that let us unwind and relax. What better tool to use than your imagination? You're sitting on the lakeshore hoping for the big one to bite. What fun it is to consider your fish being the winning entry in a contest and claiming the grand prize. You see a '63 Valiant convertible (how I wish I kept my high school car) and the clock suddenly turns back in your mind as you remember the good old days. You're working on a quilt or a piece of needlepoint and suddenly it is as if your mother's hands are working through yours.

In some ways, we should never grow up, especially if we remember who our real Father is. As children of God, we have been given lots to dream about and plenty of blessings to imagine. Where do you find all these things? Where else but the Bible. When I read, "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want," it isn't quite as hard to face the pressures of the day. In another few pages I find, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." It reminds me that it is always worth it to try your best. Still further on I find, "If any of you lacks wisdom, he should ask God, who gives generously to all without finding fault, and it will be given to him." It helps to know that in the face of life's most difficult puzzles, with a little imagination and a strong faith, there is always hope.

OFFER EXPIRES SEPT. 15, 1993

Welcome to the 35th annual Waterfront Art Fair in Charlevoix's East Park August 14

Charlevoix's annual Waterfront Art Fair celebrates its 35th Anniversary, Saturday, Aug. 14, from 10 a.m. to sunset, with what has been acknowledged as one of the country's finest outdoor shows of contemporary art. Charlevoix's art fair celebrates the dramatic growth of the arts year-round in northern Michigan, a direct result of the founding of the art fair, 35 years ago.

For one day the waterfront park in the center of this resort community is an extravagant gathering of watercolors and oils, sculpture and fine art jewelry, outstanding photography and brilliant fabric art.

But the ripple effect of one summer's day filled with art is felt throughout the year.

Thanks to the Waterfront Art Fair, an arts curriculum has blossomed in the schools; scholarships are available to area students to study in the arts, and the Charlevoix Council for the Arts, the art fair's sponsoring organization, brings performing arts events to a northern Michigan community once thought too isolated from galleries, museums, and concert halls.

The art fair's original purpose was to do for northern Michigan what the myriad galleries and museums of urban areas do for their communities — expose people to all aspects of the arts.

"The founders wanted to add a dimension to life in northern Michigan," notes Suzi Reis, spokesperson for the Charlevoix Council for the Arts.

Thirty-five years ago, a handful of local citizens persuaded the faculty of Detroit's Center for Creative Studies, including Walter Midener and Sarkis Sarkisian, to bring their own work and their students' work north, Reis recounted.

The Charlevoix art fair quickly evolved into an outstanding juried fine arts event, drawing emerging artists as well as established artists of national repute.

"Now we have a blend of some 50 well known artists whom we invite each year," Reis explained. "The rest of the 115 slots are juried from the nearly 1,000 slides and applications we receive each spring."

Among the 50 "invitees" are watercolorist Dee Knot of Detroit, painters and sculptors Russ and Sue Bolt formerly of Detroit, now of Charlevoix, ceramicist Barb Godwin of Charlevoix, painter Pat Eberline of Midland, and graphic artist Mathias Mulene of Ontario, Canada.

Newer juried additions to the fair include: jeweler Joan Michlin of New York known for her "wearable art," photographer Greg Allen, from Indiana, who creates reverse image color photographs; "assemblage" sculptor Morten Fadum of Harvard, Illinois, whose works combine wood and bronze with painting; watercolorist Dick Zayac, of Grand Rapids, who has worked and studied throughout the U.S.; and Heidi Uotila Long, of Bremen, Ohio who creates detailed North American and African big game animal sculptures.

Organizers recently announced that National Geographic and Cosmopolitan Magazine photographer Peter Hans Strueben, will exhibit this year.

Strueben, a native of Hamburg, Germany, studied art at Heidelberg University and the School of Design and Graphic Arts in Hamburg. He emigrated to the US in 1964 as a free lance photographer and has built a reputation for his studies of "fading civilizations" from the camel bazaars of Pakistan to the indigenous peoples of Guatemala and Ecuador.

"We're always thrilled by the incredible new art that comes to Charlevoix and we're so indebted to the great artists who loyally show here every year, despite having virtually eliminated every other art fair from their busy schedules," Reis commented.

"People need to know," added art fair committee member Sally McNamara, a retired teacher, "that the funds the Art Fair generates have underwritten visits by the Cincinnati Ballet, the Grand Rapids Symphony, New York's Prince Street Players, and allowed us to plan an artist-in-residence program for the schools."

Organizers also point out that the August art fair is credited with drawing many artists north to live and work year-round, has spawned a number of art galleries, and has helped launch arts careers for several Charlevoix students.

BIER POTTERY

Gallery of Distinction

In the late 1800's, the first classes were taught at the Hilton schoolhouse. Now, more than 100 years later the building is open to the public as an art gallery. The gallery has a very fine and interesting selection of creative art. A backdrop view of Lake Michigan with its islands and peninsula enhances its already tranquil appeal. "Everyone seems to enjoy themselves here and that's what it's all about...truly a gallery of distinction."

Bier Pottery is located six miles south of Charlevoix on U.S. 31. They are open daily, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., late April through October and on weekends during November and December.

Doug Keen (left) and his father Dave Keen are following a family aviation tradition this summer as they offer rides in a bi-plane out of Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

Bi-plane tours have a barnstorming heritage

By Laurie Lounsbury

In 1929, Everett Keen used to lift his spirits and his bi-plane over the bucolic farm fields and rolling pastures of a rural American countryside. 64 years and two generations later, his son Dave Keen and grandson Doug Keen are flying a similar bi-plane through the velvety smooth skies of Charlevoix. The two Keen men are partners in Classic Flight, a business providing nostalgic bi-plane rides to those wanting to experience the thrill of bi-plane flying.

Doug Keen, an aviation history buff, is happy to tell the story of his grandfather's old barnstorming days. He explained that after World War I, there were lots of out-of-work pilots and a surplus of military planes in the United States. The pilots purchased the retired war planes at bargain prices and went to work giving air shows in farm areas, where there was plenty of grassy pasture to take off and land. The farmers usually got a free ride, but others paid three to five dollars for a ride in the open cockpit planes. Doug can understand what drove men like his grandfather into the barnstorming profession, flying from farm to farm for very little money. "Flying is not necessarily an occupation but a compulsion for some people," Doug said with a smile.

Doug started flying with his father at the age of five, when his father would take him on business trips in the company plane. "People ask me where I first started flying and I tell them, 'In my dad's lap,'" Doug said. His father Dave learned how to fly in a similar fashion from his father. Dave spent 36 years in the manufacturing business that his father started, flying from one customer to another. "After 36 years of hard labor, I decided to do something I really enjoy," Dave said. And what he and his son enjoy most is flying. They started the Classic Flight business a year ago, giving aerial sightseeing tours in the Charlevoix area in the summer and in Ft. Myers, Florida in the winter. Doug is the full time pilot in the business, with his dad filling in as a part time pilot when needed.

...bi-plane rides carry on family's flying tradition

Doug has an impressive aviation background: He started doing take-offs and landings at the age of ten, then at 12 he joined the Civil Air Patrol, an auxiliary branch of the Air Force. He participated in search and rescue missions, studied aviation history and aerodynamics. "The Civil Air Patrol had a very big effect on my aviation career," Doug said. He proceeded to join the Air Force where he served as an avionics technician. He is a certified flight instructor as well.

Nowadays Doug devotes his time to flying the WACO (wah-co) bi-wing, which is not a reproduction of a 1935 bi-plane, but rather a continued production of the same plane. The materials have changed over the years, but the Weaver Aircraft Company still produces bi-planes according to the 1935 design specifications.

The Keens offer people two different air tours. The most popular tour is their sightseeing tour, a smooth, breezy, cruise-over Charlevoix, providing spectacular views of Round Lake, the channel, and the surrounding area. Both Keens say they never tire of the sightseeing tour. Doug says he sees something different from the air on each flight. He's seen herds of 100 deer, schools of small-mouth bass, and schools of salmon, easily spotted in the pristine waters of Lake Michigan.

For those wanting a little more excitement, they offer a thrill seeker ride, which includes some mild aerobatics. Keen performs high climbing turns and figure eights for the passengers, demonstrating the power of G forces and the sensation of zero gravity. Dave points out that each ride is carefully tailored to the passenger's desires. He keeps a close eye on his customers when doing aerobatics, and if they look like they've had enough excitement he'll tactfully ask them if they'd like to do a little sightseeing instead.

The Keens offer a timid customer guarantee, promising anyone who isn't happy after take-off that they'll turn around, land the plane, and give them their money back. "We've never had one person take us up on our timid customer guarantee," Dave said. "That's the one thing that's really great about this job," Doug added. "We have nothing but very happy customers to work with."

It doesn't look like the Keen family tradition of winging it through life will come to an end with Doug. He said proudly, "I have a two-year-old daughter, and she's ready - she's just crazy about flying."

The price of an exhilarating, 30-minute bi-plane flight is $50 a person, based on two people flying. The plane holds two passengers in the front cockpit, with the pilot in the rear cockpit. For an extra $10 a person you can take the thrill seeker ride. Or for $85 per person, you can double your flying time.

BIDS WANTED 209

ADVERTISEMENT
CITY OF CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, US-31 WATER MAIN CONSTRUCTION
Contract 68293.SP

Sealed Proposals will be received by the City of Charlevoix, Michigan at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, up to 11:30 A.M. prevailing local time on August 13, 1993, and then publicly opened and read aloud, for the construction of Contract 68293.SP.

The work consist of installation of approximately 3500 feet of 8" DIP water main, 1100 feet of 12" DIP water main, 6 borings under US-31 with 16" and 20" casings, removal and replacements of 14,000 SFT of 6" sidewalk, and other miscellaneous restoration items. A deduct option will be included for all water main materials except for boring casings.

The drawings and specifications under which the work is to be done are on file and may be examined at the office of the City Manager, City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720 and at the office of Performance Engineering, 101 Bridge Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720.

Drawings and specifications may be obtained from Performance Engineering by making an advance deposit of Thirty Dollars ($30.00) per set. Fifteen Dollars ($15.00) will be refunded for each set of documents returned in good condition (unmarked) within ten (10) days after the bidding date. The full amount of the deposit will be refunded to each bidder for only the one set of documents upon which a bona fide proposal is submitted to the Owner. The purchaser must supply the telephone number and street address of the individual or firm to whom addenda (if any) can be directed.

A certified check or bidder's bond for a sum not less than five percent (5%) of the amount of the Proposal will be required with each Proposal.

The right is reserved by the Owner to accept any Proposal, to reject any Proposal, and to waive irregularities in Proposals.

No bids may be withdrawn after the above date and time for receiving bids for a period of thirty (30) days.

Laws Don't Apply to Everyone in Charlevoix

If you go to the planning office they will tell you not to build within 10 feet from side lot line, 25 feet from front, 35 feet from back, yet Mr. Harsh, head of Planning, allowed Brian Noiroi and father Sonny Noiroi hired by Carl (Bud) Cavitch, to put fill in about 4 feet in air next to side lot line to enlarge a garage floor for Carl Cavitch to park his motor home. Guess Where? Along side lot line up to front lot line where you can only have a three foot fence. Seeing is believing. So come to my home, 403 W. Hurbit in Charlevoix. Drive into my drive. Look where my six foot privacy fence could not go to front line because it would obstruct the view. What will a parked motor home do? And where is my privacy? Mr. Wicsner you are head of this city and let Mr. Harsh do this. Calling it a extended driveway. You should both be fired. When you put 4 foot of fill and pour cement that is building next to a side lot line.

School hires two coaches

By Laurie Lounsbury

There will be some new faces in the Charlevoix High School athletic program this fall. At the last Board of Education meeting, the board appointed Mike Dennis, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Charlevoix, as the new soccer coach. This is the first year Charlevoix will have a sanctioned soccer team. High school principal Dave Smith said of Dennis, "He has a very sound philosophy of sports and is very student oriented. He's very caring and has a good knowledge of soccer."

Newcomer to the Charlevoix High School staff Joe Powers was appointed as the new varsity girls' basketball coach. Powers will be teaching chemistry. His last position was at Lawrence High School, where he coached boys' junior varsity and varsity basketball. Toni Felter, former varsity girls' basketball coach, resigned from coaching last year. Board members had some questions regarding the selection of Powers. New board member Joan Buday served on the selection committee and responded to the board's questions. She said that controversy surrounding the girls' basketball program in the last couple of years prompted the committee to select someone who could come in fresh and add something to the program. "We thought a person who had no connection to the last several years (of girls' basketball) would benefit the program," Buday said. Buday said she had no personal knowledge of the controversy. Smith also denied having any knowledge of a controversy. Middle School teacher Butch Wagner was the only other applicant for the position.

Barry Anderson was appointed to the position of Athletic Director.

In other business, the board voted to borrow $1,100,000 needed to operate the school until the winter taxes are received. Because the June school millage failed, the school does not have the funds to operate past the middle of October without borrowing money.

Teacher Kris Schaperkotter was recalled to teach Spanish and English.

The school will be attending the first hearing in Lansing regarding the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) demands that the Charlevoix School District pay for the clean-up operation at the middle school. The hearing will take place Thursday, August 5. At the recommendation of their attorneys, the school board retained the services of Braithwaite Consultants in Ann Arbor. Braithwaite Consultants specialize in hydrogeology. The preliminary hearing is an opportunity for both parties to clarify their positions.

The board approved a starting date for the 1993-94 school year. Classes will begin September 7.

"Beastly Book" author to visit Charlevoix

Did you know that the venomous black widow spider lives in all 48 contiguous states? And, mosquitoes have caused more deaths than all human wars combined? Learn about this, and more, when author Jeanne K. Hanson visits Bridge Street Book Shop, in downtown Charlevoix, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 7. Hanson will introduce and sign her newest nature book, "The Beastly Book," released this month by Prentice-Hall ($12).

Hanson's captivating book delights the curious reader with 100 of the earth's most wonderful and dangerous creatures from vicious fishes, hideous insects, major mammals and stinky reptiles to a few horrifying and very tiny organisms. In an entertaining text separating fact from folklore, Hanson reveals the fascinating natural history of a compelling array of species that can prove deadly, while taking a closer look at animals whose mythical dangers have been highly overrated.

This book, for children and adults, is illustrated by leading wildlife artist Glenn Wolff. "The Beastly Book" is a celebration of the marvels of evolution and the role that every one of these creatures plays in the natural world.

Jeanne K. Hanson is a science and literary agent living in Minnesota. A graduate of Wellesley College, she received a master's degree in English and education from Harvard University and a master's degree in journalism from the University of Minnesota.

The public is invited to meet the author at Bridge Street Book Shop, located across from the Chamber of Commerce in downtown Charlevoix.

Link Wachler, a jeweler based in Birmingham, Michigan and a summer resident of Charlevoix recently became the first United States citizen to receive a first prize in the International Pearl Design Contest. The contest is based in Tokyo, Japan and draws entries from jewelers throughout the world. Wachler's entry, entitled "Sticks and Stones," is a combination of platinum and 18kt yellow gold sticks that connect both underneath and above cultured pearls while one South Sea pearl dangles over the design and the another from beneath. The sticks also contain diamonds to give the necklace a sparkling effect. Wachler is vice president of David Wachler and Sons Jewelers in Birmingham.

4-H kids prepare for County Fair

Bugs, bunnies and gardening keep girls busy

By L. Scott Swanson

Far from being squeamish about bugs, Samantha Shipman, 9, and her younger sister, Shauna, 7, take to the fields near their home on Richardson Road and chase bugs down and catch them. The two girls are working on one of their 4-H programs for the Charlevoix-Emmet County Fair.

Entomology is merely one of several projects the girls are working on for the fair which will take place Aug. 23 - 29. They also have several craft projects and will be taking some of their rabbits to the fair.

Samantha and Shauna work on their projects with their mother, Connie Shipman, who is the leader of their 4-H group. Currently the group consists of just Connie Shipman and her two daughters, but two more girls are planning on joining them soon.

The Shipman's 4-H group is less than a year old. Connie Shipman says she started working with her daughters on 4-H projects because the girls had gone to a 4-H fair and liked it and wanted to become involved.

The two Shipman girls had some key advantages going for them in starting their group. To begin with, their mother is a Master Gardener (which means she has successfully completed a Michigan State University course in gardening). They also live out in the country where they have plenty of room for their garden and for their rabbits. They also have lots of fields and a pond where they can catch bugs. Their father, Mark Shipman, also enjoys

17-year-old killed on Mount McSauba Road

Alcohol, excessive speed, passing in a no-passing zone and failure to wear a seat belt are all suspected to have been contributing factors in the death for a 17-year-old man from Kalamazoo. Christopher Michael Zylstra was killed in a single car traffic accident shortly before midnight Sunday, Aug. 7 on Mount McSauba Road.

Zylstra was driving a 1988 white Cadillac northbound on Mount McSauba Road near the ski hill. An exact speed has not yet been determined, but according to Charlevoix County Sheriff George Easater the car apparently was exceeding the speed limit by quite a bit. Zylstra attempted to pass another vehicle as he approached the curve in front of the ski hill. He failed to negotiate the curve, went off the left hand side of the road and up the embankment alongside the road. The car rolled over and spun. As it rolled, Zylstra, who was not wearing a seat belt, was thrown partially out of the vehicle and it landed on him.

When emergency personnel arrived, the vehicle was on its side with Zylstra pinned beneath it. Initially, Zylstra was still breathing, but within minutes stopped and it became imperative that he be extricated from the vehicle immediately. Several people tilted the vehicle so that Zylstra could be pulled out. After he was extricated, the vehicle was tipped back up on its wheels.

A bottle of vodka was found in the vehicle. Easater said blood was taken from the victim for a blood-alcohol level test, but the results of that test are not yet known.

A passenger in the car, David Matthew Piema, 19, of Toledo, Ohio was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was examined and released. According to the sheriff's department report, he also was not wearing a seat belt.

St. Mary's Parish Festival

More than 100 basketball players took the streets Sunday for the SlamFest basketball tournament which took place in conjunction with St. Mary's Parish Festival. The tournament and other festival activities raise funds to help St. Mary's School. (Photos of winning teams from other divisions will appear in next week's Courier.)

Country concerts scheduled in East Park

Chris Marin of Willie's Up North will perform at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 11, in the Bandshell in East Park, as the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau's third summer concert series continues.

Martin is a popular entertainer who is best known for his Willie Nelson-type singing. He is also known for his Kermit-like voice while performing The Rainbow Connection. The sophisticated jazz sounds of the Ron Getz Quartet, the next act in the Convention Bureau series, will be offered Wednesday Aug. 18 at 8 p.m.

The quartet features Ron Getz, guitarist and composer. Getz studied at Berklee College of Music and the New England Conservatory in Boston, Mass. He has performed with a variety of jazz greats including Arthur Blythe, Billy Hart, John Scofield, Anthony Cox, Bill Evans and Mike Stern. In addition to recording and playing in clubs, Getz has performed on television and on radio.

The Convention Bureau's summer concerts are scheduled each Wednesday at 8 p.m. and Saturdays at 1 p.m. through August, except when other events are in the park. In the event of inclement weather the concert will be canceled.

...4-H kids prepare for the fair

the outdoors and raises pheasants.

Entomology, i.e. the study of bugs, is a recent addition to the group's 4-H project list. And as with the other projects, it's a cooperative family effort. Connie Shipman says of her daughters' bug project, "They (the bugs) don't bother me and I like them (the girls) to not scream (when they deal with bugs)." Both of the girls have rabbits. Rabbits have become a popular animal with several Charlevoix 4-H students. Shauna has a little grey dwarf rabbit and Samantha has a medium sized brown rabbit with extremely soft fur. Both girls will be exhibiting their rabbits at the fair.

The girls have taken to the entomology project with youthful enthusiasm. Recently, they captured a water bug that is nearly as big as the palm of Shauna's hand. "I thought it was a baby turtle at first," she explained. After Shauna spotted the bug, she recruited her older sister for the actual capture.

In helping the girls, Connie has picked up 4-H manuals and leader guides from the Charlevoix County 4-H office in Boyne City.

Both of the girls have rabbits. Rabbits have become a popular animal with several Charlevoix 4-H students. Shauna has a little grey dwarf rabbit and Samantha has a medium sized brown rabbit with extremely soft fur. Both girls will be exhibiting their rabbits at the fair.

Two big boxes hold several of the girls' 4-H craft projects. Both of the girls have made rugs with stenciled rabbits on them. Samantha has also made a gardening book in which she used graph paper to design a flower garden. Shauna made a wreath and decorated a small Christmas tree.

Although this will be the first time the girls have had projects entered in the County Fair, in the past they have entered projects in 4-H achievement day. Samantha took a first prize for her gardening book while Shauna collected a blue ribbon for her wreath.

Asked what their favorite projects are, Samantha says, "Gardening. Because it's fun to plant the flowers." Shauna's response was, "Crafts. I like making all kinds of stuff because it's fun."

Both girls are looking forward to the fair. They both quickly point out that having animals entered in the fair means you have to go up every day to feed and water them. That's a burden they're more than willing to accept.

Connie Shipman says she may enter some flowers and vegetables in some of the fair competition. Whether she does or not, she'll have her hands full with her daughters' entries.

KCB commends those who beautify their homes and businesses

Letters of appreciation are being mailed by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful in the next several weeks to homeowners and businesses who have made a special effort to beautify their premises.

Many local gardeners already have been recognized in the past two summers for their flower displays. The organization is seeking nominations from the public for those who may never have received a letter for their planting efforts.

A similar letter is being mailed to new businesses who have chosen attractive wood signs or other attractive signage in keeping with the image of Charlevoix-the Beautiful. Among these are The Real American Store, The MacDougall House Bed and Breakfast, Wildflower Bed and Breakfast and Anchors.

Patti Ulrich, a member of KCB's beautification committee, says "there seem to be more and more flowers each year." She suggests that strollers may get ideas for their own gardens by walking along the sidewalk from Weathervane Restaurant north of the bridge to the Beach house and along neighborhood streets. She also noted numerous planter boxes in the business district are worthy of attention.

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club, she pointed out, is responsible for about a dozen beauty spots. Members maintain the Post Office Planter, the triangle on Petoskey Avenue at Michigan Avenue, and the Pere Charlevoix Garden overlooking Lake Michigan, to mention a few.

To make a nomination contact Ulrich at 547-0604 or Barbara MacArthur at 547-6960.

Municipal dock staff praised

Editor,

We are boaters who came through Charlevoix twice this season on a sailing cruise and were able to get dock space at the Municipal Marina. While there, we had the opportunity to watch the marina operation, both by monitoring the radio communications and by seeing the staff in action firsthand.

We want you to know how impressed we were with the young people who run the place. They are most helpful in getting boats into and out of slips; but more so, they are terrific in their dealings with people. It seems that some folks for no better reason than that they own a boat, feel they are entitled to be real jerks and that they have a right to be rude and to take it out on these kids who are doing their jobs. Watching your staff use calm, polite but firm, professional manners to deal with some of these bozos was a great joy. These are bright teenagers with bright futures. Charlevoix should be proud of them.

Sincerely,
Jay and Kathy Light

Hospice thanks those who helped with auction

Editor,

On behalf of the Charlevoix County hospice I want to take this opportunity to thank everyone who was involved with our eighth Auction/Benefit held July 18 at the Boyne Mountain Convention Center. As always this was a wonderful auction - from the terrific committee who worked so hard to put this event together, to the donors of auction items and to the very generous bidders - you all made it a success.

We had a wonderful variety of auction items - something for everyone. Many people were very gracious about donating. Their generosity is truly appreciated.

A very special thank you to all the people who attended the auction this year and were most generous in their bidding. You allow us to continue to serve the terminally ill and their families in Charlevoix County. THANK YOU!

Margaret E. Lasier
Executive Director, Charlevoix County Hospice, Inc.

Charlevoix song recalled

Editor,

Your picture in the July 28 "Scrapbook" section of the Courier, of the three beautiful ladies known as the "Charlevoixes," brought back memories of their theme song.

It was catchy and I memorized it. Those were the days of beautiful melodies and Hot Rock was not even thought of. It was a parody of the song "They Called it Ireland."

I think the City Fathers should adopt it as "Charlevoix's Official Song." It goes as follows:

'Tis a little bit of heaven
Mixed with land and sea and sky.
It nestles in a valley
With Lake Michigan close by
And when the angels found it
It looked so sweet and fair
They said "Suppose we leave it.

For it look's so peaceful there
So, they sprinkled it with birches
Just to make the pine trees grow.
O'er all the land you'll find them
No matter where you go.

And they dotted it with blue lakes

While the angels sang with joy
And when they had it finished
Shure they called it
CHARLEVOIX

Nuff said.
Ralph Hamilton.

(Editor's note: After the picture ran, Alice Bellingier stopped in at the Courier office to tell us a little more about the Charlevoixes. She said the group sang at several places throughout the state and had a lot of fun. She said the photo was taken in Bob Miles' studio back in 1948.)

Letters to the editor

Summer sailing program praised

Editor,

Our family is enjoying the final days of our twelfth summer in Charlevoix. While each of these summers has been wonderful, the last six years have been enhanced by our children's participation in the sailing program run by the Charlevoix County 4-H, in conjunction with the Charlevoix Mariners. Each morning, Terry, Dan and Margaret gather under an old tree at the Depot Beach with other kids, of all ages, to find the wind, learn the day's lesson and perhaps exchange jokes. They then rig their own boats - a fine, modern fleet, as the result of the generosity of a number of persons and businesses - and take to lake Charlevoix. The more experienced sailors help with the education of the less, and the instructors move from group to group in the power boat.

As each week begins newcomers are warmly assimilated and those who continue move up the skill rankings. Participants include full-time residents and both short and long-term visitors. Those who are interested race in the Inter Club Regatta in Harbor Springs on alternate Fridays.

Our children have learned to sail well in all conditions. We have realized, though, that they have learned much more - things such as self-reliance, responsibility to others, obedience to rules, the ability to get along with peers and the respect due nature. At some point in their lives, long from now, they may well be helped through some problem by the values learned under the tree and on the lake. Much of that is due to the direction given to the program for many years by Lanie Wilderom, and now by Web Friedly.

We are grateful that this program is available. It is the centerpiece of the kids' days, friendships (for both us and the kids) one made and strengthened, and they have a great deal of fun. We hope that the program will continue to be supported. If you want to join in, check it out at the Depot Beach (both 10:00 a.m. and 1:15 p.m. sessions) or contact the Cooperative Extension in Boyne City.

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments involving Charlevoix area people.

Marine Lance Cpl. Stephen A. Vincent, son of Charles D. Vincent of Charlevoix, recently received a Meritorious Mast.

Vincent was cited for outstanding service while assigned with Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron 28, 2nd Marine Air Wing, Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N.C.

A Meritorious Mast is an official recognition from a Marine's commanding officer for superior individual performance. It is issued in the form of a bulletin published throughout the command, and a copy is entered in the Marine's permanent service records.

INTERESTING SIGHTINGS - SUNDAY AFTERNOON A BEAUTIFUL BALD EAGLE MADE A VISIT TO THE PORTSIDE ARTS FAIR. WHAT A WONDERFUL SIGHT IT WAS. ITS WHITE HEAD GUSTING IN THE SUN. ITS LARGE BODY FIRST DROPPING, THEN HOVERING AND FINALLY, DROPPING ITS POWERFUL LEGS AND EXTENDING ITS TALONS. IT "PURCHASED" ITS DINNER FROM THE BAY AND HEADED HOME. FOOD GATHERING BEING THE MOST ESSENTIAL PART OF A BIRD'S LIFE, PROVIDES SOME INTRIGUING OBSERVATIONS. A TINY ROBY-THROATED HUMMINGBIRD HAS BEEN BEING IN ITS NEW LITTLE DUE TO THE FEEDER AND IS A VERY PROTECTIVE PARENT. IT MAYBE THE SMALLEST BIRD AROUND, BUT IT IS ONE FEROCIOUS CHICKADEE WITH A VENGEANCE. NOTHING WAS GOING TO INTERFERE WITH THE LITTLE ONE'S DINNER. HAPPY BIRDLING Jan Glass 8/11/93

FAMILY

Crain - Schnupp

Mr. & Mrs. Brian Schnupp

Connie Crain of Sugarland, Texas, and Brian Schnupp of Sugarland, Texas, were married July 10 in an afternoon wedding at the Church of God in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Glenn Crain of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Marilyn Bittenger of Saxonburg, Pa.

The Reverend Bruce Hamilton performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a white, beaded satin, floor-length dress. Her shoulder-length veil had a beaded headband. She carried a bouquet of white karia roses.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Glenn Crain.

Traditional music for the wedding was provided by Kelly Shively.

Serving as maid of honor was Sandy Mighler of Fort Wayne, Indiana. Bridesmaids were Pam Swihart of Fort Wayne and Penny Kaylor of San Jose, California.

They wore tea-length, jade satin dresses and carried karia peach roses.

Flower girls were Kali Crain of Charlevoix and Erika Crain of Garland, Texas, both nieces of the bride. They wore mini-bride's resses of white satin.

Ringbearers were Cody Crain of Charlevoix and Zachary Crain of Plano, Texas, both nephews of the bride.

Acting as best man was Dominic Martinetti of Saxonburg, Pa. Groomsmen were Roger Crain of Charlevoix and Dennis Crain of Garland, Texas, both brothers of the bride.

A reception was held at the American Legion Hall after the wedding. Master and Mistress of Ceremony were Bob and Shelby Crain of Plano, Texas. Servers at the reception were Carol Kerr; Shelly Crain, Megan Crain, Amy Holm, nieces of the bride.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by Pam and Roger Crain at the pavilion at Ferry Avenue Beach Friday, July 9.

The newlyweds took a honeymoon trip to Pittsburgh, Pa. They will return to their home at Sugarland, Texas, after the honeymoon.

The bride is a district manager at Sally Beauty Supply. The groom attends the University of Texas, Dental Branch, and is a T.V. film specialist.

Jessie J. Hersha

Jessie J. Hersha, 89, of East Jordan, formerly of Ellsworth, died Tuesday, August 3, 1993, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

She was born July 9, 1904, in Ellsworth, the daughter of Charles and Myrtle (Eaton) Kinner.

On November 22, 1924, in Boyne City, she was united in marriage to Frank Hersha. They moved to Ellsworth in 1929. In 1964, they moved to Central Lake, and in 1973 they moved to East Jordan. Mr. Hersha died in 1980.

Mrs. Hersha was employed at the Ellsworth Canning Factory for many years.

She is survived by six daughters, Mrs. Dale (Alberta) Corner of Central Lake, Mrs. Art (Virginia) Prevost of East Jordan, Mrs. Don (Fawn)

Shepard of Lowell, Mrs. Lloyd (Beverly) Stokes of Flint; Mrs. Alfred (Darlene) Shafer of East Jordan, and Mrs. Donald (Lorraine) Hoisington of Ionia; three sons, Elra and Lenore of Leonard, Hugh and Elaine of Ellsworth, and Raymond and Lucille of Newberry; 34 grandchildren, 73 great-grandchildren, several great-great-grandchildren; one brother, Raymond Kinner of Pontiac; one sister, Mrs. Mary Patterson of Ellsworth, several nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by three daughters, Donna Finch, Lorita Jean Hersha, and Frances Pearcey; five grandchildren, one sister, and five brothers.

Funeral services were held Friday, Aug. 6, at the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church with the Rev. Estel Clark officiating. Burial will be in Ellsworth Cemetery.

Memorials may be made to Grandvue Medical Care Facility or the Banks Township Historical Society.

Group forming to help area children

A new program is being organized to coordinate volunteer efforts to help children in the Charlevoix County area. LOVE For Children is an agency which has a planning committee and hopes to have a board in place by this week. Fran Tollas of Charlevoix is currently leading the effort to establish the agency which will receive its initial funding from a Kellogg Foundation matching grant of $3,000. Kellogg is putting up $1.3 million to help fund agencies in six states for five years.

Tollas said the chapter's first priorities are: getting paperwork in order; choosing board members; and seeking a part-time director.

Tollas hopes LOVE For Children will be able to put children needing help in touch with existing agencies offering the help necessary and fill in any gaps which currently exist.

People working with the LOVE For Children planning committee include: Tollas, Anna Young and David Wassenaar of the Charlevoix Congregational Church; Pat Foster and Barbara Rogers of the Charlevoix Episcopal Church; Debbie Bellinger of the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church; Julie Smith and Pat Horton of the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church; Tansy Stewart of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church; Rose Jacobson of St. Joseph's Church in East Jordan; and Mary Jane Kirby of Boyne Falls.

For additional information about LOVE For Children, call Tollas at 547-9479.

Music featured at Baptist Church

A program of Christian music is planned for Sunday, Aug. 15, at the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix. Vally Smith and Steve Oppy of Markey Baptist Church, Roscommon, will present a time of music during the morning worship. A time of fellowship will begin at 9:30 a.m.; worship at 10 a.m., followed by an all church chicken barbeque at noon. First Baptist Church is located on M-66 near K-Mart.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

"When you read this, we will have finished a bit of an adventure. We will have driven through the flooded areas of Illinois and Missouri to attend a family reunion. The gathering had been planned for more than a year. If everybody comes, folks from about ten states will be represented. It is father-in-law and his sister's children that will make up the bulk of the gang."

There have been more than a few uncertainties about the trip. When you meet strangers who are supposed to be family, that makes it intriguing. Then of course, it was day to day wondering if the flood waters would affect any of the highways we would traverse in getting there.

Even though this is written in anticipation of the trip, I can tell you some of my feelings already. News reports and television pictures will probably not even come close to describing the first-hand view of all that water covering all that land. And even the bridge crunch here in Charlevoix will not compare with the traffic jam that I-270 will have held for us as we cross into St. Louis. I will luxuriate in the one lane petunia wedding brigades after a real rush hour experience.

I suspect too that the family reunion will have been fun as well. We will hopefully make new friendships and keep touch with a side of the family that had been but a mystery before the trip. It will have been worth it all.

Is it all that hard to guess where this preacher is heading next? All of us are headed for a family reunion. The journey passes through territory that is flooded with doubts and fears, maybe even a few tears. But along the way, there are bright spots of laughter and hope. The trip is guided by a highway lit up with a divine love that somehow never seems to fail.

And when it comes to family, for the faithful pilgrim, there is more than seeing mother and father or sister or brother again. There is the prospect of best friends being reunited. The joy of sharing an eternal fellowship unlike any you have known here is waiting to be kindled. It's all a matter of how much faith you have in the One who is orchestrating your trip.

A long time ago, Jesus was telling one of His disciples about this upcoming reunion and the guy said to Jesus, "Lord, we don't know where you are going so how can we know the way?" The Savior's reply goes for you and I just as much as it did for this uncertain sojourner from the past. Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father but by me."

We are all headed that way. There's no doubt about it. The journey is not going to be an easy one. But the adventure and the reunion will be worth all the effort if we follow the One who is planning the party. Blessings!

Castle Farms celebrates fourth Art Festival

More than 100 artists to exhibit in festival at historic Castle site

More than 100 artists will be participating in the Castle Farms Art Festival this coming Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 14 and 15. The festival is in its fourth year at the historic Castle Farms, just south of Charlevoix on M-66.

Festival director Kim Reibel said she was recently informed by Sunshine Artist magazine that this year the magazine will be listing the Castle Farms festival as one of the top 200 shows in the country.

Art forms on display at this year's festival include: baskets; ceramics; drawing; fibers; glass; jewelry; leather; mixed media; painting; paper; photography; prints; sculpture; and wood. Several northern Michigan artists will be participating in the festival. They are: Sam Machulis of Alpena; David Ous of East Jordan; Linda Haderer of Petoskey; Steven Kostyshyn and Lynn Fisher of Bollaie; Vincent Pernicano of Boyne Falls; Pam Beaty of Charlevoix and Boca Raton; Jan Glass of Charlevoix.

Exhibitors for the festival are selected by a jury which reviews slides of the artists' work. All slides are judged anonymously. (In other words, the jurors don't know that name of the artist whose work they're reviewing.) Reibel said the festival tries to have a certain percentage of each type of art, i.e. jewelers, painters etc. The total number of exhibitors is also kept down to around 120. This year there will be 114.

In addition to the art exhibitors, there will also be performing artists at the festival. Reibel says that's why the event is titled as an art festival rather than an art fair. Reibel describes the performing artists as "very low-key." Some of them are strolling performers. Others perform in the Castle courtyard. Performing at this year's festival will be: Louann Lechler, folk guitar; David Collini, pianist and Bill Vitts, percussion; Ron Getts and Chuck Hall, jazz; Calvin and Jonah Powell, bluegrass; and Guy Sferlazza, lute.

In addition to the exhibiting artists and performing artists, there will be gourmet lunches and free wine tasting available.

Festival hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $1 for adults and no charge for children younger than 12. Castle Farms will also be providing a complimentary shuttle Saturday between the Castle and downtown Charlevoix. The shuttle will board downtown behind Central Drug and run on the half hour between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. People are welcome to park at the Castle and take the shuttle to town. (Although a trolley the Chamber of Commerce had been running during busy weekends has been cancelled, the shuttle bus will be running.)

Some people enter the Castle Farms Arts Festival as fans of works of art and leave as works of art.

(Top) In addition to the exhibiting artists, the Castle Farms Arts Festival also includes live entertainment and food in the Castle courtyard.

(Right) Each of the more than 100 artists have their own individual booths displaying their creations.

BIER POTTERY

Gallery of Distinction

In the late 1800's, the first classes were taught at the Hilton schoolhouse. Now, more than 100 years later the building is open to the public as an art gallery. The gallery has a very fine and interesting selection of creative art. A backdrop view of Lake Michigan with its islands and peninsula enhances its already tranquil appeal. "Everyone seems to enjoy themselves here and that's what it's all about." Truly, a gallery of distinction.

Bier Pottery is located six miles south of Charlevoix on U.S. 31. They are open daily, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. late April through October and on weekends during November and December.

Potters Ray and Tami Bier are enjoying their twelfth successful year. A lively art exhibition awaits you in this unique one-room schoolhouse gallery. The Biers' handmade stoneware includes animal sculptures, nativity sets, and delicately detailed frog/floral and wildlife designs. Enjoy a variety of fine collectable art here.

Jewelry brings Charlevoix artist back home in the summer

Artist participates in more than 20 shows

By Laurie Lounsbury

Charlevoix native Pam Beatty has found a way to earn a living ten months out of the year in Florida and spend two productive summer months back home in Charlevoix. She and her husband Lane, both teachers, make the trek back to Charlevoix each summer with their two children and stay at the home of Pam's parents, Dale and Marilyn Boss. While Lane supervises the kids, Pam is busy in her workshop below the Boss home making porcelain jewelry.

Beatty will be exhibiting her porcelain jewelry at the Castle Farms Art Festival for the fourth year in a row. The Castle Farms Art Festival is one of seven Michigan art fairs that Beatty will attend during the summer. She ranks the Castle art fair near the top of her list of state art fairs. "It's a nice show because it's a pretty setting, and it's easy to get in and out of," Beatty said. "There's a lot of variety at the Castle, too."

Beatty makes and sells three dimensional porcelain earrings, pendants, button covers and belts with belt buckles. All of her pieces are edged in 22 karat gold. "I like to do a lot of flower designs, very feminine and delicate," Beatty said. Her flower designs are colored in pastel hues, while her sailboat themed jewelry is done in nautical navy and white. She also does some free form jewelry in black and white. Each piece of jewelry is unique in style and design, with delicate layers of porcelain added to a basic foundation shape.

As a K-5 music teacher, Beatty's creative juices were flowing exclusively in a musical direction until 1988 when a friend of hers involved her in porcelain jewelry making. She started wearing the jewelry she made, and when enough people started asking her where she got her jewelry she decided to go into business. Now Beatty participates in 23 art shows annually.

Beatty keeps her jewelry reasonably priced, ranging in cost from $14 for button covers up to $70 for a pendant mounted on a gold necklace. Beatty's artistic endeavors earn enough for the family to continue to come up north and spend their summers with the Boss family. "We'd really miss Charlevoix if we couldn't come back every year," she said.

Pam Beatty of Charlevoix combines jewelry making with a teaching career. She and her husband Lane teach in Florida during the winter, but the northern Michigan natives return to Charlevoix each summer.

This sculptor's metal fountains always attract a lot of attention at art fairs such as the Castle Farms Arts Festival. The festival will take place this coming Saturday and Sunday.

Students enjoy local summer school program

In addition to academics, program stresses social skills and motivation

By Laurie Lounsbury

Darick and Ryan Leitner were swinging idly at the middle school playground, kicking a few pebbles around under their feet when the sound of children's voices wafted out to them from a second-story school window. Curiosity took over, so the boys wandered into the school in search of the voices, peeking into classrooms as they went. There they found a small group of their friends listening attentively to the teacher before them. The Leitner boys returned to the playground, where they laid in wait for school counselor, Gayle Gennett to appear. When Gennett emerged from the building, they raced up to her and asked, "Mrs. Gennett, can we go to summer school too?"

The Leitners are now enrolled in the summer enrichment program, where they will spend their mornings working on reading, math, computer skills and social skills for four weeks in August.

Gennett, who heads up the program, was delighted to have the Leitner boys join the 45 other students in summer school. She's a firm believer in the enrichment program, which adheres to the Boys Town model, with emphasis on social skills and positive motivation. The first 15 minutes of class are spent working on manners, simple common courtesies. Gennett said, "Teachers will want to work with kids who are polite and well-mannered, so it gives them (the students) an edge." The students receive bonus points for using good manners in the classroom. Enough points will earn them a field trip to Mackinaw City.

The balance of the two-hour morning session is spent on reading, math, and computer skills. The program has the casual, cozy ambience of a one-room schoolhouse, with older children helping younger children with their reading. Thursday is pizza day, when the older students work on division and fractions with the use of a sliced pizza. "It's amazing how quickly they learn their fractions with pizza," Gennett said.

Darick Leitner said he likes reading in summer school best, although his favorite subject during the school year is shop. He seems to think the summer enrichment program is beneficial to him. "It gets me ready for school," he said.

The summer enrichment program is a two-year-old program funded by grant money from Michigan's Chapter One program. The grant funding will not be available after this year. Gennett is hoping that a charitable foundation may come up with the money in future years to fund the program. As it stands, only students in the Chapter One program qualify for the summer school program. If funding came from private sources, then the program could be expanded to include high school students and other students needing a little extra help with their studies before the school year begins. "I would still stress social skills, reading, and math," Gennett said.

Three re-elected to hospital board

John Buick, of Boyne City; Mary Jason, of East Jordan; and Sulane Hamilton, of Charlevoix were re-elected to serve new terms on the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors at the annual membership meeting on Tuesday, July 20.

Buick, board secretary-treasurer, gave the financial report which showed the hospital ending its fiscal year on March 31, 1993 with an operating fund surplus of $12,163. Total operating income for the hospital was $8,077,172. Salaries, wages and fees were the hospital's largest expense amounting to $4,528,745.

Guild President Rebecca Haney reported that 6,127 hours of service were given last year by Guild volunteers and they raised $5,000 toward their hospital building fund pledge. The Guild also awarded four scholarships to area students in the medical field.

Richard Krueger, president, spoke of the busy year with the $4 million building program nearing completion. "It has been an exciting year as we plan, not only for the building, but for the services it will mean for area residents in the years to come." The new surgical suite and obstetrical unit will provide greater convenience and accessibility for patients, he said. "It will further our role as a provider of ambulatory services and outpatient surgery. And, it will contain the most modern single-room concept of childbirth in our area," he said.

Jason, vice chairman, reported in the absence of Norman Perkins, chairman. She noted the many staff hours and dollars which are devoted to community education activities.

Attending the annual meeting were members of the hospital. Members are those who made a monetary contribution to the hospital in the past or who paid membership dues.

Preparation and response helps burn victim

(Editor's note: Ralph McRae is a former mayor and city council member who continues to be active in a number of civic endeavors.)

By Ralph McRae

Shortly after noon on July 19 an emergency occurred which transformed an ordinary day into a painful experience which was made less painful by proper preparation and response.

On July 19, Brian Martinus, a local 14-year-old boy was babysitting for three younger boys. Martinus had just finished cooking a kettle of spaghetti and had put it on the counter top, away from the edge and cautioned one of the younger boys, a seven-year-old, not to touch it. Disregarding the warning, the youngster attempted to move the kettle for draining and the kettle tipped over, spilling some of the hot water on the seven-year-old's body. Martinus grabbed the pan before more water spilled. The seven-year-old, who was wearing only shorts, had been burned on approximately 20 percent of his body. Fortunately, his face had been untouched. Within seconds the skin began blistering and peeling off.

Without hesitation, Martinus placed the boy in a tub of cold water. In the meantime he told the boy's ten-year-old brother to call the police. Emergency numbers were pasted on the inside of the telephone handle and the boys had been instructed as to what to do in case of an emergency. Consequently the call took only seconds. After making the call, the boy went out to the street to flag down emergency personnel.

The first emergency response person to arrive was Bob Roloff of the city ambulance department. Next to arrive was City Fire Chief Doug Carver. They were joined by Sgt. Dale Meredith of the City Police Department and ambulance attendant Babs Meggison.

A burn kit was opened and a sterile blanket was placed around the burned boy's body. The burn blanket is a moist sheet that keeps the body cool and protected from infection. In addition, saline solutions were sprayed over the covering. After the boy was placed on an absorbent pad on the stretcher he was wheeled to the ambulance. During the three minute ambulance ride, Carver, drove while Roloff and Meggison attended the victim. During the ride, Roloff was in radio contact with a nurse in the hospital emergency room. Upon arrival at the hospital a nurse and doctor took over the boy's care.

Martinus had also suffered burns to his left hand and right thigh as he helped the seven-year-old. He also received medical attention at the hospital.

From the beginning to the end the situation's events unfolded without interruptions or delays. The ambulance arrived at the house in less than three minutes and had the victim at the hospital within 21 minutes of the accident.

The seven-year-old spent 12 days in the hospital pediatric unit, but is now back at home where he is recovering slowly, but surely.

A short time before the accident Martinus had attended a Boy Scout camp. The camp had daily sessions on various subjects the Boy Scouts need for merit certification. One of the classes covered what to do in case of emergencies, particularly accidents involving burns.

Steps taken at Mount McSaubia following accident

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater reported that the number of complaints in the McSaubia area this year have been about average compared to other years. He didn't site increased activity as a factor in the fatal accident that occurred last week. "As sad as it is, that young man made four bad decisions that contributed to the accident: He chose to drink and drive. He chose to drive too fast. He chose to pass in a double yellow no passing zone. And he chose to not wear a seat belt." Lasater said. The sheriff also said that while adults tend to be using designated drivers, young adults and teenagers don't seem to be acting any more responsibly than they ever did. Lasater said the percentage of alcohol-related traffic fatalities over the last 15 years has remained pretty consistent. He also said that the average age in alcohol related traffic fatalities is around 21 or 22. Apparently the fatalities of other teens doesn't deter teens from drinking and driving. "Each time there is a fatal traffic accident I think it will change things, make

...property tax reform reduces DDA funding

$700, the city would receive $200, the county $100, the school $300 and the intermediate school district $100.

As property values increase, so do property tax revenues. The DDA is funded by those additional tax revenues. Referring to the example above, say that the 1982 downtown property value of $100,000 increased to $120,000 in 1983. Assuming the total millage stayed at seven, the total property taxes paid by owners of downtown property would be $840. If there were no DDA program, the tax revenue split between the taxing entities would be: $240 to the city; $120 to the county; $360 to the school; and $120 to the intermediate school district.

But since there is a DDA, the city, county, school and intermediate school district do not get that additional $40, $20, $60 and $20 derived from the $20,000 property value increase. Instead, that $140 is set aside for improvements to the downtown area. Those improvement projects are administered by the DDA board which is appointed by the city council.

When the state legislature recently decided to eliminate property taxes as a means of funding education, it also meant that the DDA will no longer receive property tax revenues from the educational millage portion of downtown property taxes.

Using the equation cited in the example above, but now substituting real terms (as of 1992) the numbers work out as follows: 13.47 mills for the city plus 6.9632 mills for the county plus 26.958 mills for the school plus 2.2104 mills for the school levied against a DDA tax base (the amount downtown assessed property values have increased since 1982) of $9,644,711 equals DDA tax revenue of $488,313. (That's a 1992 figure.

Given the recently voted reduction in local school millage for the coming year and Headlee Amendment rollbacks and a refund the DDA gives to the school based on a 1989 agreement, the actual projected current year income according to the city is $377,142.)

But the recent state action eliminating educational property taxes radically alters the picture. By eliminating educational property taxes, the school's 26.958 mills and the intermediate school district's 2.2104 mills are also eliminated as a source of DDA revenue. Consequently the DDA projected revenue for 1994 and subsequent years drops. According to city treasurer Rick Brandt DDA revenue drops by $170,032, from $380,032 to $210,000, in 1994 due to the state's action.

Prior to 1988, the Charlevoix School District was in an ongoing battle with the City of Charlevoix over the DDA. The school district was not happy about giving up tax revenue to the DDA. In late 1988 there was a public meeting which led to negotiations involving the school, city and county. Those negotiations led to a 1989 agreement in which the city agreed to refund a portion of the captured DDA tax revenues to the school and county. The agreement also called for the DDA to end in 1998. However, a stipulation in the agreement said the agreement would be nullified if the state acted to reform school financing.

The state's action to reform school finance has two immediate effects on the Charlevoix DDA. It creates a projected revenue shortfall and eliminates the 1998 termination date.

Currently the DDA has projects planned carrying an estimated total price tag of $3,144,813. The DDA's funding projections currently envision revenue of $1,926,031. The revenue and project plans both were drawn up with an anticipated completion date of 1998. The $1,218,782 shortfall of anticipated revenues to expenditures now means that projects will have to be either eliminated or postponed and the DDA program extended beyond 1998.

Given the DDA's unescapable link to property tax funding and the state legislature's present state of flux in terms of the future of property taxes, the situation for both the school system and the DDA is presently very fluid and subject to change.

Although the school district has in the past been at odds with the DDA program, as of yet no objections have been voiced to the proposed extension.

"We don't know what the legislature is going to do," Dr. Roberta Jackson, superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, said Monday. As a general comment, she said, "I find Michigan's system of funding economic development to be a little bit strange." She noted that she would prefer to have the state legislature devise a system which did not put the school and city in competition for property tax dollars.

Brandt noted that even though the state's action has put some twists into Charlevoix's DDA plans, other cities are in a far worse predicament. Although Charlevoix's DDA has bought two parcels of property on payment plans, for the most part DDA projects have been pay-as-you-go. Some other communities in the state borrowed money for projects and now with funding cuts aren't sure how they're going to pay back the borrowed funds.

...reaction to accident

them. He has a 20-year-old son of his own, so he knows many of the local youths. He acknowledged that the Mt. McSaubia area has always been a popular area for teens and young adults, but he thinks the problem is much worse today than it was 20 years ago. "Teenagers today are a lot ruder than they used to be," he said.

The neighbor expressed concern over the number of teens ignoring the stop sign at the intersection of Pleasant Street and Mt. McSaubia Road. He said he's seen cars race through the intersection, one right after the other. He's also concerned about in-line skaters coming down the hill and going right through the stop sign, either because they're ignoring the stop sign or they're unable to stop.

The neighbor is pleased that the city and sheriff's department are making an effort to make Mt. McSaubia a safer place, but added, "What we really need is more visibility of authority."

This cross was put up alongside Mount McSaubia Road last week at the site of an Aug. 8 car accident which took the life of a 17-year-old.

County should keep track of address changes

Editor,

The other day I received a form from the county to be filled out regarding jury duty. It had my old address on it. You would think with all that the County has put us through with changing our addresses several times in recent years that they would set the example and update their addresses.

Perhaps, if the county would take the time and the money to update their addresses, they would realize what they put the rest of us through in their cavalier manner with each address change.

If they realized the cost and inconvenience that each of us and particularly local businesses, are put through, they might try to take steps to have the numbers correct before they issue them.

I would hope that the fact the county has not taken steps to update their addresses within the various departments, is not an indication that the number changing process is not finished.

Sincerely,

John J. Crannon

Camp director says thanks for scholarships

Dear Editor,

We have completed another successful year at Camp McSaubia. I would like to thank the organizations and individuals who contributed to our scholarship fund. As a result of their generosity, 60 children were able to attend Camp McSaubia with either a full or partial scholarship.

The kids enjoyed such activities as B.B. gunnery, archery, arts and crafts, and several games of basketball, kickball, and the ever-popular "submarine." This year the weather was cooperative, so we could enjoy the beach, "big dune," and nature walks. We had a great time this summer!

On behalf of the sixty kids who were able to come to camp on scholarship, I would like to say "Thank you!" (If you use your imagination, I'm sure you can hear them yelling THANKS!!)

Sincerely,
Meg Fowler
Camp Director

One more water tower poem

Editor,

"Old Rustysides"
A plea to City Council - City Manager

Please tear its aging frame-work down,
Too long it has held on high.
The shabby, unused water tank,
A blight on Charlevoix's sky.

Twelve years or more the tower has stood

Uncared for on the channel bank.
Perhaps our City just forgot
That we had a surplus water tank.

Please pull this neglected tower down,
Demolish it with our pity.
With this rusty eye sore gone you'll find,
You have helped beautify our City.

City council to ask DNR to explain need for test wells

The Charlevoix City Council is going to invite the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to their next meeting to explain a request for access to city sites to drill additional test wells for groundwater contamination.

The wells can be hidden, and if the DNR will sign an agreement which assures that the city will not be liable should someone trip or hurt themselves in some manner on a protruding well pipe.

In a July 15 letter to the city, the DNR requested access to three street right of ways and two park sites to put in test wells.

At the Aug. 16 council meeting, council members indicated that they want to know specifically why the DNR wants to drill the wells, if

In other action the council voted to set a public hearing in September to begin the process of abandoning the west end of an alley that runs through the center of a block bordered by Clinton, Grant, Mason and Sherman Streets. That east end of the alley is paved and used, but the west end is unpaved and has not been used for decades.

During the public comments section of the meeting, Samuel Jassenoiff complained about traffic problems near the intersection of Park and Clinton Streets. The city council said they will have the police chief review the matter.

Doug Bergmann listed a series of allegations of improper responses by the city fire department to recent emergencies. The city council said they will have the fire chief respond.

Albert L. "Buster" Russell

Albert L. "Buster" Russell, 75, of Charlevoix, died Aug. 15, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral will be 11 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 18, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Charles Hastie of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Oddfellows Lodge will officiate. Burial will take place in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Russell was born June 23, 1918, in Charlevoix, the son of Milton and Mabel J. (Hadden) Russell. He attended Charlevoix Public Schools.

On Sept. 11, 1939, he married Pauline E. Ziska in Ellsworth. The couple lived in Detroit where Mr. Russell worked for the Continental Diecasting Co. for four years.

He served from 1944 to 1945 with the U.S. Army during World War II in the European Theater.

After leaving the service, Mr. Russell worked for Art's Dry Cleaners in Charlevoix and for the Petoskey Steam Laundry. He also worked in construction in Grand Rapids, Muskegon and Lake Leelanau.

He returned to Charlevoix and worked in construction at the Medusa Cement Co., and had last worked for the city of Charlevoix. He retired in 1976.

Mr. Russell attended the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix. He was a member and served as senior vice president of the Charlevoix VFW Post No. 1153. He was a member of the International Order of Oddfellows No. 293, and was a life member of the DAV. Mr. Russell was also a member and past commander of the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, and a member of the American Association of Retired Persons.

He was an avid fisherman.

Survivors include his wife, Pauline; four daughters, Wanda Rann and her husband John of Perry, Mich., Evelyn Noirot and her husband Alva of Charlevoix, Judy Russell of Norwood, and Sharon Snyder and her husband Donald of Houston, Texas; 14 grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; three brothers, Walter, Douglas and Robert, all of Charlevoix; and two sisters, Edith Deschmeier of Bay Shore, and Reda Zukowski of Los Angeles, Calif.

Memorial contributions may be directed to the Charlevoix Area Hospital or to the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix where friends may call 7-9 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 17.

obituaries
John T. Burns

Charlevoix summer resident John T. Burns, 71, died Aug. 14, 1993, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

A memorial service was held Aug. 18, at the Emmanuel Episcopal Church. The Rev. Walter Draeger officiated.

Mr. Burns was born May 16, 1922, in Montgomery, Ala., the son of Lorin J. and Janette (McFerran) Burns. He grew up and attended school in Montgomery, Ala. He attended the University of Louisville in Kentucky and received his bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering in 1943. In 1975, he received an honorary doctor of science degree from the University of Louisville.

On Sept. 25, 1954, he married Patricia Jacques in Los Angeles, Calif. and she survives.

His career in engineering began in Los Angeles with the Douglas Aircraft Co. He later joined the Vickers Corp., a division of Speer Rand, in 1956 where he became president in 1968. He retired in 1982.

Mr. Burns enjoyed skiing, sailing and woodworking. He was an active member of Christ Church Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills for 20 years, and a member of S.A.E.

Survivors include his wife, Patricia; two sons, Scott Burns and his wife Kathleen of Manhattan Beach, Calif., and Kent Burns and his wife Cristina of Palmdale, Calif.; one granddaughter, Erin Burns; one brother, Gene Burns and his wife Louise of Hermosa Beach, Calif.; and one sister, Martha Miller of Louisville, Ky.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Oncology Department at Burns Clinic.

Jack C. Russell

Jack C. Russell, 61, of Ellsworth and formerly of Charlevoix, died Aug. 11, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

His funeral was Aug. 14 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix with burial following in Brookside Cemetery.

He was born March 29, 1932, in Petoskey, the son of Milton C. and Ruth J. (Fraser) Russell. He was raised in Charlevoix.

In December 1951 he married Dorothy M. Feltenberger in Charlevoix and she survives.

Mr. Russell worked as a truck driver in the construction industry.

For 26 years, Mr. and Mrs. Russell spent their winters in Homosassa, Fla., and summers in Charlevoix. They moved to Ellsworth from Charlevoix three years ago.

Mr. Russell is survived by his wife, Dorothy M.; two sons, Carl of Bethel, Alaska, and Clarence and his wife Elsie of Ellsworth; two daughters, Carol Ward and her husband Donald of Charlevoix, and Colleen Ruth Lenions and her husband Daniel of Lansing; eight grandchildren; one sister, Elaine Parsons and her husband Robert of Grand Rapids; five brothers, Gerald R. and his wife Evelyn, Richard and his wife Mary, and Ronald, all of Charlevoix, William and his wife Sandra of Macleona, and Doug and his wife Alida of Grand Rapids. Mr. Russell was preceded in death by his brother, Donald.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

British schools differ from U.S. schools

(The following story was written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former mayor and city council member who continues to be active in a number of civic endeavors.)

By Ralph McRae

Howard Majors is a 1963 graduate of Charlevoix High School. His children are having a much different educational experience. The two children, Carolyn 13 and Mark, 15, are attending school in England. Howard, his wife Suzanne and the two children recently visited Charlevoix, vacationing in a roomy flat overlooking Round Lake.

After graduating from Charlevoix High School, Majors attended and graduated from Michigan State University. Following graduation, Majors went to work for Mobil Oil Corporation. Currently he is a senior executive with Mobil's European Marketing and Refining division and works out of London, England. Prior to moving to England, Majors spent a year in the Netherlands.

This fall Carolyn Majors will begin her third year as a student at the American School of London. Her eighth grade classmates will be other students from the United States along with various other foreign countries. Most of the students, like Carolyn, are the children of business people working in London. Carolyn's school is in a three-story building in central London. It is co-ed with the majority of classes taught by American teachers. Classes begin at 8:20 a.m. and conclude at 2:45 p.m. Class numbers are held to a maximum of 16 students. The small classes result in better discipline and more attention to serious studying. Computers are used for writing assignments such as turning out book reports.

Carolyn has five classes plus a physical education class and a study hall. She takes homework home with her every day. No school dress code is enforced, but students are expected to dress reasonably well. Compared to a Maryland school Carolyn attended prior to moving to England, the American School has less distractions. Carolyn has a choice of transportation for getting to school. She can take a mini-van, a bus or the subway.

Mark, who will be entering the tenth grade this fall, attends a private boarding school called Standbridge near the village of Romsey, a few miles from South Hampton. Standbridge is a school which was founded approximately 150 years ago. It has 200 students in the sixth through twelfth grades. Three-fourths of the students are male. Classes are limited to 10 students. Mark is the only American student. The other students are all either British or from other foreign countries.

Classroom study is strenuous. The curriculum is heavily weighted toward math and science. Computers are used extensively. Mark has six classes five days a week and additional classes on Saturday morning until noon. There is also plenty of homework for the evening hours.

The Charlevoix Historical Society has initiated a fund raising drive for the restoration of the old Depot Building. The drive has a goal of $50,000 which will qualify the Society for another $50,000 from a challenge grant.

Historical Society raising funds to renovate Depot building

By L. Scott Swanson

The Charlevoix Historical Society has initiated a $50,000 fund raising campaign which will lead to the renovation of the old Charlevoix train depot building. The building was donated to the society last year. The society plans to renovate it and turn it into a museum surrounded by a landscaped garden and winding pathway.

The estimated cost of the building renovation and landscaping is $100,000. A benefactor who wishes to remain anonymous has offered a $50,000 challenge grant. If the society can raise $50,000, the benefactor will contribute the remaining $50,000.

Having accepted the challenge, the society is aggressively working to raise the money. Leading the four-pronged drive are: Hilda Gibson who will be soliciting donations from the society's 279 members; Mary Geiken who will be recruiting new members; John Gaskin who will be seeking major donations; and Lou Orlowski who will be soliciting donations from Charlevoix businesses and service clubs. Bill Price is serving as publicity chairman.

Historical Society executive director Geoff Reynolds says that for the most part the 100-year-old building is in very good condition. It needs a new coat of paint, but the roof is in excellent condition and the basement has been refurbished in recent years.

Long range plans are for the Depot building to house historical exhibits and for the Harsha House, which currently houses exhibits, to serve as more of a research and meeting center.

The old baggage and waiting rooms of the Depot building offer ample room for exhibits. A smaller front room is going to be used for an exhibit explaining the role of railroads in Charlevoix's history. The late Louie Edwards, a former historical society president, was an avid collector of railroad items and left the society a number of arti-

In addition to academics, athletics are offered. They include English sports such as field hockey, rugby and soccer, but also more familiar sports such as basketball and tennis. Mark plays the more familiar sports.

Mark stays on campus five nights a week in the dormitory. Going home for the weekend means a half hour cab drive followed by an hour long train ride.

Both schools are funded by tuition paid either by students' parents or the companies which employ the parents. Credits earned are transferable to United States schools. Most of the English children begin school at age three or four. However, there are few programs for children with mental or physical disabilities. About 10 percent of the students go on to college. There are no vocational or trade schools.

School meets with DNR to discuss demand for $444,000 in clean-up costs

By L. Scott Swanson

A group of people representing the Charlevoix School System met with a group of people from the Department of Natural Resources and Michigan Attorney General's office Aug. 5 in Lansing. The meeting was to discuss the DNR's demand that the school system pay $444,000 for the DNR's clean-up efforts of groundwater contamination. The clean-up occurred in the mid 1980s and included construction of a new city water plant. The DNR claims the clean-up was necessary because of contamination which originated at the middle school. School system officials do not believe there is conclusive evidence that the contamination is the school's fault and the school system has retained an attorney and a hydrogeologist.

While the Aug. 5 meeting lasted several hours, neither side's position has changed. The meeting did result in an extension of the deadline for the school to file an official response to Sept. 30.

"We think it's grossly unfair," school superintendent Dr. Roberta Jackson said of the DNR's demand for money. She said even if the school ends up paying the money, from a taxpayer's standpoint, it would simply be a tax shift.

Carrie Olmsted of the DNR's Cost Recovery Unit said the purpose of the Aug. 5 meeting was just to explain to school representatives what the process of negotiating a cost settlement would be.

In regard to the middle school site being the origin of contamination, Olmsted said, "All the geological evidence points to that property as being the specific point of release."

The school system has hired hydrogeologist Tim Braithwaite of Ann Arbor to review all of the evidence in the matter. The school has also hired attorney John Voepel, who specializes in environmental matters. Voepel said Braithwaite is reviewing all of the documentation and test results on the Charlevoix groundwater contamination to look into the possibility that it came from a source other than the middle school. Voepel noted that at the Aug. 5 meeting, the DNR officials said they can't define a specific event which caused the contamination, but that based on the TCE (a solvent which is the contaminant in question) plumes there is sufficient evidence that the release occurred on school property.

Voepel said that at this point it's too early in the process to say how the DNR's demand will ultimately be resolved.

Olmsted said the DNR is taking into account that the party they're dealing with is a school system, but noted "We're just treating it like any other potentially responsible party except that we know that they can't just write a check." Olmsted also noted that it is not uncommon for public bodies to be considered as potentially responsible parties. Most often the public bodies have been cities.

Work continues on County Building repairs

Commissioners also consider purchasing former bank building

By Laurie Lounsbury

The Charlevoix County Courthouse renovation job looks like it will meet its completion deadline but exceed the original cost projection. The phase one renovation and addition to the county building is being done by the Grand Traverse Construction Company, whose original bid for the work was $337,000. That cost has risen due to unforeseen complications and needs. The removal of asbestos pipe insulation cost an extra $8,349.

Upon completion in October, the county building will have a completely renovated courtroom, a new holding cell behind the judge's chambers, and new barrier-free bathrooms. Handicapped ramps have been installed at the front and side doors of the building. A new sound system will be installed in the courtroom, new ceilings and lights will be placed in the hallway, and the doors will have panic push bar openers instead of doorknobs.

The county commissioners may not stop with the renovated county building. Commissioners are considering purchasing the former First State Bank building for probate and district court use. Commissioner Carl Price said that while no asking price has been assigned to the building, bank owners would like to sell the building for its assessed tax value. Price estimates that value.

Renovation work is progressing on schedule at the Charlevoix County Building. The discovery of some additional asbestos which needed to be removed raised the estimated cost by $8,349, making the project's total cost approximately $345,000.

Caregivers group to meet Aug. 21

A meeting of the Charlevoix County Caregivers Support Group will take place Saturday, Aug. 21, at 2 p.m. at the Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home.

Christine Curtin, B.A., R.N.C., of District Health Department No. 3 will be the speaker.

Anyone who is responsible for the care of a sick or frail person outside the hospital setting is invited. Those who must deal with the stresses of caring for a loved one at home or in a nursing home will find the group informational and enjoyable.

The meeting is free of charge. Care for your loved one will be available. Please call Nancy Ellison at 547-4024, if you require this service. Refreshments will be served. Reservations not required.

Alliance receives SBA development designation and funds

The Northern Lakes Economic Alliance recently received official designation as a Michigan Small Business Development Center (SBDC) along with a $3,000 federal grant from the Small Business Administration (SBA) to provide counseling services. The staff offers free personalized counseling and training opportunities for existing small business owners and aspiring entrepreneurs. This includes business plan development, identifying sources of financing, marketing and international trade assistance. SBDC services are offered in conjunction with Economic Alliance services in the Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

Tom Johnson, Executive Director of the Economic Alliance, said that the formal ties with the SBA will further increase the Economic Alliance's ability to serve local businesses. The SBA has access to resources helpful to small companies such as information on limited liability corporations and employee leasing. In addition the SBA offers guaranteed loans to small businesses for working capital and fixed assets.

"One year ago, the Economic Alliance formed a partnership with the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, which like the SBA, has a wealth of resources," Johnson said. "By forming partnerships with these organizations, the Economic Alliance has been more effective at making world-class resources available to local businesses and communities."

For more information, contact Tom Johnson at 616-582-6482.

to be around $400,000 after deducting $80,000 in banking equipment.

Commissioner Phil Johnson wanted to get an option to buy the building but commissioner Don Smith opposed the idea, saying he'd rather have an architect take a look at it first, decide if the building is feasible for courtroom use, then consider an option to buy.

The 6,700 square foot bank building could also house the Department of Building Inspection, which currently operates out of an old residential structure behind the county building. Johnson would like to offer the basement of the bank building to the 9-1-1 authority for use as the central dispatch office, pointing out that central dispatch will bring 14 new jobs to the area.

Commissioners Price, Jim Behling, and Richard Gillespie will walk through the building Wednesday, Aug. 18, with architect John Dyksterhouse and engineer Tony Mulak.

Voters approve millage: school opens Sept. 7

Charlevoix school district voters approved a school millage request for 14.55 mills at an Aug. 10 school election. Voters approved the request by a vote of 1022 to 711. In June, voters turned down a 16.55 mill request by a vote of 637-621.

The 14.55 mills is down from 17.5 mills which made up the school's voted operational millage last year. A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a property's assessed value. Assessed value is 50 percent of market value.

Following the Aug. 10 election, school superintendent Dr. Roberta Jackson said, "It's nice to have the vote of support from the community. I'd like to thank those who worked to get out the vote."

School will open Sept. 7.

This old postcard from 1908 shows a Charlevoix baseball team of that era. Some of the names on the back, particularly the players' first names, aren't completely legible. Some of the last names on the card are: Powers, Bridge, Wilson, Hull, Wallace, Hamlin and Poole. (The card was submitted to the Courier by Larry Freedman.)

1993 Art Fair was a glowing success

Charlevoix's 35th Annual Waterfront Art Fair drew more than 20,000 people to town Saturday and went as smooth as silk according to organizers of the event.

Suzi Reis of the Charlevoix Council for the Arts said this year's Art Fair was among the most successful ever.

"The weather was so helpful," Reis said, noting that the weather was just cloudy enough to keep people off the beaches and in town, yet not rainy. She said the fair had a large crowd throughout the day Saturday.

Approximately 165 artists exhibited at the fair and reported strong sales. Reis said one first-time exhibitor brought 54 sweaters to the show and sold all but four of them.

The Charlevoix Council for the Arts is a nonprofit corporation with the sole mission of bringing greater exposure of various art forms to the Charlevoix area. Proceeds from the Waterfront Art Fair are used to provide college scholarships to promising Charlevoix art students and to bring performing arts to Charlevoix. Proceeds from this year's Art Fair will bring the Ohio Ballet to Charlevoix in October.

is discontented with the city fire department. "It's pretty evident that there's a problem there and they (the city council) don't want to rectify it," he said. But he also maintains that his discontent over the fire department and other issues is not the reason for the recall. He maintains that the reason for the recall is that when he attempted to contact Felter to discuss his dissatisfaction, he was unable to do so.

"I don't expect someone to sit home 24 hours a day, but they should be available," Campbell said. He said he feels second ward residents "need to be represented by someone who will be in contact with people."

Felter has labeled the recall effort "a bunch of crap." He said nobody else has complained about his accessibility and the people who have complained haven't talked to him. "It's just a big expense for the city and taxpayers over something that's not an issue," Felter said.

As to how the recall election will turn out, Felter said he doesn't know and that it's always hard to tell in an election with a small voting base. Campbell said he feels the recall effort will be successful, but added that you never know whether people will or won't turn out to vote.

Campbell said he has been out of town recently and hasn't been actively campaigning in favor of the recall. Felter said he hasn't actively campaigned yet, but probably would do something prior to the election.

There are 698 registered voters in the city's second ward. Voting will take place at City Hall. Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

KCB party raises $6,000

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's (KCB) Summer Sampler party Aug. 8 at Dunmaglas was a grand success raising $6,000 for the 1994 Operation Petunia. Twenty area food businesses provided an impressively diverse eating experience for the 300 people who attended the event.

KCB president Bruce MacArthur said the food was great and that 1,100 shrimp were devoured along with 800 oysters on the half-shell. The goal of the event was to raise $5,000 but that goal was exceeded by approximately $1,000.

In addition to the dinner, the organ which the late Al Breeze used to play at the Grey Gables was auctioned off. Dale Boss purchased the organ for $850.

Why go to Charlevoix's sidewalk sales? For the bargains

By LISA BABCOCK
News-Review staff writer

CHARLEVOIX — Jeanine Wallace, owner of Shop of the Gulls, barely asks the question before she has the answer.

"Why do you go to sidewalk sales?" Wallace asks. "For bargains, of course, and great stuff."

Sidewalk sales are more than stuff, and more than shopping, though. It's a chance to socialize and get great stuff at good prices.

"It's kind of like a gigantic town flea market," she says. "It's fun to go."

Fred DiMartino, owner of Trademark Clothiers, agrees.

"We always look forward to it," he says. "It's so nice to get outdoors and be working."

Sidewalk sales are good for the merchants, too, because it gives them a chance to clear summer stock off the shelves and make room for fall.

"It has to happen," he says.

DiMartino says sidewalk sales make him kind of sad, too — because they mark the beginning of the end of the season.

"It's all coming down to the last fling of the summer," he says.

Summer's final fling — at least, the last major event weekend — will run at full force starting 9 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 19. It continues Friday and Saturday, Aug. 20-21, on Bridge Street. Sales run as long as there are customers, which could be 10 p.m. No entertainment or other features are scheduled — this sidewalk sale is for people who have fun being serious shoppers. "It's fun to get the bargains," Wallace says. "I guess that's why people love them."

Charlevoix: Shoppers will have a chance to rake in the savings this weekend during the annual Sidewalk Sales. The sale begins Thursday and runs through Saturday. (NEWS-REVIEW file photo)

Concerts brighten park

CHARLEVOIX — While the third annual Concerts in the Park series will take a break this Saturday for Sidewalk Sales, there's still plenty of time to enjoy a concert at the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in the city's downtown East Park.

Today at 8 p.m. the Ron Getz Quartet, a jazz ensemble will perform.

Next Wednesday, Aug. 25, will feature The Loose Change Band, which offers get-down, country-style music.

The last concert of the season will feature Chris Martin and Friends at 1 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 28. Martin, owner of Willie's Up North in East Jordan, is best known for his Willie Nelson-type signing and music.

The concert series is sponsored by the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau.

An additional concert is planned this month by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, which will coincide with the opening day of Sidewalk Sales.

The 555th Air Force Band of the Ohio Air National Guard will perform 7-8:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 19, in the band shell.

Peace of heaven

Hoffmann Park offers quiet respite

By LISA BABCOCK
News-Review staff writer

He's not alone.

CHARLEVOIX — Jeremy Potts sits cross-legged on the concrete-topped stone bench. With half a sandwich in one hand, he looks down the channel and enjoys the serenity of Hoffmann Park.

For Potts, 23, the park is the perfect place to spend his late-afternoon break from his job at Charlevoix Bookshop.

"I always eat my lunch/dinner here because it's a beautiful park," he says.

Hoffmann Park is a favorite of downtown Charlevoix residents and workers. When they want a place for lunches, dinners, sunning, an access to the water or a vista of the boat traffic on Pine River channel, Hoffmann Park is the place to be.

"It's like a little pocket park, right in the middle of town," says Jeannine Wallace, who eats lunch in the park almost daily. "It's just concrete shuffleboard courts in the "jewel" of Charlevoix the Beautiful, Jeff says yes.

He keeps the courts open Monday-Sunday 7-10 p.m., and players pay 50 cents to $1.50 — depending on their age — to hurl a puck down a long, narrow court.

Locals and summer people line up along the two concrete pads north and south of the sidewalk that cuts through the center of the rolling, grassy park. Each pad has four courts, and new DDA member Dan Barron calls it "a lot of concrete."

He suggests DDA members cut the courts to only one pad, adding an extra court on one side if necessary.

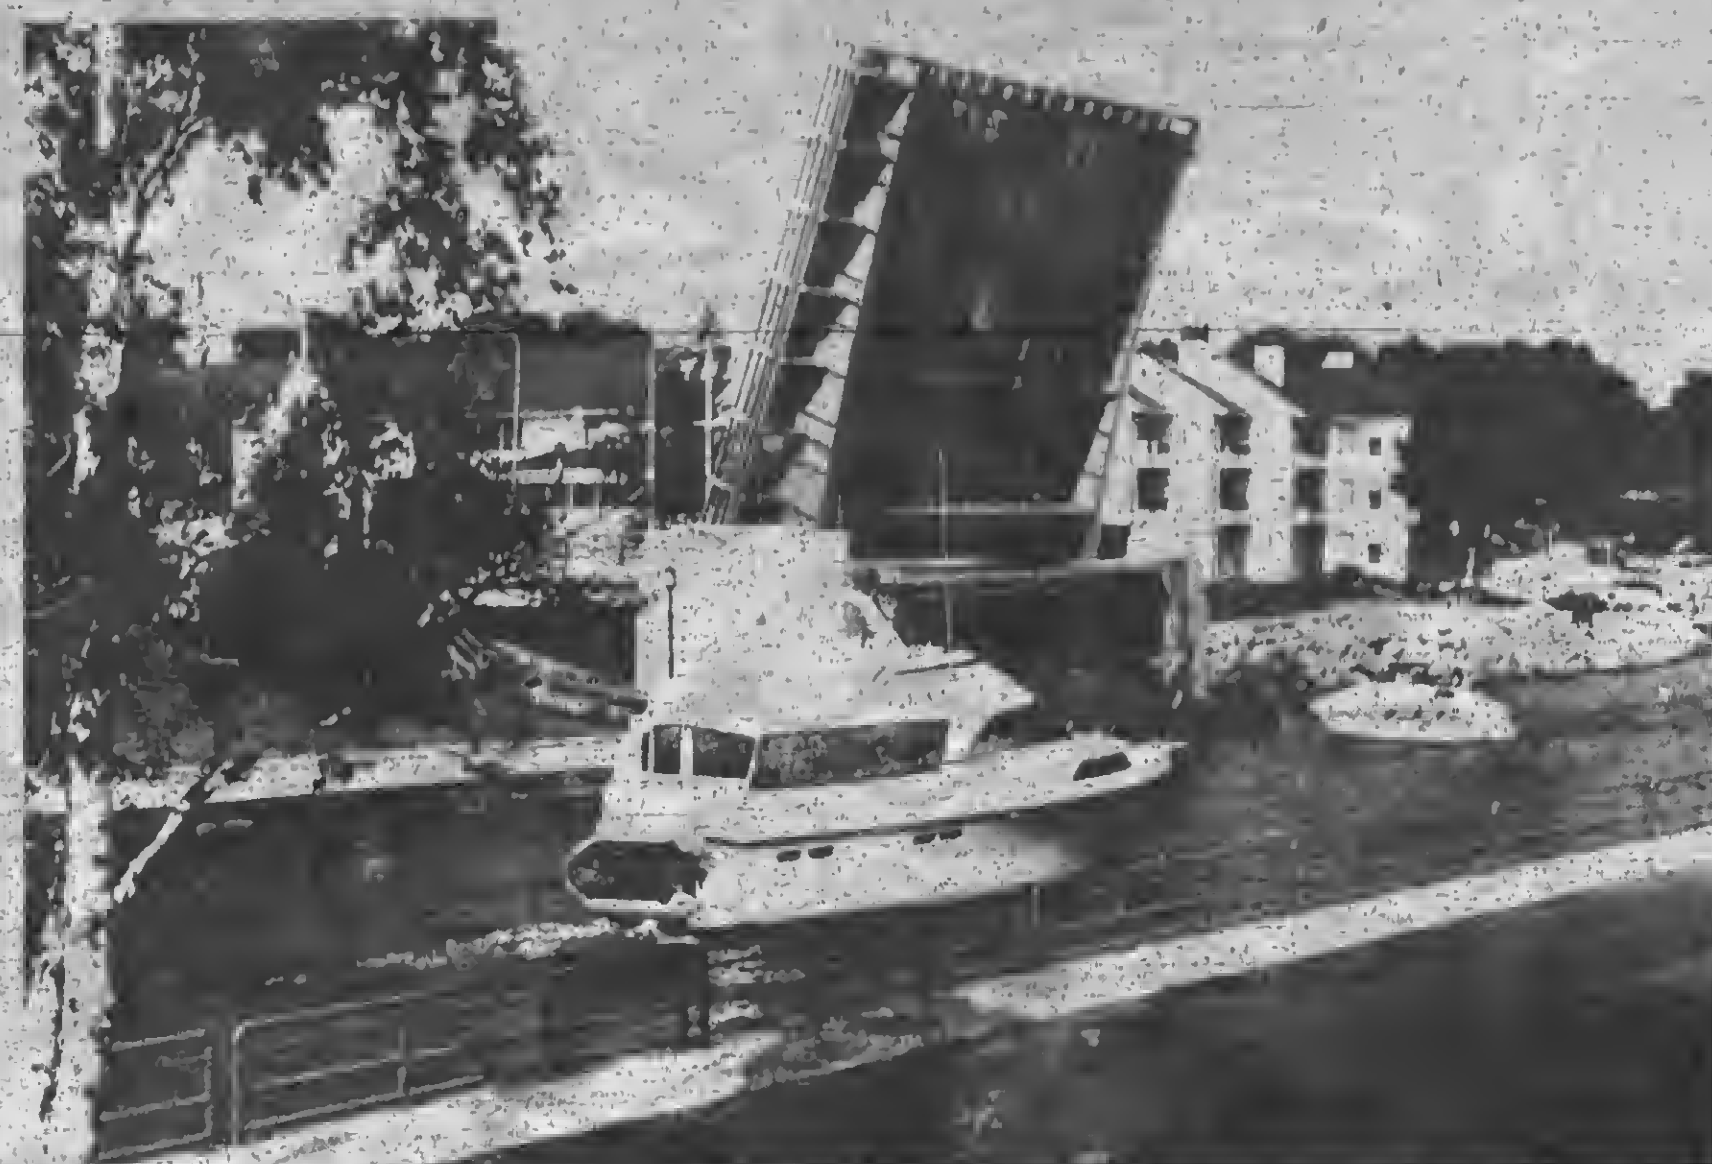

Jeff says all the courts are necessary. Without eight courts, he'll have trouble serving the shuffleboarders.

"I'd probably have to turn people away," he says. "Definitely, I use every court."

He earns all the money the shuffleboard courts take in. He reached a new high Monday night — $60, about double the average night's $30.

take. The city owns the shuffleboard equipment.

DDA members plan to do something with the courts, but the plans are all different.

Mayor David Novotny wants Jeff to open the shuffleboard courts during daytime on a Saturday to see if they'll make money.

Jeannine Wallace wants to modernize the shuffleboard courts by adding a sign with times the courts are open.

"I think it's a need to have downtown," she says. "We should take advantage of it."

She also wants the city to take advantage of its plans to

Most of the people she sees in the park are locals, she says. Resorters don't notice it because it's tucked between Park Avenue and the channel.

"It's a sitting, admiring, relaxing park," Wallace says. Steps take walkers to the channel, letting them walk from the downtown businesses to Lake Michigan. "It's really a neat place for giving people access (to the water)," Wallace says. Potts likes the park's versatility.

On hot days, shade trees make the park cool, he says. When the weather is cool, people can sit on the benches and soak up sun.

The park sits on a slice of Charlevoix history. Amos Fox, who built a wooden dock into Lake Michigan before the Pine River Channel was dredged, built a house and lived there between the 1870s and 1890s, according to a city marker on the site. In 1908, Fencing along the park has its place in history, too. The railing was on the 1901 swing bridge over the channel. When it was replaced by the current bridge in 1948, Mrs. Mildred Campbell salvaged it. She donated it to the city to be part of the park.

East Park is the city's "jewel," Wallace says.

"This park is Charlevoix's showpiece," she says. "It's the park everybody goes by every day of our life."

The south side assembled enough brute force to make short work of the north side in the 1993 tug of war Sunday afternoon.

A south side perspective

By L. Scott Swanson

It took 6.4 seconds Sunday afternoon for the south side to continue its dominance of Charlevoix's annual south side versus essentially nobody tug-of-war competition. The greatest challenge south side team members faced was maintaining their balance while running backwards.

Despite being outmanned, the north side team gave a valiant effort from the start to finish of Sunday's tug of war, all 6.4 seconds of it.

A north side perspective

By Laurie Lounsbury

A small but valiant band of northsiders lined up along the north side of the Pine River Channel for the third annual tug of war contest. They gazed with trepidation at the hulking crowd of southsiders across the narrow band of water. Determined to save their reputation, which had been besmirched last year by rumors of alleged cheating, the north-

Bids approved for Petoskey Avenue water project

In a 15-minute special meeting Monday, Aug. 23 the Charlevoix Council approved contracts for $301,234 for water main work on the city's north side. The new water mains will be installed on Petoskey Avenue and on Burns Street this fall and will correct a problem which for years has required many north side residents to let their water drip in the winter in order to keep pipes from freezing.

At Monday evening's meeting, first ward council member Don Moggison said he's pretty sure the water mains scheduled for replacement were initially installed in 1953 and that the freezing problem has existed for almost the entire 40 years from then to now.

City manager Mike Wiesner said that in addition to correcting the freezing problem, the new water mains will improve the north side water system's pressure and flow.

Bids for the project were opened Aug. 13. The city bid the project in two parts. One set of bids was taken for supplying materials and another set of bids was taken for construction bid. Wiesner explained that this was the first time the City of Charlevoix has sought separate bids for supply and construction and that it was done because other municipalities had tried it with success. He said bidding the supplies separately saves sales-tax charges and offers other advantages which can encourage suppliers to submit lower bids. A bid of $69,904 from ETNA Supply was the lowest among three supplier bids on the water main projects. The other bids

Life in London has advantages and disadvantages

(Editor's note: The following story was written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former city mayor and council member who remains active in a number of civic endeavors. He has traveled extensively and takes a great interest in other countries. This week's story is the second from an interview with the Howard and Suzanne Majors-family. Howard, the son of Rev. and Mrs. George Majors formerly of the Charlevoix Community Church of God, was born and raised in Charlevoix. Following graduation from Charlevoix High School, he attended and graduated from Michigan State University. Since that time he has been employed by Mobil Oil Corporation. Presently, he and Suzanne and their two children, Caroline and Mark, live in London, England.)

By Ralph McRae

Suzanne Majors' home is a central London flat which has 10 large rooms and 16-foot-high ceilings. She entertains often. Many of her guests are international business people who, like her husband, represent large businesses with offices in London.

Shopping for food is hindered by parking problems. There are no malls and compared to American markets the London stores offer fewer choices. American products are scarce. Despite this, Suzanne, who is from Mount Clemens and like Howard is an MSU graduate, tries to, as much as is possible, give her family Michigan-style meals.

The family has only one car, a BMW, and have they have gotten used to driving the car on the left side of the street. When they get the chance, mostly in the summer time, they enjoy taking drives through the many small villages that surround London.

The family also feels perfectly safe walking the streets of London.

Most of the crimes are not violent and guns are seldom used. The bobbies (i.e. London police) carry no guns.

Suzanne prefers to buy clothes for herself and family back in the United States. She works as a substitute teacher in a public school. She says schools in the United States are much better - more organized with better planned studies. She says the British public schools have longer lunch hours, more free time and no specific goals. Parental participation in the schools is low. Throughout Britain there are many precollege private schools, most of them very prestigious and serving as springboards to coveted government or military careers.

Howard Majors has been with Mobil Oil for 22 years working in various positions in many places. He has relocated nine times, but is now working on a long-term basis in London. The company's London office oversees the refinery and market division for 16 different countries involving a work force of 3,000 employees. Like many large corporations, Mobil in recent years has made a serious effort to become leaner and more efficient. Majors noted that the recent worldwide recession was more serious in England than in the U.S. and that unemployment is at about 10 percent.

However the future is brighter. England has joined the European Community and a tunnel was recently completed under the English Channel. Mobil Oil supplied all of the oil lubricants for the heavy equipment used in building the tunnel.

London's people closely follow current events in the United States, particularly politics. They marvel at our many nationalities living re-

As the south side team assembled at approximately 1 p.m. behind the fisheries station for the 1:15 p.m. tug, they looked across the channel and noticed that the north side team had gathered only a smattering of people. South side team members could only speculate as to the reason for the light north side turnout. You know how those northsiders are. Perhaps they had other engagements - like hair appointments or maybe they were getting a manicure.

With the start of the tug rapidly approaching, Mayor Dave Novotny, captain of the south side team, moved to rally his troops. As Novotny encouraged the team to line up, the southsiders showed characteristic south side disdain for order and organization and continued milling about aimlessly. Novotny, who was without a gavel and has lived on the south side long enough to get used to the way south side people operate, made one more attempt to spur his team to action saying sarcastically, "Now, don't all move at once." When the team continued to do just that - all not move at once - the team leader rightfully concluded that his team would get ready when it was ready to get ready and he went back to chatting with other people and enjoying the nice weather on a summer Sunday afternoon on the channel.

Eventually the two teams did line up and assume their tugging positions. Given the history of the event, before the start of the tug both teams were closely checking the opposition to make sure there were no shenanigans. In the first year of the event, there was actually some give and take tugging and straining before the south side won. Last year, in the second annual tug, the north side wrapped the end of the rope around a utility pole, pulled just enough to take the slack out of the rope, threw down the line, declared themselves the winners and left. This year the south side was determined to make sure there would be none of that stuff. Bill Vogel of KHQ radio served as judge of the event and made sure the rope was anchored and pulled by human hands and nothing else.

When the tug finally started, the south side team immediately asserted itself as the superior team and the north side team did a fine impression of lemmings on a march to the sea. The south side victory was so thoroughly overwhelming that next year it might be necessary to come up with some different competition to provide a challenge. One possibility might be to harness the south side's tugging prowess for civic good. For example, you could hold the event in the same location, but rather than having people compete against people, perhaps the south and north side teams could join forces and hook the other end of the rope to the old water tower. If folks are really sincere about wanting that thing to come down...

Following the tug, people from both the south and north sides put down the rope, crossed the channel in a spirit of community harmony and joined in a picnic sponsored by the Townhouse and Bridge Club with donations collected for the Club 77 youth center.

Letters to the editor

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

My outstate friends tell me that I think of Charlevoix as the center of the universe. See if you don't agree just a little when you hear this story!

Two Yalie roommates graduate in 1987. Robert Evans Claar gets a job in Japan with an Industrial Market Research Company. The other young man, Charles Gammie, pursues his post doctorate degree in astrophysics at the University of Virginia. Over the years they keep in touch.

This spring, Charles calls Rob in Japan and tells him he is getting married on August 14th, at the First congregational Church in a little town called Charlevoix.

To which Rob replies, "No way! this is a joke. You called my mother and she told you where I am getting married!"

Charles is even more surprised when he learns that Rob is getting married in the same church in the same town on July 17th by the same minister.

How does such a coincidence come about?

First of all, Rob's parents, Connie and Dick Claar have had a cottage in Blue Heaven on Torch Lake since 1967. Rob's Japanese bride, Yasuko Tatsuchiya, along with fourteen relatives and friends wanted to come to Northern Michigan to attend what is called a "destination wedding". The group stayed at the Edgewater Hotel for a week where they enjoyed golf, fishing, barbecues and all of the good things that Charlevoix has to offer. Upon their return to Tokyo, there will be a reception in October for the newlyweds.

Five of Rob's Yale roommates, including Charles, also flew in for the wedding from San Francisco, Chicago, Washington D.C. and Charlottesville, Va. The rehearsal dinner was held in Traverse City at the Waterfront Inn with a sunset view of Lake Michigan.

Coincidentally, Charles' bride, Kristin Hoganson, has summered in Northern Michigan with her family.

She, too, graduated from Yale and earned her Ph.D. in history. For those who take pride in local history, you'll be interested to know that the bride's grandfather built the family cottage on Walloon Lake in 1907. The reception was held here under a tent for 95 assembled guests, who were enthralled when the bride and groom arrived on the scene by boat. To add to the nostalgia, the bride wore her mother's wedding dress, her grandmother's veil, and a snippet of her grandmother's lace in her bouquet. Charles and Kristen are now living in Charlottesville, Va.

I was especially pleased to hear from the bride's mother that she read a copy of my book, THE COMPLETE WEDDING PLANNER, and that she found it most helpful in planning this lovely wedding for her daughter.

There's no doubt in my mind that there will be more "coincidental" gatherings of these Yalies in the future in Charlevoix, and that Rev. Schairbaum of the First Congregational Church may even be privileged to perform a baptism or two here before the turn of the century.

Support voiced for Felter

Editor,

To the Voters of Charlevoix's Second Ward:

If you do nothing else Monday, Aug. 30, go to City Hall and cast your ballot to protect the position of Councilman Ted Felter.

The attempt to unseat Felter marks the first time in living memory that any Charlevoix city official has been the object of a recall election. The charge against him is spurious at best. Political manipulators in the Second Ward say Felter is too hard to get in touch with, which is the weakest excuse for a recall imaginable. It should never have been allowed, particularly when the real reason behind the action is to stack the council against City Manager Mike Wiesner.

Why are the manipulators against Wiesner? Because he allowed the dismissal of four volunteer firemen — from a department burdened with an excess of qualified leadership. Wiesner had no other course if he were to maintain a modicum of discipline within the department. Think about it.

I hope the voters in the Second

Ward realize how important Monday's election is, not only to themselves but to the rest of Charlevoix in the years ahead. We must not allow these political manipulators to debate the democratic process and realign the make-up of the council by calling off-season special elections. Such skulduggery is reminiscent of the darkest days of the Richard Nixon administration.

Even if you signed a recall petition, you can still do the right thing by Mr. Felter by voting to retain him until the end of his term.

Editor,

Consideration, please?

We have spent the last eight summers in our rustic Oyster Bay cabin enjoying the pleasures that we feel are so unique to this area. As a part of the vast wetland network of Michigan, Oyster Bay is home for song birds, ducks with their broods, geese, swans and an occasional blue heron. We often refer to Oyster Bay as "On Golden Pond" a quiet, peaceful retreat.

The weekenders will choose our Bay to anchor for an afternoon swim, to picnic, fish or just to enjoy the surroundings. Sailboats overnight in the Bay and slide silently out in the early morning light. People are generally very aware and respect that this is an area which is shared by residents, visitors and wildlife.

Letters to the editor

...jet ski problems

Water toys and their users are beginning to create an irritating and perhaps destructive situation for the Bay's wildlife inhabitants and human inhabitants. Jet skiers appear on the horizon and in a matter of seconds zoom by resounding from the water like a combination dentist's high speed drill, circular saw and chain saw. Mostly there is a sense that the area belongs to them "Out of my way ducks, boaters, swimmers, fisherman! I need these quiet waters to practice the circular water acrobatics and have my fun!"

So, for me, the answer is consideration. But how is this attitude promoted? Perhaps your readers have some ideas because the jet skier's actions are certainly not isolated to Oyster Bay and the speedy fun machines are not going away!

KCB supports review of sign ordinance

Editor,

Beauty is good for business!

The planting of 50,000 pennias each year by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB) volunteers has attracted many visitors to our town, which has provided an economic bonus.

Originally, KCB was organized 13 years ago because many were concerned about the types of signs proposed by new businesses. Signs made of natural materials were encouraged and as a result, many handsome signs have been chosen to identify stores, banks and professionals.

For several years, however, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has discussed the need to update Charlevoix's sign ordinance with representatives of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, including its economic development director, the City Planning Commission and City Council and others.

In the spirit of cooperation we have tried to convey the fact that there is concern that over-commercialization is changing the unique character and beauty of Charlevoix-the-Beautiful. We received frequent comments from local residents, visitors and business people about the proliferation of signs and the growing use of neon signs and strips. Since last year there have been nearly 60 neon installations. Neon "open" and "no vacancy" signs may be useful but are neon signs advertising various beverages, etc., really necessary?

Pennants, banners, day-glo colors and other attention getting devices are prevalent in both city and township. Store windows, in some instances, have been plastered inside with up to 14 signs.

How much is enough? What should our image be?

The gradual spread of neon was brought to the attention of KCB by a local business person who thoroughly researched sign ordinances from many other communities regarding the use (or non-use) of neon. This, combined with concern over the loophole in the present sign ordinance which says nothing about inside window signs, prompted our organization to seek clearer standards for signage. Also, A KCB report several years ago justified less restrictions in some cases.

To this end, we are suggesting that a complete review of the sign ordinance be undertaken by the planning commission and, meanwhile, a moratorium placed on additional neon use.

KCB appreciates the Charlevoix City Planning Commission putting this issue on its agenda for its meeting Wednesday (Aug. 25) at 7 p.m. at City Hall. We believe, by working together, we can preserve Charlevoix-the-Beautiful.

Sincerely,
Barbara MacArthur

Foundation awards four scholarships

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation has awarded scholarships to four 1993 graduates of East Jordan High School through a special endowment set up within the Foundation by the East Jordan Rotary Club Foundation.

Jason Gaunt was awarded the William E. Malpass Rotary Memorial Scholarship in the amount of $2,000. Gaunt plans to attend Western Michigan University to major in business administration.

The Howard P. Porter Rotary Memorial Scholarship of $1,000 was awarded to Jennifer Cook. Cook will attend Alma College.

David Bayers was chosen to receive the Bryce Vance Rotary Memorial Scholarship of $500. Bayers plans to major in pre-med at North Central Michigan College.

Susan Mills received the East Jordan Rotary Scholarship of $850. Mills will attend North Central Michigan College and major in teaching for the hearing impaired.

The East Jordan Rotary Scholarship Endowment was established as a "field-of-interest" fund within the Community Foundation earlier this year. Investment income from the fund is earmarked for students from the East Jordan school district. The endowment is one of several funds established within the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

As one of more than 400 similar foundations throughout the country, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation receives charitable donations and manages them in a permanent endowment. Income earned on the endowment is redistributed, in the form of grants and scholarships, to meet a variety of civic and human service needs.

Navy Airman Recruit Tricia L. Almonrode, a 1989 graduate of Charlevoix High School, recently completed recruit training with honors. During the cycle at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill, recruits are taught general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 occupational fields.

Almonrode was recognized for outstanding performance in all phases of training which included instruction in seamanship, military regulations, close-order-drill, first aid and naval history. She joined the Navy in January, 1993.

Breanna German, 4, of Ellsworth recently competed in the Little Miss of America pageant at the Sheraton Universal, located on the Universal Studios lot in Hollywood, California. German, the daughter of William and Dawn German, placed second in the talent competition and was a semifinalist in the overall competition. Her talent combines baton twirling, pom-poms, ribbon gymnastics and dance.

While in Hollywood, German also competed in the Entertainment Expo for Kids. In that competition, she was a "Supermodel" winner and received a medallion.

German was sponsored in the two competitions by the following businesses: East Jordan Iron Works; Dura Mechanical Components, Inc.; Medusa Cement Co.; Charlevoix Manufacturing Co.; Crown Motors of Charlevoix, Ltd.

FAMILY

Kettlehut - Martin

Mitchell Martin & Mary Kettlehut

Mary E. Kettlehut and Mitchell G. Martin of Kalamazoo have announced their engagement.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leoncio Rodríguez and the late Dorothy A. Leigh of Monterey, N.L., Mexico. The prospective groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Martin, formerly of Charlevoix and currently residing in Port Richey, Florida.

Martin is a 1978 graduate of Charlevoix High School. He is employed as a senior engineer at Palisades Nuclear Power Plant in Covert and is currently attending Western Michigan University at night to complete a master's degree in counseling psychology.

Kettlehut has a bachelor's degree from Andrews University and a masters degree in management from Nazareth College. She is employed in the Intellectual Property Law section at the Upjohn Company and also teaches at Kalamazoo Valley Community College.

The couple will be married Nov. 20, 1993 at the St. Thomas More church in Kalamazoo.

Hulburt - Balch

Karl & Katrine Balch

Katrine Joy Hulburt and Karl Gene Balch were united in marriage at 2 p.m. May 22, 1993 in the Presbyterian Church in Elk Rapids. One hundred and fifty guests attended the double ring ceremony officiated by Rev. Dan Hedgin.

The bride is the daughter of Gordon and Darlene Hulburt of Elk Rapids. She was given in marriage by her father. The groom is the son of Jerry and Joan Balch of Charlevoix.

The bride's gown was white satin decorated with pearl and sequins. It featured a V-waist with attached train trimmed with sculptured tulle outlined in pearls and sequins. A waist-length tulle veil was attached to a halo of white satin silk flowers with pearl accents. The bride's bouquet was designed and handmade in white satin miniature roses and orchids with green ivy with trailing white tulle of the valley, pearls and satin ribbon.

Fraei Secord served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Pam Couturier, sister of the bride, Tami Massey and Vickie Grow, sister of the bride. Their dresses were designed and made by Ann Shuhert, cousin of the groom, and featured drop-V waists with puff sleeves in teal and raspberry satin. They carried matching silk flowers accented with satin ribbon.

Alyssa Shuhert served as flower girl and also wore a teal satin dress. Shane Couturier, nephew of the bride, served as ringbearer.

Ken Balch, cousin of the groom, assisted as best man. Groomsmen were Derek Dutcher, Kevin Balch, brother of the groom, and Nick Mellios. Ushers were Bob Balch Jr., cousin of the groom, and Gordon T. Hulburt, brother of the bride.

Following the wedding a reception was given by the couple's parents at the Chicago Club in Charlevoix. Jim and Sue Stilson and Tom and Linda Louiselle served as hosts at the reception. The following Sunday a brunch for the immediate family and a gift opening at the Chicago Club was hosted by the groom's parents. A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at the Argonne Supper Club May 21.

Following a honeymoon trip to Sault Ste. Marie, Thaumeneon, Falls and St. Ignace the couple is making their home in Charlevoix. Karl is employed at the Chicago Club while Katrine is employed by the 90th District Court in Charlevoix County.

Smith - Herriman

Mike Herriman & Lisa Smith

Lisa Smith and Mike Herriman of Charlevoix have announced their engagement. The couple will be married Sept. 18 at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix.

The bride-elect is the daughter of John and Elaine Smith of Charlevoix. She is a 1988 graduate of Charlevoix High School and is employed by Central Drug Store.

The prospective groom is the son of Nate and Judy Herriman of Charlevoix. He is a 1985 graduate of Charlevoix High School and is employed by Charlevoix Manufacturing.

Guild hosts annual membership tea

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild will have its annual membership tea on Thursday, Aug. 26 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home.

All current members and those interested in becoming members are invited to attend. Dues are $3. Guild members serve the patients and hospital in several ways. A list of services will be provided in order to sign-up for the duty preferred.

Bellaire author will visit to sign books

Author Janie Lynn Panagopoulos will be at the Charlevoix Book Shop from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday, Aug. 27 to autograph copies of her book Traders in Time.

Panagopoulos is a freelance historian and writer living in Bellaire with her husband and their two sons. Her love of history of the fur trading days on the Great Lakes has led to many of her own adventures including an extended trip in a canoe, much like the one described in her book.

Traders in Time vividly portrays the variety of people involved in the fur trade and brings to life the sights, smells and drama taking place along the shores of Lake Michigan and Port Mackinac in the early 1800s. It is geared toward early readers.

obituaries

Helen W. Willis

Helen W. Willis, 77, of Bay Township, died Aug. 18, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Her funeral was Saturday, Aug. 21, at Stackus Funeral Home in Boyne City. Elder Raymond Ecker officiated with burial in North Bay Township Cemetery.

She was born Jan. 15, 1916, in Glasgow, Scotland, the daughter of James and Marion (Wilson) Brown. In the summer of 1949 she came to the United States and became a U.S. citizen.

On Nov. 6, 1950, she married Renold Willis in Lapeer. He preceded her in death on Feb. 16, 1985.

Mrs. Willis resided in Bay Township most of her life. She enjoyed reading and knitting.

Survivors include one son, James and his wife Jean of Midland; one daughter, Margaret Kuzmik and her husband Sy of Charlevoix; and three grandchildren, Renee, Edward and Jennifer. Mrs. Willis is also survived by several family members still residing in Scotland. The family suggests memorial contributions be made to Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Stackus Funeral Home in Boyne City, 20.

Theodore R. Gravelin

Theodore R. Gravelin was born Nov. 13, 1905 in Charlevoix County. He passed away July 25, 1993 in El Monte, California.

He is survived by his wife, the former Linda Meggison, one son Rex D. Gravelin, 4 grandchildren, 6 great-grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, and one sister Mrs. Elinor O'Neill.

Memorial service was held at the New Life Baptist Church in Rosemead, California.

Hospital sponsors stop smoking class

Successfully quitting smoking and having fun in the process is the goal of the "Freedom from Smoking" program which is sponsored by Charlevoix Area Hospital and the American Lung Association. Weekly sessions beginning at 7 p.m. in the mobile unit meeting room will run from Tuesday, Sept. 21 through Nov. 2 with two sessions during "quit week" Oct. 12 and 14.

Cheryl Jacobs, respiratory therapist and program leader, says, "The program really works because we don't quit 'cold turkey' the first night and people find the support they need in the group to make breaking the habit permanent." The first session is an orientation meeting when the program outline will be explained. "Quit night" will be Oct. 12. In addition, nicotine patches will be made available free of charge at the class, if desired, through the Health Department.

Pre-registration is required. A minimum of 12 registrations must be received in order to hold the class. Cost for the program is $65. For further information, or registration, call Charlevoix Area Hospital at 547-4024.

Gospel concert Thursday

Gospel musician Dallas Holm will appear in concert at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 26 at Charlevoix High School. Admission is $2 at the door.

OF BLESSINGS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

I always thought that television was the greatest way imaginable to watch a sporting event. I mean it is fascinating to take advantage of the camera's eye and focus in on the batter's concentration as he swings at a pitch or to watch the outfielder's hectic race to catch up with a long fly ball. How could you possibly get more out of a game than by intimately seeing the competitive struggle in the proverbial "up close and personal" fashion that the media affords?

My opinion changed drastically when our family got an unexpected opportunity to go to Comiskey Park in Chicago and see the White Sox tangle with the Oakland A's first-hand. The magic begins not long after you park your car.

You and the legion of fans walk together through an underground tunnel to get to the ball park. There are street entertainers along the way hoping you'll throw your change into their guitar case. Souvenir hawkers appeal to you that the tee shirts cost more inside the park. You'd better get yours now. Even the traditional peanuts have a dealer outside the groomed confines.

Walking the ramps up into the stadium builds a certain sense of anticipation. You wonder if the grass is really as green as it seems on the tube. Will you be able to see any of your heroes (Bo Jackson, oh yeah)? You break through the archways and there it is! The field of dreams truly is glorious!

The game itself begins. A fly ball heads your way in the outfield. You strain with the searching player somehow hoping it might end up in your grasp instead of his. Frank Thomas hits a home run. The scoreboard explodes with fireworks and lights. You start getting excited. The seventh inning stretch, even though it's not Harry Caray, finds everybody singing "Take Me Out to the Ball Game." And then came the wave. It began in the upper deck in right field. I didn't even notice it at first. The crowd themselves got into it without any prompting. Suddenly the ball game was secondary as a tide of rolling humanity threw themselves into rocking the ballpark.

We won the game. Notice, I said we. I felt a part of it as we walked back to the car. That's what made the stadium so special. You were not merely a spectator. You were involved. How, you ask, does that preach? Simple. It's one thing to stay at home and watch Robert Schuller, Jerry Falwell, Charles Stanley or any of the other televised worship services that are available on your Sunday viewing schedule. But there is nothing quite like being a part of the experience. You need the contact with your fellow worshippers. You need the strength of their prayers. You need to belong and your friends need you. I hope you will be a part of the church service of your choice this Sunday. You won't regret it.

Natural area preservation effort nears completion

Funds raised to purchase 1,000 feet of river frontage

By L. Scott Swanson

Blue herons waded along the shoreline. Fish dart out from logs and shoot beneath small boats. Turtles sun themselves on logs and frogs perch on lily pads along a river connecting Lake St. Clair and Six Mile Lake. Those herons, fish, turtles and frogs are going to be able to continue doing exactly what they're doing for decades to come as a result of a preservation effort which is drawing to a close. On Sept. 1, a 17-acre natural area on the river which is just outside of Ellsworth is going to be purchased so that it can be protected as a nature preserve.

The property includes 1,000 feet of river frontage and adjoins several other parcels which have undeveloped river frontage. The river is one of the longest stretches of undeveloped frontage in the Elk River Watershed.

JoAnne Beemon of Charlevoix is one of a group of Charlevoix and Antrim County residents who formed a group to raise $17,000 to purchase the natural area. Raising the funds has taken nearly two years. Some of the contributions were large donations and many were small donations. This week the group plans to celebrate the final phase of the campaign.

Once the property is purchased, it will be turned over to the Little Traverse Conservancy and the Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy to be managed as a nature preserve. Early in the campaign, the two conservancies began working with the citizens group providing expertise, serving as a depository for funds and doing the necessary paperwork to establish a preserve.

The 17-acre site is directly across the river from a South Arm Township access site off of Ellsworth Road, just to the east of the Detour Road intersection. The access site provides an excellent location to launch a canoe or small boat. Beemon has taken several groups of people for boat tours along the river as part of the fundraising campaign. Some of the groups have been students. Others have been area garden clubs.

From an ecological standpoint the wetlands plays an important role in keeping the Upper Chain of Lakes clean. From an aesthetic standpoint, the nature preserve is simply a beautiful, serene natural area. Beemon said her favorite times on the river are early in the morning or in the evening when the river is especially tranquil.

A 17-acre natural area on the river between Lake St. Clair and Six Mile Lake is being purchased so that it can be converted into a nature preserve. The property includes 1,000 feet of frontage. At least two blue herons make their home along the stretch of river. They share that home with a wide variety of animal and plant life.

BUSINESS

Charlevoix Country Club golf course opens

By Laurie Lounsbury

In 1987, after years of hard work in the real estate business, Rik Lobenherz decided it was time for him to relax and play some golf. He was surprised and a little disappointed to discover that the Charlevoix area had nothing to offer in the way of a traditional golf country club. As Lobenherz worked on his golf game that year, he also worked on a plan to develop a country club in Charlevoix. "I saw a need for a traditional country club, with a social and recreational facility at the member's disposal," Lobenherz said. Lobenherz started with a purchase of 60 acres by Shanahan field, and now has 540 acres and a country club development well under way. Nine of the eighteen holes are complete and open for play. The course opened last week, and within days tee times were filling up rapidly. The course winds its way around maples, birch and an abundance of water hazards. Charlevoix resident John Yaroch said of the course, "It's a very challenging course but very playable. There's more water on this course than most courses in northern Michigan, and it's more wooded than you'd think. I lose a lot of balls out here." Peter Gluck, a visitor from Flint, was also pleased with his first round of golf. "It was worth it just to climb up to the tenth tee. It's a great view from there," Gluck said. The tenth tee offers a panoramic view of Lake Michigan and the surrounding forests.

Just beyond the tenth hole lies the first phase of Lobenherz's real estate development: 44 residential lots wind around the perimeter of the golf course, each proffering a breathtaking sampler of towering birch and pine.

Lobenherz is now putting in sewer, water, and roads on the south. Continued on page 13

west side of the course, where 30 more building lots are for sale. The foundation is in place for the 10,000 square foot clubhouse, which will seat 200 people. The clubhouse will be available for private parties on a limited basis. "I'm very cognizant of the need for banquet facilities in Charlevoix," Lobenherz said.

When asked what makes the country club golf course desirable, Lobenherz promptly named a couple of reasons. "We had an excellent golf course architect, Jerry Matthews," Lobenherz said.

Matthews designed Timber Ridge in Lansing, Elk Ridge in Atlanta, and Birchwood in Harbor Springs, to name a few. "We have a good variety of terrain," Lobenherz continued. "And for me, probably the best part is its proximity to Charlevoix." The proximity of the country club development to Charlevoix offers another bonus to Charlevoixians. "A development like this creates jobs, puts millions of dollars a year into the economy in construction and wages," Lobenherz said. When the country club is complete, it will employ 50 people. The course is open for play from 8 a.m. until sunset.

Top O' Michigan hosts annual membership meeting

A record crowd of nearly 1,400 attended the Aug. 14 annual membership meeting of the Top O' Michigan Electric Company.

"This has been an excellent turnout," General Manager Tom Hanna said after the 56th annual business meeting. "It has been a great day for our members and their families."

Three directors were re-elected to three-year terms on the nine-member board of the rural electric cooperative.

Dale Farrior of Manistota received 2,913 votes, followed by William Korthase of Boyne City with 2,899 votes, and Dr. H.W. McCaughin of Petoskey with 2,874 votes. In addition, 38 write-in votes were received.

A total of 3,223 ballots were cast, including those received by mail and by proxy.

In addition to the regular business meeting, members were entertained by "Right at Home" columnist Jim Hough and the Epsilon Jass Band, a well-known area band. Members of the Boyne City Rotary barbequed chicken dinners, and drinks and refreshments were provided by the Boyne City Lions Club.

Members each received packages and many were awarded door prizes ranging from electric appliances to $100 gift certificates to be applied to their electric bills.

Lake levels still staying high

In July, precipitation and water supplies to Lakes Superior and Michigan-Huron were above average, while on the lower lakes, Erie and Ontario, these two hydrologic factors were less than average. To date in 1993, precipitation has been 10 percent above average on the entire Great Lakes basin. In comparison to their long-term averages (1900-1992), the July monthly mean water levels of Lakes Superior, Michigan-Huron, St. Clair, Erie and Ontario were 2, 11, 15 and 10 inches respectively above average.

Based upon the above information, shoreline residents on Lakes Michigan-Huron, St. Clair, Erie and Ontario are cautioned to continue to be alert to adverse weather conditions, as these could compound as already high lake level regime. Further information and advice will be provided by the Corps of Engineers should conditions worsen.

The forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes, projects Lake Superior to be near its long-term average for the next six months while Lakes Michigan-Huron St.

Clair and Erie will likely remain above their long-term average levels. Lake Ontario may approach its long-term average in October.

Auditions scheduled for Jordan River musical

Auditions for adult and children actors to cast "Baba Yaga," a musical fairy tale, will take place Thursday, Aug. 26 at East Jordan High School.

Children and adults who are available should report at 3 p.m. Adults not available for afternoon auditions should report at 6 p.m.

Production is scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Sept. 24 and 25, and 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 26, at East Jordan High School auditorium. Actors must be available for rehearsals three to four times a week starting Monday, Aug. 30.

Two adult soloists are needed, one for Grigori, a peddler, and one for Mousekins, who can be played by either a male or female. All roles require singing in the chorus.

The play has thirteen speaking parts, and parts for an additional twelve actors to portray the living set and contribute sound effects to convey the frightening atmosphere of the deep forest where Baba Yaga lives.

"Baba Yaga," based on a Russian fairy tale, revolves around the adventures of Grigori's daughter, Vasa Lisa, a 12-year-old girl who must confront the feared witch at her home in the forest. Written by Kansas playwright Ric Averill, the play is new and unpublished, in keeping with the tradition established by the Jordan River Arts Council and its theatrical arm, Jordan River Players.

Director will be Lénore Bochet, East Jordan playwright whose play, "The Promises and the Wicked Prince," opened the arts council's children's summer theatre festival in July.

were $96,433 and $82,035. The city accepted the ETNA bid.

The construction bid had a wrinkle. LaCayer Excavating was initially the low bidder among four bidders with a bid of $202,310. However, a review of the bid indicated that some costs had been underestimated and would have to be revised upward. An opinion by City Attorney Jim Young indicated that it would be legally inappropriate for the city to work out a correction of the bid errors and adjust the LaCayer bid and that the proper course of action would either be to delete the LaCayer bid or completely rebid the project.

Acting upon Wiesner's recommendation, the city council chose to go with the second lowest bid which was for $236,508 from C.H. Smith Excavating. Rebidding the project, even if done as soon as possible, would have meant delays and additional costs. Another option would have been waiting to rebid the project as a project for the spring of 1994. That would have meant north side residents leaving their faucets dripping again this winter and might or might not have meant higher costs depending on the construction market next spring.

The $301,234 cost of the project is significantly higher than the $166,000 budgeted for the project. In a memo to council members, Wiesner listed several reasons for the difference. He said there was an unfavorable bid market and that the estimate was done several years ago and more work has been added to the project following the original cost estimate.

Funding the project will require a loan of $100,000 from the city motor pool fund to the infrastructure (infrastructure being a big word for streets, sidewalks, water mains etc.) fund.

First ward council member Cheri Hoffman asked if the additional costs will mean that some infrastructure repair projects planned for 1994 will have to be delayed. Wiesner said it's possible that some street repaving projects currently planned for 1994 will have to be pushed back. However, he noted that even if that happens the infrastructure repair program should still be in line with its original 15 year timetable. He also noted that even though the bid on this project came in over budget, several bids on earlier projects have been under budget.

Felter survives recall by four votes 132 - 128

By L. Scott Swanson

Second ward City Council representative Ted Felter survived a recall attempt by a four vote margin Monday. Voters decided to retain Felter by a vote of 132 to 128.

The recall election was the first for the City of Charlevoix in many years. The petition for the recall was taken out by second ward resident Gabe Campbell and claimed that Felter is generally unavailable to discuss problems with constituents. Felter deemed the recall drive "a bunch of crap" and said the real reason for it was that some people were discontented with the firing of four volunteer firemen. Campbell acknowledged that there is discontent over the firings and other issues, but maintains the reason for the recall is that people have been unable to talk to Felter about that discontent. Felter acknowledges that his work sometimes keeps him away from home, but maintains that many other people do not find him to be inaccessible.

In the days leading up to the campaign there was not a great deal of campaigning by either those who were for or against the recall. Any campaigning that was done was quite subdued.

Telephone interviews with both Felter and Campbell prior to the election were also subdued with both men saying the matter was simply something for voters to decide.

Shortly after the polls closed at 8 p.m. Monday evening a small group of about a dozen people including election workers and members of the press gathered at city hall to wait for the ballots to be counted. Neillier Felter nor Campbell were among that group. Felter was working in Newberry and Campbell was at home.

When contacted following the election and told the results, Campbell said matter-of-factly "That's pretty close." Asked how he felt about Felter's continued service on the council, Campbell said, "Evidently that's what the people want. That's fine with me."

Tuesday morning Felter said he was pleased with the results. "I feel good. I'm glad they (the voters) supported me," he said.

As to the four vote margin, Felter said he had no idea how the election would turn out, given that it was a single issue in a single ward on a rainy day. With the recall behind him, Felter said the next step is simply business as usual.

Hayes Township ambulance service remains in question

By L. Scott Swanson

A temporary agreement between the city and Hayes Township which allows the city ambulance to respond to Hayes Township expired Tuesday. However, an agreement is being worked on to allow Hayes Township residents who live closer to Charlevoix than Petoskey to continue to have the Charlevoix ambulance respond to their emergencies. In the meantime, according to Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner, city council members have indicated they want the city ambulance to continue to respond to Hayes Township calls at least until Aug. 7.

In July, after the city and Hayes Township were unable to reach agreement on renewal of the previous ambulance and fire service contract, the two municipalities agreed to a temporary contract for July and August. Meanwhile, the township has signed a two-year contract with Life-Link, a private ambulance service operating out of Petoskey.

The city and Hayes Township quarreled over fire and ambulance protection this past winter. Hayes Township officials wanted rates charged by the city to be reduced. After discussing the matter with city officials, Hayes Township sought bids and ended up signing a contract with Charlevoix Township for fire protection and with Life-Link for ambulance service.

Complicating the ambulance issue is Hayes Township's geographic location. Parts of the township are closer to Petoskey than to Charlevoix, while other parts of the township are closer to Charlevoix than to Petoskey.

Although Life-Link has signed a contract to be the primary ambulance service for Hayes Township, Life-Link supervisor John Lamont and city manager Mike Wiesner have discussed an arrangement which would allow Hayes Township residents living near Charlevoix to continue to be served by the Charlevoix City Ambulance. As of this Monday, Lamont said he and Wiesner are still talking and dotting "I's" and crossing "C's," but he is confident a deal will be reached. As of Monday, Wiesner said he had talked to Lamont, but that he was still waiting to see a proposal in writing so that it could be reviewed. Asked whether he was confident or skeptical as to the chances of reaching an agreement, Wiesner said, "I really don't know."

Although Hayes Township residents currently have two ambulance services, they also have more expensive ambulance bills. In the past, when Hayes Township contracted with the city for fire and ambulance service, Hayes Township residents were charged the same rate as Charlevoix City

Keeping an eye on the weather

By Laurie Lounsbury

Ask anyone on the street about the weather this summer and most will tell you that it was head and shoulders better than last year's summer climates. The sun was shinier, the breezes were balmy, and the downpours diminished by dawn's first light. All told, we seemed to have had a better than average summer. But was it?

Jim Mazur at the waste treatment plant can tell you. He keeps track of those things. Mazur and Sam Creswell are responsible for maintaining the local weather data that is provided to the National Weather Service. Charlevoix's waste treatment plant is an official National Weather Service station.

According to statistics, the summer of '92 was a little drier and a lot colder than this summer. In 1992, Charlevoix had 7.57 inches of rain fall, compared to 9.18 inches of rain this summer, to date. The bulk of this summer's rain had the good sense to do its falling during the wee hours of the morning, providing a soothing background noise for summer sleepers. Most of the days have been sunny, with the exception of Sundays and Thursdays, which got more than their fair share of cloud cover and rain.

For the month of July, 1993, there was only one day with a Fifth Annual Charlevoix Bridge Walk is primed and ready

Charlevoix's Fifth Annual Labor Day Bridge Walk will take place Monday, Sept. 6. The pre-walk strategy conference will begin at 11 a.m. at the Townhouse.

The walk will begin at 12:05 following the traditional aerobic exercise session to limber up for the walk. Lori Brown will be leading the aerobics. She says, "This year it's going to be real aggressive and will take about 30 seconds."

Although other bridge walks brag about the distance of the walk, the Charlevoix walk makes no such boasts. The Charlevoix walk goes by time, and even that is only kept track of on kind of a general basis. Brown estimates the walk takes "about five seconds." That's assuming there's no headwind.

Following the walk participants are invited to either the Bridge Club or Townhouse to make plans for the winter.

Donations will be accepted at the bridge walk to help Brian Roloff. Roloff is a local man who has been diagnosed with a brain tumor and is currently receiving treatment. In past years, bridge walk donations have gone to Heart Start and the Charlevoix County Humane Society.

residents: $100 flat rate, plus $2 per loaded mile, plus $10 for oxygen. The township also paid four-tenths of a mill for fire and ambulance protection. According to township clerk Ethel Knepp, had the contract been renewed this year that would have totaled more than $40,000 and been more than half of the township's total budget.

When the contract was not renewed, the city raised Hayes Township to nonresident rates and raised nonresident rates to: $498 flat rate, plus $5.75 per loaded mile, plus $54 for oxygen.

Life-Link's rates are $498 flat rate plus $5.75 per loaded mile. The township also pays Life-Link a $5,600 stand-by fee.

Lamont said that a comparison of rates between the city and Life-Link isn't really comparing apples to apples because Life-Link is an advanced life support unit. He noted that even if the initial cost were the same, the ultimate out-of-pocket costs would be different because insurance companies offer a greater reimbursement for advanced life support.

Debate over fire and ambulance service in Hayes Township was triggered by increasing property values. For several years the city's charged the township four-tenths of a mill for fire and ambulance protection. The township levies one mill in taxes. A mill is $1 for every $1,000 in state equalized property value (SEV). SEV is half of market value, i.e. what a home would sell for.

Although the city charges four-tenths of a mill and the township levies one mill, the bill for fire and ambulance service from the city would have been in excess of half of the township's tax revenue due to the Headlee Amendment. The Headlee Amendment says that when tax revenue increases faster than inflation due to increasing property values, the unit of government doing the taxing must reduce millage to compensate. This past year, Hayes Township property values increased more than 10 percent. Consequently the township's millage had to be reduced, but the city's charges remained at four-tenths of a mill.

Knepp said if the contract would have stayed at four-tenths of a mill, the township would have been paying more than $40,000. The township asked for separate bids for fire and ambulance protection. Initially, the city submitted a combined bid of approximately $37,000. It broke down the costs to $7,400 for ambulance service, $2,700 for jaws of life service and $26,500 for fire protection, but was contingent upon the township accepting the entire package.

The township accepted a bid of $25,000 for fire protection from Charlevoix Township, then wrote a letter to the city asking the city for a bid on ambulance service only. The city submitted a bid of $11,000 for ambulance service only. The township then reached an agreement with Life-Link.

The loss of the Hayes Township fire contract leaves the city with a projected shortfall of more than $20,000 in the fire and ambulance budget. A portion of that shortfall will be made up by the increased nonresident rates. At the council's July 19 meeting, the council considered a proposal to increase resident rates, but decided not to choosing instead to fund the shortfall out of the contingency budget.

Hayes ambulance changes have side-effects

A side-effect of the recent ambulance changes in Hayes Township has been the exacerbation of a problem faced by ambulance workers and the local medical control authority. The problem is cardiac or trauma patients requesting that the ambulance take them to a hospital other than the one which they are closest to. State regulations require patients in critical condition to be taken to the closest hospital. Once the patient is stabilized, then if the patient still wants to go to a different hospital he can be transferred. If a patient needs special treatment not available at the hospital he is originally taken to, then he will be transferred.

The local medical control authority is set up through Charlevoix Area Hospital. The control authority includes doctors, nurses and administrators who work with area emergency units to control patient care and develop consistency between ambulance units. The Charlevoix medical control authority works with the Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Eastport ambulance and rescue units.

Charlevoix Area Hospital Emergency Department Supervisor Josie Young, R.N., is one of the members of the medical control authority. Medical control authorities were

MEA needs to get realistic about educational reform

As debate in Lansing continues in regard to school finance reform, it becomes more and more apparent that the Michigan Education Association (MEA) is going to be nothing but an obstruction. The MEA represents approximately 123,000 teachers.

Lansing legislators are center stage in the school finance reform debate, but in Charlevoix as in many other communities throughout the state the debate is being watched closely and discussed often. Charlevoix's school system is one with a higher than average tax base and a higher than average per pupil expenditure. Having a higher than average tax base and receiving only a limited amount of state aid makes the Charlevoix school system highly dependent on property taxes. Therefore, reducing property taxes would seem to be a good thing for the average Charlevoix tax payer. On the other hand, having a higher than average per pupil expenditure while the state is talking about evening out per pupil expenditures across the state obviously equates to the Charlevoix school system getting less money to operate with.

The state legislature's recent decision to eliminate, at least temporarily, the use of property taxes for school funding has served as the catalyst for a long overdue debate on just what Michigan people expect of their educational system and how best to go about fulfilling those expectations. You don't have to look long and hard at Michigan's public school system to determine that there's room for improvement and cost control.

Much of the rest of society has seen the need and the benefits of providing a better product in the most cost efficient manner possible. Much of the educational establishment also has recognized the need for change to provide a better product in the most cost efficient manner possible. But not the MEA. A story which ran in the Aug. 25 Detroit Free Press regarding an MEA memo detailing the organization's stance in the school finance reform debate makes that point painfully clear.

According to the article, the memo set forth several points which will guide the MEA in its decisions about what school finance reform plan to endorse. Among those points are: A ban on allowing teachers and other organizations, such as universities, to create charter public schools using public money; no mandatory schools of choice, either public or private and a view that vouchers for private schools are unacceptable; no privatization of public school functions; no change in teacher tenure; no change in the requirement that only certified personnel be allowed to teach.

What the MEA's positions boil down to is a desire to retain a public school monopoly on K-12 education in the state of Michigan, a monopoly which does not serve our children or the rest of our society well. The MEA's position is completely unrealistic. It's time for that organization to wake up and get in touch with the real world of the 1990s. Other labor unions have adapted to the changing needs of American society. Other unions have recognized that along with rights come responsibilities and that life is a competitive endeavor. The MEA and its members need to either wake up and make a realistic contribution to the educational debate while considering broad-based interests or to prepare to simply be ignored as the rest of the world goes forward in spite of them.

The will of the people is present in Charlevoix and throughout Michigan to make meaningful change in our state's educational system. It is unwise for the MEA or any other organization to attempt to obstruct the process.

Letters to the editor

Utilize sex education information resource

Editor,

I have recently been informed of the Charlevoix School Board's decisions concerning Sex Education and although the answer to how to avoid sexual diseases is ultimately to say "no", we all know that there will be a "yes".

I am worried that keeping Planned Parenthood out of the process of educating the students could prove very harmful. Planned Parenthood specializes in educating people on how to prevent sexual diseases from being contracted.

pregnancy from occurring. They also are highly respected for having up-to-date, accurate information concerning these issues. To keep a source of information from the education process is scary and so basically wrong. This is a public school after all where all religions, beliefs, etc. are accepted.

Basically the point is, this is an age where sex is a gamble much like Russian Roulette, yet since I graduated in 1989 there have been people married, divorced, pregnant, etc. all in the last four years who are still in high school. For some reason for the last 2000 years we have been saying no sex until marriage and it still happens. It happens so much that the fastest growing AIDS contractors are straight (heterosexuals) 18-25 years old.

this is what high schoolers face.

We cannot teach high school students that we don't see this. We must teach them how to avoid it, and abstinence is a major part of the solution; but there is more and we cannot deny that.

They need this information in the name of life and death. Do not expect them to ask a teacher, especially one who is not trained.

Quit hauling off Petoskey stones

Editor,

As a native of this beautiful and historic area, I have often enjoyed serene strolls along Lake Michigan's shores. These lovely promenades are highlighted by our local diamond in the rough: The Petoskey Stone. This amazing fossil, native only to our shores, was rightfully chosen as our state stone. Travelers the world over come to see this hardened critter resting on our beaches. However, these tourists are not content to simply observe these stones in their natural habitat. On more than one occasion, I have witnessed an oblivious visitor carting bucketfuls of silent, geometric prisoners away from their rightful home. Their new home becomes a belt buckle, a tie clip, a paper weight, or other similar indignities. More often than not, they become forgotten souvenirs resting on a dusty shelf.

The tragic mass migration of our local gem to the greater Detroit area must be stopped. Just as the wildflower enjoys safety from an adoring eye, so should the Petoskey Stone be protected from coveting hands. This non-renewable treasure belongs on our beaches, where they have rested for thousands of years, so that they may be enjoyed by all.

Sincerely,

L.A.D.S.

Snowmobile club cleans up waste site

Petoskey Snow Mobile Club members and volunteers are in the process of cleaning up a dump site in Hudson Township of Charlevoix County.

The site is situated adjacent to the recently completed connector trail between the Gaylord and East Jordan trail systems and the Chandler Hill trail system that connects them to the Indian River and Harbor Springs trail systems.

Support for this massive clean up effort is being donated by Waste Management of Northern Michigan and Tri-County Excavating of Petoskey, and the Petoskey Snow Mobile Club.

Waste Management is donating the dumpsters, transportation costs and landfill fees for the disposal of waste (which is in excess of five hundred cubic yards) being removed from the dump site.

Tri-County Excavating is donating the excavating equipment and operators needed to extract the waste from the hillside that has been used to illegally deposit trash in the past.

Labor to clean up the dump is being provided by the Snow Mobile Club and local snow mobilers interested in preserving a safe snow mobile trail. The maintenance of the Chandler Hill connector trail is the responsibility of the Petoskey Snow Mobile Club, and this includes the clearing of the dump site.

Should anyone continue to deposit waste at this location, once identified they will be turned over to the authorities for further action.

AFTER A FEW VERY UNCOMFORTABLE ENCOUNTERS WITH A SWARM OF WASPS, THEIR NEST WAS FINALLY DISCOVERED AND REMOVED. NORMALLY THESE HELPFUL INSECTS WOULD BE ALLOWED TO CONTINUE BUILDING THEIR KINGDOM, CHAMBER, BUT UNFORTUNATELY THEY TOOK A LOCATION THAT INTERFERED GREATLY WITH OUR ACTIVITY. THEIR NEST, BUILT INSIDE THE SHEDDING SHED, WAS CONSTRUCTED IN A LARGE PAPER BAG THAT CONTAINED SOME FURNACE FIBERS. SINCE THE NEST WAS REMOVED, ALL ITS INHABITANTS SCATTERED. AN INVESTIGATION OF THEIR BUILDING MATERIAL WAS POSSIBLE. THE QUEEN WASPS START THE NEST BUILDING, COLLECTING MATERIALS FROM FIBERS OF DRY WOOD, PAPER AND WOOD STEMS. ADDING TO THIS IS A MIXTURE OF MUD AND WATER WHICH THEY PRESS INSIDE THEIR BODIES AND REGURGATE DURING THE NEST BUILDING. THIS "SLURRY" HELPS COAGULATE THE WOOD AND PAPER FIBERS AND ALSO PROVIDES A COATING FOR THE TOP OF THE NEST THAT IS SEMI-WATERPROOF. THE STRUCTURE OF THE NEST IS A GEOMETRIC WONDER. SOMETHING WELL WORTH OUR ADMIRATION.

LeCureux - Spegele

Tracey LeCureux & Jason Spegele

Tracey LeCureux and Jason Spegele of Charlevoix are announcing their engagement to be married. The bride-to-be is the daughter of JoAnne and Michael Patrick of Charlevoix and the late Joseph LeCureux.

Her fiancé is the son of Barbara and Howard Spegele of Jacksonville, Florida.

The bride-elect is a 1992 graduate of Charlevoix High School. Her fiancé graduated from Middlebury High School in Florida in 1991 and is on active duty in the United States Coast Guard.

The wedding will take place September 4 at the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix.

Coppens 50th

August 14 marked the 50th Wedding Anniversary of Mae and Jack Coppens of Charlevoix. A party was hosted by their children John, Suzanne, Marianne and Cheryl at the American Legion Hall in Charlevoix, preceded by a special Mass at St. Mary's Church. The celebration was attended by approximately 125 guests who arrived from California, Texas, Florida, Indiana and Michigan. Recorded music of the 1940's era was played as the guests were served a buffet dinner with cake and refreshments. Jack Coppens' sisters, Alice Diggins and Barb Vogel, spoke at the party, sharing their memories of the wedding day 50 years ago. The Coppens' children presented their parents a copy of LIFE magazine printed the month of the wedding and a special card telling what events were current at the time and the price of everyday items. Mae and Jack were surprised with a hand-made peach-colored quilt, showing various panels of pictures, depicting places and events of their 50 years together. The quilt was from their four children, as well as a slide show that shared pictures of friends and family from Mae and Jack's birth to the present.

Alice R. Allan, 73, of Charlevoix, died Aug. 28, 1993, at Northern Michigan Hospital.

Funeral mass will be 10 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 1, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix with the Rev. Thomas Neis officiating.

She was born July 16, 1920, in Detroit, the daughter of Frederick and Bessie Mae (Smith) Henry. She was raised in Detroit.

On Sept. 26, 1937, she married William B. Allan in Berkley. The couple made their home in Detroit and then in Southfield from 1957-75. They lived in Yale, Mich. from 1975-80 and then moved to Charlevoix. Mr. Allan preceded her in death on May 7, 1992.

Mrs. Allan was a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix.

Survivors include one son, Richard W. of Livonia; two daughters, Mrs. Earnie (Barbara) Knight of Ellsworth and Mrs. Armas (Beverly) Wantin of Southfield; seven grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Edna Mae McCann

Edna Mae McCann, 79, of Charlevoix and Beaver Island, died Aug. 25, 1993, at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix.

Her funeral was Saturday, Aug. 28, at Holy Cross Catholic Church on Beaver Island. The Rev. Joseph Scallon, S.J., officiated. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Beaver Island.

She was born May 31, 1914, on Beaver Island; the daughter of William and Alice (Johnston) Belfy. She graduated from Beaver Island High School in 1930 and then attended business college in Detroit. She worked for Commonwealth Brass in Detroit for several years, and returned to St. James, Beaver Island in 1945 where she owned and operated the Beachcomber Bar for a number of years.

She married James McCann and he preceded her in death.

Mrs. McCann moved to Charlevoix in 1968. She was a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix and Holy Cross Catholic Church on Beaver Island.

She is survived by her brother, John Belfy and his wife Audrey of Charlevoix, and several nieces and nephews.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Rev. Majors to speak at church camp

A celebration of the the Charlevoix Church of God Family Camp's 100th anniversary will take place Labor Day weekend at the campgrounds at the intersection of Loeb and Veenstra Roads. The camp began its ministry on Holy Island, but a short time later moved closer to Charlevoix.

Rev. George Majors, who pastored the Charlevoix Community Church of God on Huribut Street in the 1950s and '60s is returning to Charlevoix for the event and will be the weekend's featured speaker. Rev. Majors will speak at the Saturday evening 7:30 p.m. service and at the 11 a.m. Sunday morning service.

The celebration will begin Friday evening as people arrive at the camp. Saturday will see a day filled with events which include a golf outing, softball game, horse shoe tournament, handicrafts, a slide show and praise service. Sunday's events include worship services, a picnic, singing by the Journeyman Quartet and a bonfire.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

It is always a special time of year when folks start harvesting their crops and produce. Signs for sweet corn and fresh peaches have sprung up everywhere. Drive out into the country and many family farms and orchards have their own roadside stands. But there is one very special roadside stand that has attracted my attention for several years now and I don't even know who to thank for it.

To find it, you have to drive south on U.S. 31 past Atwood. It sits all by itself on the right hand side of the road and looks like an old fashioned wagon that someone has built a little roof over. During the season, it is filled every day with tomatoes, corn, and fruit of all varieties. When I drove by it earlier this week, it even had fresh cut flowers available.

What makes this stand so very special and worth the effort to find is that its owners sell everything on the honor system. No one attends the stand. You are asked to leave the suggested price in a container.

The reason I wish I know who to say thank you for it is that in this day and age, a stand selling fruits and vegetables on the honor system is a sign of tremendous faith in people. We need more folks to have confidence in their friends and neighbors like that. And on behalf of those who are customers, we appreciate the trust shown in us.

I know its hard to have faith in people today when they seem to let you down so often. But you can change the world when you believe in people, even if it is just one person at a time. That's how Jesus did it a long time ago. His best work wasn't done in front of big groups. It was done one on one.

There was the woman at the well. She got the surprise of her life on a hot summer's afternoon when Jesus asked her for water. There was a rabbi named Nicodemus who got a graduate education in theology during a garden chat. Out of that visit, the phrase born again first took meaning. How about the big fisherman we know as Peter or the tentmaker Paul? Just like us, not every personal contact was successful. There was a rich young ruler that listened but still walked away unconvinced. But unlike us, Jesus did not give up. He kept on trying.

There is one thing you will discover about having faith in people. You won't be the only one. There are a lot of folks out there giving it their best shot. The more you show faith in others, the more you will find people who will show faith in you. If we don't let a few bad experiences discourage us, we can make this world a better place. Sometimes we have to be satisfied with doing it just one person at a time.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

Lutheran Church begins new Bible classes

September 12 will usher in a new fall schedule of Bible classes for Bethany Lutheran Church. Classes will follow the regular worship service which starts at 9:30 a.m.

Children's Sunday School will begin at 10:45 a.m. and parents who plan to enroll their child should let the teaching staff know so materials will be available.

Adult Bible classes also start at 10:45 a.m. Ron Rybicki will be leading a study called "Slaying on Fire in a Wet-blanket World." This timely subject will deal with the book of Revelation.

A second adult Bible study will also meet at 10:45 a.m. Ron Rybicki will be led by Pastor Well-housen. This will be a "hands-on" study of how to read and understand the Bible.

An evening class Sept. 12 at 7 p.m. will be led by pastor Well-housen and will dwell on what Lutheran Christians believe and teach. Members and guests are invited to participate in this "Enquirer's Class."

The Midweek Bible and Praise Service will begin Sept. 15 at 7 p.m. The study topic will be "A scriptural look at homosexuality." There will be child-care provided during this time. Each evening service will begin with a 15-minute interlude of contemporary music led by guitar.

The young mother's Bible study called M.O.L.D.E.R.S. (Mothers of Little darlings enjoy relaxation sometimes) will begin Thursday, Sept. 16 from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.

ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT FOR CHARLEVOIX MUNICIPAL AIRPORT,
CHARLEVOIX, MI 49720

The Federal Aviation Administration has announced that a Finding of No Significant Impact (FONSI) has been issued for proposed development at Charlevoix Municipal Airport. The Finding was based on an Environmental Assessment for:

Proposed Action

Construction of 450' x 100' runway
Convert/Rehabilitate existing runway to parallel taxiway Runway and taxiway lighting, including REILs and PAPIs
Construct perimeter fencing
Construct automobile parking and entrance road
Realign runway 15/33
Airfield signage

The FONSI and Environmental Assessment are available for public inspection at the following locations:

1. FAA, Great Lakes Region, Airport Division, 2300 East Devon Avenue, Des Plaines, Illinois 60018
2. FAA, Airport District Office, Willow Run Airport, 8820 Beck Road, Belleville, Michigan 48111
3. Michigan Department of Transportation, Michigan Aeronautics Commission, Capital City Airport, Lansing, Michigan 48906
4. City Clerk's Office, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720
5. Charlevoix Municipal Airport, U.S. 31, South, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720
6. Charlevoix Public Library, 109 Clinton Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

The finding indicates that the action is consistent with existing environmental policies and objectives as set forth in the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, in that it will not significantly alter the quality of the environment.

Notice of Public Hearing on Increasing Property Taxes

The Marion Township Board of the Township of Marion will hold a public hearing on a proposed increase of .1206 mills in the operating tax millage rate to be levied in 1993.

The hearing will be held on Tues., Sept. 21, 1993 at 7:30 p.m. at Marion Twp. Hall, Marion Center Rd.

The date and location of the meeting to take action on the proposed additional millage will be announced at this public meeting.

If adopted, the proposed additional millage will increase operating revenues from ad valorem property taxes 5.61% over such revenues generated by levies permitted without holding a hearing. If the proposed additional millage rate is not approved the operating revenue will increase by 2.31% over the preceding year's operating revenue.

The taxing unit publishing this notice, and identified below, has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied from within its authorized millage rate.

Planners decline review of sign ordinance

Business people say they don't need any more government regulations

By L. Scott Swanson

After about two dozen local business owners made it plain that additional government regulations are something they can do without, the city planning commission put to rest a proposal to make Charlevoix's city sign ordinance more restrictive.

The proposal to make the ordinance more restrictive was raised by an ad hoc group of people who had reviewed the city's present sign ordinance in addition to sign ordinances from other communities and then compiled a list of five suggested changes to the Charlevoix ordinance.

"I'm against more government, especially inside my walls,"

Chuck Center, South Pointe Auto, speaking in opposition to reviewing the sign ordinance

Bob Pancoast Rose Cottage Antiques spoke at the Aug. 25 meeting on behalf of the ad hoc group. The five suggested changes called for:

1. Regulating not only external signs, but also internal signs placed for viewing from the outside by the general public;
2. Expanding the definition of a sign so that it would include any visual display or communication used to attract the attention of the public;
3. Further restricting the means of lighting signs so that neon signs and neon strip lighting would be prohibited;
4. Adding a section defining what an internal sign is and including an exemption for small signs.

emption for small signs, saying "Open" or "Vacancy"; 5. Establishing a period of time to allow existing signs to remain in place and then later making them nonconforming and requiring they no longer be used.

Pancoast also asked for a moratorium on exterior neon signs and on interior neon signs within five feet of a window. Jeanine Wallace of Shop of the Gulls spoke in favor of considering a more restrictive ordinance. In regard to neon, she said, "We're not saying eliminate. We're saying investigate."

"We're not saying eliminate. We're saying investigate."

In addition to voicing a general opposition to increased government regulations, business owners specifically and most adamantly objected to a regulation governing what they could do inside the walls of their businesses.

"I'm against more government, especially inside my walls," said Chuck Center of South Pointe Auto.

Mike Westenbroek of Small Engines Unlimited complained that a more restrictive sign ordinance would not help local business people. "It just opens the door to more problems, more government and ultimately drives more business out of town."

Several people also spoke in defense of neon signs and strip lighting, many saying their neon signs are essential to their business.

Bill Supernaw of Cinema III said he doesn't feel there has been a proliferation of neon in recent years and he questioned which specific signs people found objectionable. "What's so ugly out there that somebody's worried about?" he asked. Supernaw also noted that as signs go neon is pretty expensive and it's not all that reliable, but there must be some reason for people using it, presumably its effectiveness.

Norm Lawson of Wishes and Whimsies also spoke in support of neon calling it an art form. "There's a lot of problems in this town. Neon's not one of them," he said.

Several people said they had neon signs which had been in place for decades and hadn't been objected to until recently.

Harold Kruttsch of the Weather-vane Terrace noted that the Weather-vane sign is probably the largest neon sign in the city. "The sign is very important to us. We have to direct the people to our property. We're not right on the highway," Kruttsch explained.

Brian Farrell of The Mapleleaf Motel said he installed neon because he saw the successful results it brought to other businesses. The Mapleleaf Motel is one of the businesses which has neon strip lighting around its eaves. Farrell noted that a lot of his customers like the strip lighting because it makes them feel safer.

Dale Miller of the Ben Franklin store said the issue comes down to "personal opinion" and the individual needs of individual businesses. He said that by telling him how to promote his store, local government would be telling him what to sell and Miller said he totally disagrees with that and feels it is against the American way. Miller questioned where the regulating would end. Would future regulations govern the color of buildings, he asked.

"What's so ugly out there that somebody's worried about?"

Bill Supernaw, Cinema III, questioning the need for a more stringent sign ordinance

David Juillerett, formerly the owner of Juillerett's Restaurant, said the market forces businesses to have appropriate signs. "If they (businesses) don't have a nice sign, they wouldn't be in business very long, so why worry about it?" he asked.

Linda Mason of Linda C. Mason Interior Design spoke in favor of reviewing the sign ordinance. She said she is deeply concerned about the town's appearance and fears that Charlevoix is losing its quaintness.

"If they (businesses) don't have a nice sign, they wouldn't be in business very long, so why worry about it?"

Dave Juillerett, questioning the need for a stricter sign ordinance

Following more than an hour of public comment, the planning commission unanimously voted to leave the city's sign ordinance as it is.

Planning commission member Mel Renaud said he hadn't noticed there was a problem until the issue was brought up. After the issue was brought up, he drove around the community several times and still couldn't see that there is a problem.

Planning commission member Bob Clock said he feels local business managers have shown good restraint and good taste in the signage they've used. "We don't need any new changes in the sign ordinance," he said.

"There's a lot of problems in this town. Neon's not one of them."

Harmony House brings music to downtown Charlevoix

By Laurie Lounsbery

Carl Thom opened a Harmony House store in Detroit back in 1947 with some 78 L.P.'s, a few musical instruments, greeting cards and camera film. After 46 years, he and his family knows what sells - music. Harmony House, still a family owned and operated business, just opened their 36th store in Charlevoix. Shelves are no longer stocked with hard-to-find 78 L.P.s and greeting cards found in the first store. Instead, 10,000 compact discs and 5,000 cassette provide something for every musical taste in Charlevoix. Susan Adams, daughter of Carl Thom and manager of the Charlevoix store said, "I think one of the things that will help us throughout the year is that we do have such a good selection of music."

Adams said that the 1,400 square foot store in Charlevoix is considerably smaller than most of the Harmony Houses, which have an average size of 4,000 to 6,000 square feet. The size hasn't been a hindrance to keeping a well stocked inventory. The Charlevoix store is stocking only the jewel box packaged C.D.'s, which cuts the amount of display space needed and also reduces waste in packaging materials. Because the Charlevoix Harmony House is able to draw on the resources of the many other businesses throughout Michigan, special orders for anything that's available can be filled quickly.

...Harmony House establishes local store

October, looking for a place to raise their children. Adams had worked in the family business for 15 years before she decided to take time off for her family. After settling into Charlevoix, she noticed the absence of a music store. With a little prompting, her brother Bill came up north and did market research on Charlevoix. Adams was brought out of retirement to manage the new Charlevoix store, which opened July 16 to a full crowd. Business has been brisk ever since. "We're sure it's going to work," Adams said, adding, "Our summer (business) has been phenomenal."

Adams attributes the success of the Charlevoix Harmony House to their wide selection of music and the ongoing sales and specials they promote. Harmony House routinely runs coupon specials in the local newspapers. Harmony House is located on Bridge Street in the Market Place.

Official Notice

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Charlevoix Country Board of Commissioners will be holding a public hearing, for the submission of a housing application to the Michigan State Housing Development Authority for funding under the 1993 Michigan Community Development Block Grant Housing Program. The hearing will be held September 8, 1993 at 8:00 p.m. in the Commissioner's Room, at the County Annex Building. The purpose of the hearing is to gain citizen input prior to the submission of the application to institute a County Wide Home Improvement Program. Charlevoix County is applying for a grant in the amount of $175,000.00. This will make housing rehabilitation grants and loans available to low income and moderate income households in Charlevoix County.

high merely in the 60s. In July 1992, 13 days saw a high temperature in the 60s; July of 1993 also brought three days with 90 degree temperatures and 15 days with temps in the 80s, while July of 1992 had only two days in the 80s and none made it to 90 degrees.

Gathering weather data in this era of high technology is remarkably similar to the process used 100 years ago. The weather station has a large, cylindrical object posted outside, which looks quite a bit like a stainless steel ashtray cylinder. Rain falls into the funnel at the top of the cylinder and gathers in an inner cylinder. Mazur and Creswell simply stick a ruler into the cylinder to measure the precipitation. Two thermometers mounted on a pole measure the day's high and low temperatures. Each has a marker which gets pushed by the mercury and remains in place at the high temperature on one and the low temperature on the other.

Measuring snowfall in the winter is somewhat less scientific. Creswell drives around town after a snowfall and looks for a place protected by winds and drifting, then sticks a yardstick into the snow. Charlevoix's valley between the north and south hills seems to be the best spot for measuring snowfall. Creswell and Mazur both work at the waste treatment plant and track the weather on a voluntary basis.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default has occurred in the conditions of a mortgage made by Daniel E. Dunkel and Linda K. Dunkel, husband and wife, mortgagors, to Old Kent Bank of Petoskey, a Michigan banking corporation, mortgagee, dated October 14, 1989, recorded in the Office of Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, on October 31, 1989, in Liber 212, Page 95, and assigned by mortgagee to Old Kent Bank and Trust Company by an assignment dated October 14, 1989 and recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County.

Michigan, on October 31, 1989, in Liber 212, Page 95B. Because of said default, the mortgagee has declared the entire unpaid amount secured by said mortgage due and payable forthwith.

As of the date of this notice, there is claimed to be due for principal, interest at the rate of 10.375% per annum and expenses on said mortgage the sum of $35,097.64. No suit or proceeding in law has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and the statute in such case made and provided, and to pay said amount with interest, as provided in said mortgage, and all legal costs, charges and expenses, including attorney's fees allowed by law, and all taxes and insurance premiums paid by the undersigned before sale, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises at public sale to the highest bidder at the East door of the City Building, 310 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, on Thursday, September 16, 1993, at 10:00 a.m.

The premises covered by said mortgage are situated in the Township of Melrose, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as follows:

Commencing at the intersection of the West and South eighth lines of Section 9, Town 33 North, Range 5 West; thence South 88 deg. 09 min. East along said South eighth line 140 feet, being the point of beginning of this description; thence continuing South 88 deg. 09 min. East along said eighth line 116.79 feet to the Melrose Township School property; thence South along the line common with said school property 211.41 feet to an iron stake at the angle point in the boundary of said school property; thence West along the line common with said school property 114.6 feet to an angle point in the boundary of said school property; thence Northerly 95.25 feet to the Southwesterly corner of the

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, September 1, 1993 - PAGE 17

Mayme P. Scroggie property as designated in her deed recorded in Liber '98, Page 64, Charlevoix County Records; thence continuing Northerly along the last described course and along said Scroggie property 120 feet to the point of beginning; being part of the Southeast quarter of the Southwest Quarter of Section 9, Town 33 North, Range 5 West.

The property is commonly known as 2274 N. State St., Walloon Lake, MI 49796.

Notice is further given that the length of the redemption period will be six months from the date of sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCL 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of sale.

As the 1993 Charlevoix Rayder varsity football team opens its season this Friday night at home against Rogers City, it might do well to attempt to emulate the success of the 1945 team. The 1945 team, coached by Ray Kipke, went undefeated and outscored their opponents 229-0. Charlevoix's 1993 schedule includes three of the same opponents as the 1945 schedule: East Jordan, Boyne City and Harbor Springs. (Photo courtesy of Frank Martin.)

...Medical Control Authority works with area ambulance units only established in recent years and Young feels they've been very beneficial in getting all of the emergency and medical people operating on the same page.

"I think it's helped a lot," Young said. "There's more coordination between ambulance services and the emergency room and between doctors, nurses and emergency personnel. It's brought the relationship between emergency personnel, physicians and nurses closer resulting in better service to the patient."

As far as Life-Link operating out of Hayes Township, Young doesn't see that as creating any problem for medical control. She said the medical control can direct any ambulance working within their area.

Young, perhaps more than almost anyone else, is in a position to evaluate area ambulance departments. And she offers glowing praise.

"I think they're very good," she says. "I think we're lucky to have such good service." She describes the people working on area ambulance departments as "well trained and very caring."

The training level of the Charlevoix City Ambulance unit and the harmonious relationship between the department and the medical control authority more than likely recently saved the life of a 38-year-old downstate woman who was visiting the area.

The Charlevoix Ambulance Department and the medical control authority are involved in a field study (the only one of its kind in the state) in which ambulance personnel are allowed to administer epinephrine to bee sting victims. Just this past month the Charlevoix ambulance responded to a call in which a woman had been stung several times. When the ambulance arrived, the woman was in dire straits, her throat swollen to the point where she could no longer talk. The ambulance attendant administered the epinephrine and by the time the lady got to the hospital she was already showing marked improvement. Medical control authority is also working on a similar program in which ambulance attendants with advanced life support training may administer dextrose to diabetics with low blood sugar.

Taking a look at the workings of local courts

(Editor's note: The following story is the first in a series explaining the workings of local courts.)

By L. Scott Swanson

If you're somebody who works in the justice system or you're a habitual criminal you're likely to have a pretty good idea of how local court systems work, but for the majority of people that's not the case. For most people their understanding of local court systems is somewhat vague and the difference between an arraignment and a preliminary examination is hard to define.

Probate Court Judge Frederick Mulhauser says of probate court, "We're the court where people who need to be protected go. That's the thread that connects things together."

The probate court system is separated into two areas - probate and juvenile court. The probate section deals with things such as estates, guardianships for minors, the developmentally disabled, the infirm, mental commitments, matters involving people who have disappeared, trusts and conservatorships. Juvenile court deals with juveniles and cases of abuse, neglect or delinquency.

The process for the probate division of the court begins when someone petitions the court to do something. For example, a petition could ask for the court to settle an estate, appoint a guardian or appoint someone to a mental institution. Following the petition, there is a hearing before the judge where evidence is presented. Following the hearing the judge will make a decision.

In other courts, the court's involvement normally ends with the judge's decision. That's often not the case in probate court. In almost all cases some type of review period is established where the case comes back before the judge periodically to be monitored.

In the juvenile branch of probate court the court's involvement also continues beyond sentencing.

"We have a whole casework staff," Mulhauser explains. The casework staff develops and oversees treatment programs designed to change the behavior which brought the juvenile into contact with the court.

One of the changes which Mulhauser and the probate staff have emphasized in recent years is treatment within the juveniles home and community. Statistically, the juvenile is likely to return to that environment, consequently it's logical to correct any problems which exist in that environment.

The process for a delinquency case is similar, but not exactly the same as an adult court. It begins when someone brings in paperwork with charges. Mulhauser points out that the court does not initiate action, but responds to an action. He uses an example of a train with pro-

License plates from at least 45 states passed through Charlevoix this summer

Another state's license plate is circled on Allie Manker's list. Allie and her mother, Sultane Hamilton, kept track of all the various license plates passing through town this summer and found plates from 45 states.

By the first of July, Sultane Hamilton and her daughter Allie Manker were suffering from the tourist traffic blues. It seemed like cars from all over the United States were clogging the downtown streets of Charlevoix. That thought prompted them to wonder, just where do all of Charlevoix's tourists come from? The question precipitated a new car game for the mother and daughter team. They equipped the family van with a list of all 50 states in the union, and during each excursion through Charlevoix they would watch for out-of-state license plates and check them off their list as they spotted them. It was a spin on the old license plate game families have played on road trips with small children for years. Within three weeks the two Charlevoix residents found 45 of the 50 states. Even Hawaii? "Not a problem," said Hamilton. She and Allie found two cars with Hawaii plates - on July 29 and August 9. "We were very excited when we found them," Allie said.

Hamilton and Manker found that their new car game not only made the slow passage through town more bearable, it made some excursions downright exciting - and even worth repeating. On one trip down Bridge Street they spotted a parked car with an unusual plate parked across from the movie theater. With traffic building behind them, Hamilton was compelled to drive as quickly as possi-bate court being the caboose. The court doesn't move until something else pulls it into action. For example, in a case of delinquency for the case to get to court there has to be an arrest and charges filed. If one of those things doesn't happen, the court never becomes involved.

...a look at local courts

Once charges are filed the next step is an intake hearing before the court administrator. The intake hearing is much like an arraignment in District Court. The person charged is informed of the charges and their rights and a plea is taken. If the plea is guilty, an appearance before the judge is scheduled. If the plea is not guilty, a trial date is scheduled.

If necessary, the juvenile can be placed in either foster care or a detention center pending trial. Foster care is used for the juvenile's protection. Detention centers are used when the juvenile is considered a possible threat to society. For Charlevoix County, there is a non-secure (in other words no locked doors) detention center in Boyne City.

Once a case goes before the probate judge there are two phases - adjudication and disposition. In adjudication a determination of guilt or innocence is made. The disposition which is the equivalent of sentencing determines a course of treatment to change the juvenile's behavior. Mulhauser said that three main areas are considered in disposition. Those three things are: Restitution to any injured parties; Consequences; and Rehabilitation.

Again, one of the key differences between Probate Court and other courts comes into play. In other courts when you are sentenced as an adult, you are, generally speaking, through with the court system and turned over to a correction system. In probate court the court continues to oversee the case following sentencing and makes sure the treatment program is followed.

As Mulhauser describes it, in juvenile court the juvenile stays with the court system until they've demonstrated that they deserve to get out.

In recent years the probate court system in Michigan has become much more open to the public. Mulhauser sees advantages and disadvantages to that. He notes that in small communities where everybody knows each other that can be counterproductive in family issues. Another change is a movement to limit guardianships and retain more rights for the ward of the court. In other words, if someone for some reason has a problem with one particular aspect of life such as handling money, the court can appoint a guardian to deal with that one aspect of the person's life, but leave other responsibilities out of the guardianship. Mulhauser sees that as a healthy development.

Asked if there were any changes he would like to see, Mulhauser said he would like to see "not so much a change in Probate Court, but a change in the human effort." He said, "We're (the court) at the end of the system. The dollars are much better spent at the beginning."

(Next week's story will look at the District and Circuit Court systems.)

Charlevoix's annual Labor Day Bridge Walk drew a healthy crowd this year. The walk took place shortly after noon, Monday. Thanks to appropriate warm-up exercises, there were no reports of pulled muscles or injuries.

Correction

A story in last week's Courier regarding ambulance service to Hayes Township contained an incorrect date. The story said that the city was going to continue ambulance runs to Hayes Township at least until Aug. 7. The correct date is Sept. 7. The city and LifeLink are currently working on an agreement to continue the service on a long term basis.

EDITH GILBERT

When my grandson told me he was bringing his bride from San Francisco to Charlevoix over Labor Day weekend (arriving Friday and leaving Monday) I thought he was — to be perfectly honest — a little nuts! Such a long trip for such a short visit! Besides the three-hour time difference between California and Michigan, they planned to sit up all night on the plane.

Still Curtis was so anxious to show Sheri Charlevoix — a place where he had spent all his pleasant summers — and nothing would change his mind. During his college years he used to visit me for the whole summer. We spent many placid hours sitting on the front porch talking quietly, while the acrobatic squirrels performed for us on the high wire power line across the street.

But more often I marveled at Curtis's boundless energy. Those were the days he alternated his time between windsurfing in the daytime and bussing at the Parkside Restaurant in the evening and dancing at the Village Inn at night. One summer he was hired to paint the trim on a summer cottage. But when the wind came up, he was off on his sailboard, much to the owner's dismay. Thank heaven, the job was finally completed the day before it was time to return to school. Those were carefree, happy days that bonded him to Northern Michigan forever. And these are some of the memories of people and places he wants to share today with Sheri.

Fortunately, Sheri arrived bright-eyed in time for lunch on Friday. Her mother, father and sister-in-laws were waiting to greet her. Curt gave her a brief tour of the neighborhood on the roller blades that they brought with them, and then a nap was in order until it was time for dinner. Happily the weather was warm and after dinner the family enjoyed visiting on the familiar porch as usual. On Saturday and Sunday Curtis took Sheri cruising on Lake Charlevoix in my "woody" speedboat. They climbed Mount McSaubia. They dined at Tapawingo. They had French cinnamon toast at Juliet's for breakfast. They browsed in the new bookstore on Bridge Street, where they found the little booklet on Charlevoix put out by the Historical Society, and they enjoyed shopping for handsome, warm jackets in the Traverse Bay Woolen Store. They went swimming in Lake Michigan. They tramped through our native woods. Here they met teed wild mushrooms and spotted two young deer bounding lightly through the birches and pine trees. Sheri even attended a wedding in the pretty little Episcopal Church and of course, during this brief two day visit, she met a lot of Curtis's friends.

In retrospect, I couldn't have been more wrong to think it was a mistake to come to Charlevoix from San Francisco for a long weekend! Those two and a half short days were well worth the all night plane ride. And best of all, Sheri loves Charlevoix as much as we do.

As school begins, watch out for school busses

With school now open, both motorists and students need to take extra caution near school buses.

The Pupil Transportation Act of 1990 requires all vehicles to come to a complete stop at least 20 feet from a school bus with overhead red lights flashing. Vehicles may proceed only when the overhead red flashing lights have been turned off.

Upon approaching a school bus with overhead yellow flashing lights, use caution and prepare to stop.

When only yellow hazard lights are flashing, vehicles may proceed with caution past the bus.

It's vital that motorists be aware of the law concerning school buses because children are not always looking out for themselves," said Betty J. Mercer, executive director of the Michigan State Police Office of Highway Safety Planning.

Parents should also be sure their children take extra caution near school buses. At special risk are younger children. In 1990, national statistics showed that 36 percent of bus fatalities involved children aged 5-9.

Safety points for student bus riders to remember include:

— do not cross the road until signaled to do so by the bus driver.

Beaches to be scoured for litter Sept. 18

The Inland Seas Education Association (ISEA) will again act as the Northwest Michigan coordinator for the 1993 "BEACH SWEEP". Whether you are a seasoned Beach Sweeper or a potential one, ISEA and the Shedd Aquarium invites you to take part in the Third Annual "GREAT LAKES BEACH SWEEP" - Saturday, Sept. 18, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Volunteers are needed in Manistee, Benzie, Leelanau, Grand Traverse, Antrim, Wexford and Charlevoix County. Scouts, environmental groups, school children, senior citizens, families, and others who are interested in participating in the Beach Sweep are encouraged to pick a beach and help make the area more beautiful. Volunteers in Benzie County are asked to contact Arin Creech at 929-9719, and in the other areas to contact the ISEA office at 271-3077, or Sally Somers at 938-1305.

The goal of the "BEACH SWEEP" event will be to remove and document debris from the shores of the Great Lakes and determine the type and source of beach litter. This event is being held throughout the entire Great Lakes Region.

Beach Sweep coordinators such as ISEA send the data card to the Center for Marine Conservation, which compiles and analyzes the data from the Beach Sweep and all the other area beach cleanups. The resulting report is used by local, state and federal legislators, conservation groups and some industries and businesses. Included in the years report will be the results of the data that volunteers from Manistee to Charlevoix collected while crawling over the area beaches with garbage bags last September 12th. Local volunteers picked up more than 18,000 pieces of beach debris and covered more than 30 miles of shoreline, with more than 350 pounds of trash removed, including 8,600 cigarette butts or filters that do not decompose very easily. The Beach Sweep is building a database of trash trends in the region (1992's cool summer weather hampered beach users, and less litter was found and removed last fall by the beach cleaners). Information obtained in prior cleanups has already provided the Michigan Department of Natural Resources with data for its Coastal Management Program.

Participants in the Great Lakes Beach Sweep are contributing to the long-term health of Lake Michigan. ISEA volunteers are making strides in removing beach debris that has been on our beaches for a number of years. Much of the non-biodegradable objects that were left years ago on our beaches such as bottle tops, plastic straws, glass bottles and other items have been removed in prior beach cleanups in many areas, and during the 1992 fall and 1993 spring clean-ups, most objects picked up were items that were deposited during the past year.

ISEA will again be providing data cards for participants interested in helping with the "BEACH SWEEP". If anyone is interested in volunteering as a group or as an individual to help make the area beaches a more beautiful place, please contact the ISEA office at 271-3077.

— make sure the bus comes to a full stop before entering or exiting;
— don't go after anything that rolls under or in front of the bus, instead tell the driver about it;

— never walk right in front of the bus, behind the bus or close to the sides or wheels;

— know where the emergency doors and windows are;

— arrive at the bus stop about five minutes early;

— line up when the bus approaches;

— and stand back at least six feet to give the driver room to pull over.

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments involving Charlevoix area people.

Several Charlevoix area residents were among the spring graduates at Central Michigan University. The local graduates were: Kathleen Campbell, Amy Pischner and James Tilton of Charlevoix; Marc Heneveld and Melissa McPherson of Ellsworth; Lauren Shank and Marcia Straubel of East Jordan; and Joann Baker, Karen Milks and Patricia Schmoldt of Boyne City.

Central Michigan University's spring academic honors list includes the following area students: Tobin Holtzman of Charlevoix; Timothy Russell of East Jordan; and Patricia Schmoldt of Boyne City.

Keith Carey of Charlevoix and Enos Bacon of East Jordan are listed on the 1993 Alma College football team roster. The two players were playing against each other in high school football last year. Carey is a receiver on the Alma team while Bacon is an offensive lineman.

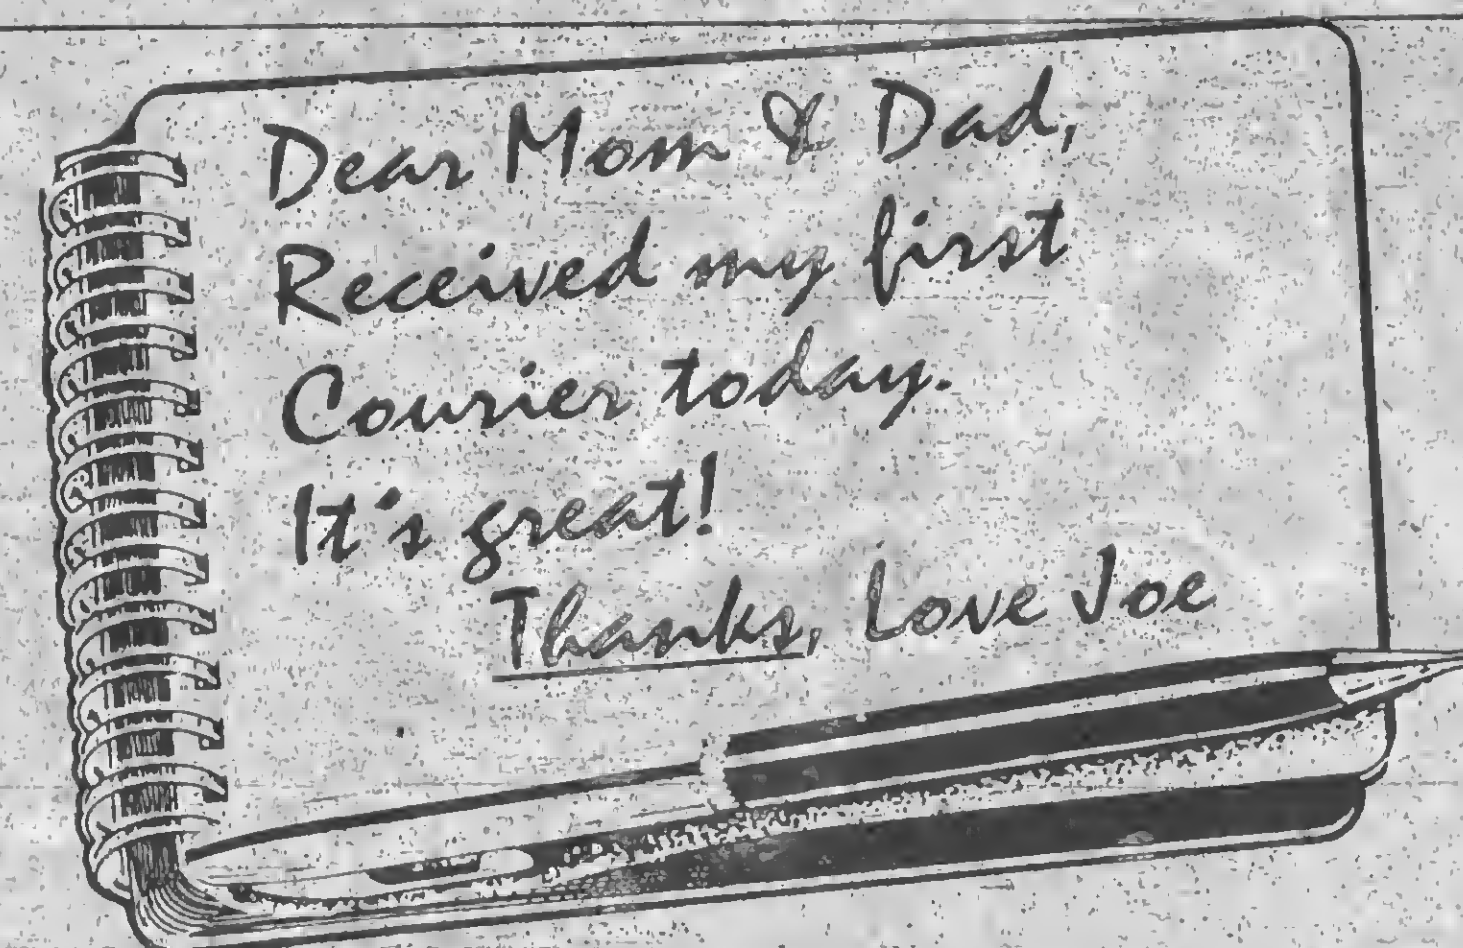

Matthew Dixon of Charlevoix was among the spring graduates of the University of Cincinnati. Dixon received a Master of Science degree.

Chorale group seeks more sweet voices

Who wrote that song? That song was in what movie?

The Northern Michigan Chorale invites new people in the area as well as current and former members who love to sing, to join them Monday, Sept. 13 at 7:15 p.m. in the Petoskey Middle School Band room for the start of their 12th season. The late November concert, which is full of wonderful music from Broadway shows and tunes from Hollywood movies, is all centered around two famous composers and lyricists who shall remain anonymous at this time because of an up-coming audience participation contest. Sally Page, accompanist, along with Tim Wehrmann on bass and Bob Morris, drums, will again provide instrumental back-up for the concert numbers. Christmas music is also planned for the November concert. Gig Stewart has joined the Chorale this year and has arranged many of the concert numbers. He will be share directing with Connie Tanner. The program will also include some Don Large pieces. Looking beyond this program is the Spring concert which takes place the first weekend of May, 1994. A Good Friday community-wide Lenten performance is also tentatively planned.

The only requirement to become a member of the Northern Michigan Chorale is that you love to sing. Previous choral experience and reading of music is, of course, a help, but there are no auditions. Registration begins at 7:15 on Monday, Sept. 13. The fee for the year is $10 and there is a refundable music deposit of $10 for new members, all due by Sept. 27.

For further information, call Connie Tanner at 347-8623.

obituaries

Patricia L. Swanson

Patricia L. Swanson, 51, of Charlevoix, died Sept. 1, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Her funeral was Saturday, Sept. 4, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Dale P. Ostema of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church officiated. Burial will be in Barnard Cemetery, Marion Township.

She was born Aug. 12, 1942, in Onaway, the daughter of Moody A. and Doris (Johnston) Larson. She was raised in Onaway and graduated from Onaway High School.

She was a licensed beautician, and had lived in Atlanta for several years where she worked for Essex Wire. She moved to Charlevoix in 1974 and was employed by Burns Security at Big Rock.

She married Edward Guy Swanson in October 1984 in Newberry. Mrs. Swanson was a member of the National Audubon Society.

Survivors include her husband, Edward Guy Swanson; one daughter, Linda Holmes of Orlando, Fla.; her mother, Mrs. Richard (Doris) Farmer of Charlevoix; father and stepmother Moody and Ruth Larsen of Belleville; one sister, Diane Tucker of Onaway; one brother, James Larsen of Ypsilanti; one half brother, John Larsen of Saline; and several nieces and nephews.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Cancer Fund, Northern Michigan Hospital/Burns Clinic Foundation, 501 W. Mitchell St., Petoskey, Mich. 49770. Envelopes for memorial contributions are also available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Dorothy Marie Custer

Dorothy Marie Custer, 69, of Charlevoix, died Sept. 7, 1993, at her home.

A funeral mass will be held 10 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 9, at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix, with the Rev. Thomas Neis officiating. Interment will be held at St. Joseph's Cemetery in Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. Custer was born Dec. 4, 1923, in Pittsburgh, Pa. the daughter of Lawrence C. and Rose (Haas) Bout. She moved to Columbus as a girl and attended Holy Rosary High School where she graduated in 1942. She graduated from Mt. Carmel Nursing School in Columbus in 1946.

On June 25, 1948, she married Harry R. Custer in Columbus. She worked for Mt. Carmel Hospital and the Leila T. Post in Battle Creek from 1946 to 1954.

The couple also made their home in Colby, Kansas for 11 years and then moved to Charlevoix and have been residents there for the past 26 years.

Mrs. Custer was a member of St. Mary's Church, and was a member of the church choir and served as a lay reader at St. Mary's. She received the Benemerenti Citation bestowed upon her by Pope John XXIII.

She is survived by her husband, Dr. Harry R. Custer of Charlevoix; two sons, Marc J. and his wife, Cheryl, of Kalamazoo; and Michael L. and his wife, Kristie, of Roselle, Ill.; a daughter, Laura Marie Galloway; and her husband David, of New London, N.C.; five grandchildren, Rachel, Emily, Alexandra, Katie and Bryan; three brothers, Lawrence, Gerald and Raymond Bout, all of Columbus, Ohio; and a sister, Constance Fitzsimmons of Florida.

Family suggests memorial contributions be made to Vocations For Priests, care of St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix. Envelopes are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where friends may call from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 8. A rosary will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, Pierre de Charlevoix Council, No. 7172.

There is one other point too. Just because you and I aren't in formal schools anymore, that doesn't mean we stop learning. The finest teacher you could ever ask for in the school of life is God. As the author and the finisher of our faith, He always stands ready to help you discover the sweetness and the fullness of each new day regardless of your age. You can't be the textbook either. As you pray for our kids and their teachers, pray that you will learn the lessons God has in store for you in the year ahead.

(Rev. Bruce Hamilton is pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Beacons of Blessings is provided to the Courier by Hamilton and other members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.)

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

Tuesday was "Back to School Day." Our house sent a junior off to high school and a fifth grader off to the K-5 building. It's hard to believe that they are so big especially when it seems like my school days weren't all that long ago. To me, it has always been the teachers that make or break a child's school career. The good ones can build up self esteem and fan the flames of dreams that will last our kids forever!

Do you remember your first grade teacher? Mrs. Roland will always stick out in my mind for reminding me to "lap your brush, Bruce" when I was painting. She really got me hooked on reading. One look in my office and you will know that books have become a life-long passion.

My fourth grade teacher, Mrs. Larrimore, stirred up the poetry bug in me. One fall long ago, I first penned these famous Hamilton family words, "I hack and hack and hack and hack. My mother says she'll send me back if I don't stop my coughing." The teachers all say I sound like a fog horn in a bay, hack, hack, hack! Needless to say, my poetry has evolved a bit since then.

The leap to Middle School (junior high back in my day) had me falling in love with Mrs. McGill, my algebra teacher. I never did quite get the hang of solving equations but that lady's smile made me believe anything was possible. It was Mrs. Daniels and her team teaching crew that made me see American History from a whole new point of view. They had a library of over 2,000 overhead transparencies in the form of cartoons that made national events come alive in high school. Mr. Sutton was the faculty advisor of the "Eagle Eye," where my column writing first began. It was sports that caught my eye back then.

I could tell you about more teachers like Mr. Jakeway, my college philosophy professor, that had to motivate us at 7 a.m. or Ken Jurkiewicz from CMU who made me look at movies in a whole different way. The point of all this reminiscing is simple. If you know Charlevoix's school system, then you know we are blessed with some very special teachers. They need our prayers and our encouragement as they begin this new year. They are charged with the responsibility of shaping young lives in perhaps the most difficult era in human history. Ask them. They will tell you that it makes a difference when the community supports them.

There is one other point too. Just because you and I aren't in formal schools anymore, that doesn't mean we stop learning. The finest teacher you could ever ask for in the school of life is God. As the author and the finisher of our faith, He always stands ready to help you discover the sweetness and the fullness of each new day regardless of your age. You can't be the textbook either. As you pray for our kids and their teachers, pray that you will learn the lessons God has in store for you in the year ahead.

Bridge Street Bookshop offers thousands of books

By Laurie Lounsbury

If Kit and Dianne Foster were a book, their jacket flap would read like that of a best-selling novel. Kit is a man for all seasons, whose passion for fishing and hunting is rivaled only by his passion for his wife, son, and their new business. The Fosters are the owners of the new Bridge Street Bookshop, a store as diverse and interesting as the couple behind it.

The Fosters are originally from Port Huron, but after spending a lifetime of summers in northwest Michigan, their goal was to have a business in the area. When Dianne was offered a position at the Traverse City Community Hospital as vice president of operations, they knew they were half-way to their goal. A few summers back, Dianne strolled through a charming bookstore in northern Michigan and told Kit, "This is what I want." When retail space opened up in the new Marketplace Mall, they made their move. Now the two own and operate the independent bookstore on Bridge Street, which offers more than 8,000 titles and provides access to 100,000 more.

Kit speaks with enthusiasm for the new endeavor, occasionally interjecting with, "I'm speaking for Dianne. It's really her project." Kit explained that he's in the store every day handling the daily operation, while Dianne works on the weekends and handles the inventory. "She's really a good business person, she has a lot of leadership skills," Kit said of his wife.

Both the Fosters are avid readers, with Dianne's tastes running towards fiction and Kit's tastes firmly planted in hunting and fishing non-fiction works. Kit is particularly pleased with the store's section devoted to sporting classics, which run the gamut from Robert Traver's "Anatomy of a Fisherman" to the contemporary classics by Jerry Dennis, including "A Place On The Water". Both writers hail from northern Michigan and capture the essence of northern Michigan in their own very readable way.

...new book shop offers a wide range of things to read

It is clear that Kit's enthusiasm for the business stems not only from the books but from the readers and purchasers of books. After three months of doing business in Charlevoix, Kit already has a stockpile of warm human interest stories about the customers he's met. One customer from Chicago came into the store and asked about one of the new best sellers. Kit said he hadn't read it yet, but heard it was good. "Let me know how you like it," he told the customer after a few minutes of friendly conversation. One week later, the customer called Kit long distance from Chicago to let him know how he liked it. "In the time we've been open, I feel that we've built a loyal following of nice people," Kit said. "The fun part is the people, just meeting them," he added.

The store is a long term commitment for the Fosters, so with that in mind, they have focused their attention on the year-round residents of Charlevoix. They offer a special discount program for frequent book buyers. They also offer a wide selection of books for young readers. As a father, Kit has an understanding of what children like to read.

Right now he's recommending "Mystery On Loon Lake," a 44 page book for elementary school age children. "It's a fun book, and it's short, so you can get in and out of it quickly," Kit said. He understands the self-esteem building process for kids when they are able to start and finish a book in a reasonable amount of time.

The Bridge Street Bookshop enjoyed a brisk summer business, but Kit is looking forward to a more relaxed pace with the local trade this fall. The store will stay open until 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and until 9 p.m. on Fridays and possibly until 9 p.m. on Saturdays too. "The people in the community need some extended hours so they can go shopping too," Kit said. The people in the community will find the Bridge Street Bookshop a nice place to shop.

Glen's Markets announce expansion

Glen's Markets have announced that their family of supermarkets is growing again. Glen's have successfully negotiated the purchase of the Pick N' Save Supermarket in Cadillac and the Giant Supermarkets in Petoskey, Alpena and Tawas City.

With the purchase of the Pick N' Save in Cadillac, Glen's will close their present location and move across the street into the larger Pick N' Save location. In Alpena where they already have an existing downtown location, Glen's plans to keep this store open and move into the larger Giant location on the south side of the city, giving them two locations in the Alpena area. Petoskey and Tawas city both represent new markets for the company, and both have been sites for consideration by the supermarket group for a few years.

"This is an exciting time for our company," stated Glen A. Catt, President & CEO of Glen's Markets. "Glen's Markets are full of individuals who have started out at entry levels, grown with the company and now are at levels that decide many directions of our operation. With this acquisition, at least 60-80 of our associates will experience promotions of some kind."

This will bring the Glen's Market family to a total of 24 supermarkets servicing Northern and Upper Michigan. C. Glen Catt originally founded the company in 1951, and left the firm in 1988 to pursue a more relaxed life style. Glen's Markets General Offices are located in Gaylord, Michigan.

Stepping back in time for a day at the old Star School, students played games such as Annie-I-Over.

Cassie Gibbard (left) and Danyelle Clark are two of the East Jordan fifth-grade students who will be appearing on the "Michigan Magazine" television show this weekend.

Local people to be seen on TV show

Charlevoix and East Jordan people watching the "Michigan Magazine" public television show this weekend will see some familiar faces. An East Jordan fifth grade class taught by D'Ann Rothenberger of Charlevoix will be featured in one of the program segments. The program featuring Rothenberger and her class will air at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 10 and 9 a.m., Saturday, Sept. 11.

The students will be shown studying at an old country school and re-enacting the lifestyle of a country school. Rothenberger has been taking her fifth grade students on a one-day step back in time for the past three years. The event takes place at the old Star School at the corner of Wurn and Loomis Roads outside of East Jordan. At one time, there were 19 different country schools around East Jordan. Rothenberger had invited Joe Hammond to her class to talk about country schools. Hammond is the former East Jordan police chief and has an interest in history. Hammond suggested to Rothenberger that a visit to a country school might help the students get a better feel for what it was like. Rothenberger said if the students were going to visit a country school, they might as well re-enact a country school day. In another stroke of good fortune, the Star Schoolhouse is now owned by a group of people who are interested in history and who enjoy seeing the building used for historical education.

The students took to the program like ducks to water, choosing parts to play ranging from charter (kindergarten) class students to eighth grade. Students dressed in old fashioned clothes and studied some of the subjects taught in the country schools. They worked on spelling, handwriting, math and gave reports on the state and on history. Eighth grade students studied for the county test which is a test students were required to pass prior to advancing to high school. During recess, the students played games such as Annie-I-Over and dunked for apples.

The Michigan Magazine segment was filmed back in May. Rothenberger only recently found out when the show would be aired.

Rothenberger, who retired this year after more than 30 years in the classroom, said she's a bit anxious prior to the airing of the show. "I'm apprehensive," she said. "I want it (the show's focus) to be the kids and not me."

Ambulance staff is ready for your emergencies

(Editor's note: The following story was written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former mayor and city council member who remains active in a number of civic endeavors.)

By Ralph McRae

An ambulance service is one of those things you hope you never have to use, but just in case you do have to use it, you want to have it prepared and ready to go.

The people of Charlevoix are served by a 22-person ambulance crew operating out of the city fire hall. With someone on call 24 hours a day, the ambulance is always prepared to help people who are injured or seriously ill.

In 1992 the ambulance made 515 runs. As of Aug. 28 of this year they have made 380 runs. About half of the runs are in response to automobile accidents.

The ambulance department is constantly working on providing a quicker response with greater expertise. Of the 22 ambulance workers, 12 are Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs). Becoming an EMT requires 174 hours of basic training on treating victims of accidents or illness. In addition to the EMTs, the ambulance staff also has two EMT specialists, Bob Roloff and Jeff Stevens. A Specialist certification requires 120 hours of training beyond that of EMTs. Four other ambulance volunteers are working toward specialist certification.

Doug Carver is the director of both the fire and ambulance departments. Bob Roloff coordinates the ambulance department and is also one of the city's four full-time firemen. In addition to Carver and Roloff, the other two are Lyle Genett and Bob Lindstrom. One of the four is on duty 24 hours a day, handling all ambulance and fire calls with the assistance of volunteers who are on stand-by and paged for emergencies.

There is quite a bit of overlap between the fire department and ambulance crew. Thirteen of the firemen are also on the ambulance crew. Of the remaining nine members of the ambulance crew, four are women. Two of them, Babs McGigison and Audrey Roloff, are among the more active ambulance staffers - reporting regularly either to drive the ambulance or attend to patients.

The city has two ambulance units, a primary and a back-up. The primary unit is newer and has more space for attending to patients. The back-up is often used for transferring patients between hospitals. If things work out, next year's city budget will permit the purchase of a new ambulance which would bump the present primary unit down to back-up status. Last year, Roloff went to a national ambulance show to review and subsequently recommend equipment.

A third vehicle involved with the ambulance department is the rescue truck, a fire-department-looking vehicle which is operated by firemen. Equipment carried on the truck is often needed at automobile accidents. The truck carries the Jaws of Life which can cut through the roof supports of a car and remove the car's top in a matter of minutes. The truck also carries an acetylene torch for cutting through steel, air cushions for lifting vehicles, a foam nozzle to prevent or suppress gas fires, bright lamps for illuminating a crash scene, and a winch to either help stabilize or move vehicles.

When the station is called for an ambulance run a call on the pager will have three crewmen at the station within two and a half minutes. From there, they can reach almost any place within the city within approximately 90 seconds.

In about half of the cases where CPR is needed, it has already been initiated by someone at the scene prior to the ambulance crew's arrival.

Both of the Charlevoix ambulance units carries a defibrillator which can be used to shock a vibrating heart back into its regular rhythm. The machines also indicate whether or not their use is appropriate and monitor the patient's heart on the way to the hospital. The machines were purchased with funds raised by a local citizen's group. Two items of equipment the ambulance department would like to acquire in the near future are an additional monitor to electronically record patients' vital signs at a cost of $2,000 and an oximeter to check a patient's oxygen level at a cost of $1,200. The ambulance department is also anxiously awaiting the implementation of a 9-1-1 emergency dispatch system. The 9-1-1 system is expected to be especially helpful in rural areas.

After each run, upon returning to the station the vehicle driver reports on the condition of the vehicle. Weekly and monthly checks are also required.

David Skeel (10) escorts Jason VanLoo (21) around the end. Skeel led the Rayders in tackles and rushed for 86 yards. VanLoo had a 25-yard touchdown run. Despite those efforts, the Rayders lost to Rogers City 28-27.

Nick Himebauch (7) wraps up a Rogers City receiver during Charlevoix's season opening game Friday evening. Himebauch intercepted a pass in the second quarter setting up one of four Rayder touchdowns.

Brandon Webb struggles for a few more yards before being pushed out of bounds. Webb, a halfback, gained 60 yards rushing and 106 yards on pass receptions against Rogers City.

Basketball team opens with two losses

Charlevoix's varsity girls' basketball team is still looking for its first win of the season after going 0-2 in their first week of play. In the season opener Aug. 31 at Ellsworth, the Rayders lost 57-45. Charlevoix stayed in the game for the first quarter, but was outscored by six and eight points respectively in the second and third quarters. The Rayders led 12-11 in the first quarter, fell behind 24-19 at the half and trailed 42-29 entering the final quarter. The margin of defeat could have been more, but Ellsworth made only 11 of 30 free throws.

Liz Grunch led Charlevoix's offense with 15 points despite spending several minutes camped out on the bench with foul problems and eventually fouling out of the game. Angie Peterson led Ellsworth with 24 points while Lisa Essenberg added 11.

At home, Thursday, Sept. 2 the Rayders were outgun 87-61 by Cheboygan. Once again the Rayders' downfall occurred in the second and third quarters when they were outscored by a total of 22 points. The first quarter ended with Charlevoix trailing 18-15. By halftime Cheboygan led 43-32. Early in the third quarter, Charlevoix rallied and drew to within five at 45-40, but then Cheboygan went on a scoring binge outscoring the Rayders 26-6 during the rest of the quarter.

Charlevoix's scoring attack was nicely balanced. Liz Grunch and Shannon Rowell each had 10 points while Becky Bragg, Jamie Doan, Liz Kelly and Melissa Anderson each had eight points. Bragg led the team in rebounding with six.

Charlevoix will host Petoskey Sept. 9.

J.V. football team pounds Rogers City

The Rayders scored in the first quarter on a 12-yard run by Mark Boss. In the second quarter Charlevoix scored on two touchdown passes from Jason Smith to Casey Crain, one for three yards and one for five yards. Rory McKeown, who after only one day of practice as a fullback rapidly grew accustomed to the position, ran in a conversion to give the Rayders a 20-0 halftime lead.

In the third quarter Smith passed to Josh Miller for a 20-yard touchdown. The Rayders final touchdown occurred when a snap on a punt went awry and Crain, the punter, went to Play B and tossed a pass to Miller who took it 70 yards for a touchdown. George McClellan kicked the extra point.

Charlevoix will host Boyne City in a junior varsity game Sept. 9.

Rayders lose in final seconds

By L. Scott Swanson

Up until the final 38 seconds of the game, Charlevoix's varsity football team was having a good time Friday night. Then, a Rogers City player caught a touchdown pass to pull the Hurons within a point of the Rayders and the night took a turn for the worse. Seconds later, a Huron player ran in a two-point conversion to give Rogers City its first lead of the evening 28-27 and the Rayders' night was pretty much wrecked.

Charlevoix led for almost the entire game in the season opener at Kipke Field Friday evening, at one time by 15 points. But the Rayders failed to put the Hurons away and Rogers City made the Rayders pay for their mistakes.

In the opening drive of the season the Rayders marched the length of the field and scored on a one-yard drive by quarterback Don Jess with 5:46 left in the first quarter. Fullback David Skeel covered most of the ground in the drive, picking up big chunks of yardage on runs right through the heart of the line.

Charlevoix's defense then stopped Rogers City, but Charlevoix's offense coughed up the ball at the 16 yard line on the first play of their second drive. Two plays later Rogers City scored and the game was tied 7-7.

Late in the second quarter, after a Rayder drive fizzled inside the Rogers City 10 yard line, Rogers City was marching again mixing timely passes with some tough running by a fullback that the Rayders found to be no fun to tackle. The Hurons drive was thwarted when Rayder safety Nick Himebauch yanked a floating pass out of the hands of a Rogers City receiver and returned the interception to the Hurons' 40 yard line.

Charlevoix scored with 19 seconds left in the half on a three-yard run by halfback Brandon Webb. The score was set up by two long passes from Jess to Webb. The first of the passes was thrown slightly behind Webb, but he adjusted as the ball was in the air and reached back and caught the ball with one hand. A two-point conversion pass from Jess to Chris Parr made the halftime score 15-7 in favor of Charlevoix.

Early in the third quarter Charlevoix extended its lead to 22-7 on a 25-yard touchdown run by Jason VanLoo. Actually, although the play was 25 yards from the line of scrimmage, VanLoo carried it slightly less than that. The play was an option play. Jess brought the ball around the right corner and didn't encounter resistance until he was nearly three yards downfield. When he met defensive pressure, he pitched the ball to VanLoo who beat feet for the endzone. The extra point kick went wide left and Charlevoix led 22-7.

Rogers City returned the ensuing kickoff into Rayder territory and quickly took advantage of the good field position with a quick drive capped by a one yard touchdown run. The Hurons kicked the extra point and made the score 21-14.

Early in the fourth quarter Charlevoix had the ball at its own end of the field and a pass to the sideline turned into a disaster. A Huron defender stepped in front of the receiver, intercepted the ball at the 32 yard line and took it in for a touchdown. Rogers City faked a kick and tried for a two-point conversion, but the Rayder defense was alert and stopped the attempt and kept Charlevoix in the lead 21-20.

Following the kick-off the Rayder offense launched another scoring drive. With 3:10 left in the game, Webb scored on an eight-yard run to give Charlevoix a 27-20 lead. A two-point conversion attempt failed.

Following the kick-off, Rogers City again used a combined air and ground attack to march down the field for the winning touchdown.

An attempt by Charlevoix to make one final drive in the last half minute was squelched by another Rogers City interception.

Offensively, Webb had 60 yards rushing and 106 yards receiving. Skeel had 86 yards rushing. Jess was 8 of 12 for 128 yards passing with two interceptions.

Defensively, Skeel had 11 tackles while Keith Parish and Greg Holmes each had six.

This Friday evening Charlevoix will travel to Boyne City.

If sailors racing in the Red Fox Regatta were hoping for good winds this year, they certainly got their wish on Saturday. Winds blowing up to 25 knots made the first leg of the race quick - and exciting. Several smaller boats had more wind than they could handle, with spinnakers and spinnaker lines bursting in the heavy wind. One boat out of Boyne City temporarily lost a crew member when he was blown overboard with the spinnaker. The man overboard was picked up by a power boat that observed the incident, and he was returned safely to his boat.

Crooked Tree schedules new series of arts classes

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, September 8, 1993 - PAGE 17

The Fall Term of 1993 arts classes and music lessons sponsored by Crooked Tree Arts Council begins Monday, Sept. 13. Instruction is offered through the Community Schools of the Arts. Classes are offered in one six-week session, Sept. 13 to Oct. 23, with a make-up week Oct. 25-30. Classes are in Petoskey at the Virginia McCune Arts Center, 461 E. Mitchell St.

Artist Tom Webster offers a class in Figure Drawing on Tuesdays, 7 p.m. - 9 p.m., a Sculpture class on Thursdays, 7 p.m. - 9 p.m., and Oil Painting on Mondays 7 p.m. - 9 p.m. Each of these classes will feature two sections, one for the beginning and one for the intermediate student. Webster has an M.F.A. in sculpture and a B.S. in Art from Western Michigan University. He has worked in Petoskey for several years and is currently an artist with Andre Poincave Woodworkers, Inc. He will also offer a class in Jewelry Making Tuesdays, 5 p.m. - 7 p.m. Students will be encouraged to develop their own style of expression.

Children's Visual Art classes are offered by Instructor Eileen Heck on Thursday, 3:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m., and also Saturdays 9 a.m. - noon for children in grades 1-5.

Instructor David Ous of East Jordan offers Pottery classes for children in grades 2-5 on Mondays 4 p.m. - 6 p.m., and for adults Mondays 7 p.m. - 10 p.m. in the Pottery Studio at the Arts Center.

Artist Catherine Carey offers a class in Watercolor for adults on Wednesday mornings, 10 a.m. - noon. The class is designed for students at all levels of experience. Beginners learn the fundamentals of materials, color mixing and technique; intermediate students use technique to interpret their subject matter in a direction to suit their own personal interests. The class explores color, design, and composition. Materials lists for this class and for other classes are available at the Arts Center.

In dance, instructor Dianna Heinzelman offers a complete series of classes for children and adults, meeting on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays. Heinzelman has 26 years of dance teaching experience and has been with the Arts Center since 1981. Her classes include Movement and Dance, Tots Dance, Ballet, Tap, and Jazz Dance. There is also a Company Class, Boys Dance, Pointe, and Dance Theatre. Auditions are required for selected classes.

Instructor Beth Burke offers a class in Pre-Teen Modeling for grades 3-6 on Thursdays 3:30 p.m. - 4:30 p.m. and Elementary Drama for students in grades 3-6 on Thursday afternoons 4:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.

Private Music Lessons are offered in Piano throughout each week by instructor Charlotte Ross-Lec. Students may register for one half-hour or one hour per week.

Lessons in French Horn, Trumpet and Piano are taught by Janis Ley Monday through Thursday afternoons; in Voice by Fran Tollas on Tuesday and Friday, and instructor Bonietta Benn offers flute lessons on Mondays.

Instructor Janis Ley resumes classes in Kindermusik, with a Beginnings class on Wednesday, 10:30 a.m. - 11:15 a.m.; Kindermusik I on Tuesdays 5:00 p.m. - 6:15 p.m., and Kindermusik II on Tuesdays, 3:30 p.m. - 4:45 p.m. For more information about this class and its required materials, please call Mrs. Ley at 347-7725.

Students may enroll in violin lessons with Maggie Poxson. Poxson also offers three sections of violin class for children on Monday, 10:30 a.m. - 11:30 a.m., 3:30 p.m. - 4:30 p.m., and 4:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.

The Burns Clinic Medical Center, P.C., provides funding for scholarships for community school of the arts students through grade 12. Students may apply for up to 75 percent of tuition costs. To apply for a scholarship, students must visit the Arts Center and complete an application by 5 p.m. Friday, Sept. 10.

Members of the Crooked Tree Arts Council receive a 10 percent discount on the cost of all classes and lessons. Discounts apply to family membership only for students less than 18 years of age. For a printed class schedule and information about registration for all classes, please call or visit the Virginia McCune Arts Center at 347-4337, 461 E. Mitchell St. in Petoskey, Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Arts Council is a member of the national Guild of Community Schools of the Arts.

Hunter Safety class to take place Sept. 11

A Hunter Education Clinic will take place Sept. 11, at the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club, located north of Charlevoix on U.S. 31.

Registration will begin at 8:45 a.m., in the clubhouse. The day's activities will conclude at 4:30 p.m. Registrants are required to have their social security number available at the time of registration.

There will be a lunch break, and registrants are asked to bring a sack lunch.

This clinic will be the only clinic in Charlevoix this fall and is open to all area residents 12-years of age and up, or who will be 12 prior to purchasing a 1993-94 hunting license.

A testing session, for those who complete the Sept. 12 clinic, will be held in Boyne City, Boyne Falls and Charlevoix, with the time and dates to be announced at the Sept. 11 clinic.

Attendance is mandatory at both sessions (clinic and testing) to receive the Hunter Education Certificate.

For additional information call Jim Manson at 547-6862, or Jeff Chanda at 582-7127.

This clinic is conducted with the help of the DNR, and volunteer instructors from the area.

Notice of Public Hearing on Increasing Property Taxes

The Marion Township Board of the Township of Marion will hold a public hearing on a proposed increase of 1206 mills in the operating tax millage rate to be levied in 1993.

The hearing will be held on Tues., Sept. 21, 1993 at 7:30 p.m. at Marion Twp. Hall, Marion Center Rd.

The date and location of the meeting to take action on the proposed additional millage will be announced at this public meeting.

If adopted, the proposed additional millage will increase operating revenues from ad valorem property taxes 5.61% over such revenues generated by levies permitted without holding a hearing. If the proposed additional millage rate is not approved the operating revenue will increase by 2.31% over the preceding year's operating revenue.

The taxing unit publishing this notice, and identified below, has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied from within its authorized millage rate.

The notice is published by:

bie, which didn't allow either Allie or herself time to get a good look at the unusual plate. It took three trips around the block to determine the parked car's state of origin.

On carefree days with time to spare, the two would cruise the airport parking lot, the Beaver Island parking lot, and the city lot behind the central downtown block looking for more out of state visitors.

Hamilton said that half the states had a plethora of people visiting town. States like California? Texas? Virginia? There were a number of them, Allie said, confirming her mother's opinion.

A few states like Indiana confounded them with their wide variety of plate styles and colors. "It seems like Indiana has about ten different types of plates," Hamilton said.

The driving habits of folks from a few particular states made an indelible impression on Hamilton, but in the interest of good tourist relations, she declined to say which states were noted for producing the worst drivers.

Hamilton and Allie concluded their license plate game as of Sept. 1. The states with no apparent visitors to Charlevoix were: West Virginia, North Dakota, Idaho, Montana, and Mississippi.

City and Hayes Township continue ambulance quarrel

By L. Scott Swanson

Officials from the City of Charlevoix, Hayes Township and Life-Link ambulance service are continuing to try to work out an agreement which will allow the city ambulance to serve portions of Hayes Township.

Charlevoix City Council discussed the matter at Sept. 7 and Sept. 13 meetings. Hayes Township's board also discussed the matter at a Sept. 13 meeting. In between board and council meetings, there have been discussions between officials and letters sent back and forth.

The problem arose earlier this year when Hayes Township and the City of Charlevoix could not come to terms on the price the city charged for providing ambulance and fire protection to Hayes Township. When no agreement could be reached, Hayes Township's board contracted with Charlevoix Township to provide fire protection and with Life-Link to provide ambulance protection.

Hayes Township's geographic location complicates the ambulance contract. Life-Link is based in Petoskey and while some portions of Hayes Township are closer to Petoskey than Charlevoix, much of the western half of the township is much closer to Charlevoix.

City and Life-Link officials met July 20 and discussed an agreement which would allow the city to continue providing ambulance service to the western half of Hayes Township. According to city manager Mike Wiesner and mayor Dave Novotny, Life-Link was then supposed to put in writing what had been discussed and get back to the city. The city did not receive a written proposal until Sept. 3 and according to Novotny and Wiesner the written proposal was not what they felt had been agreed to July 20.

"There was a tentative agreement and this thing here isn't anything like the tentative agreement that was put together," Novotny said at the Sept. 7 council meeting.

Among the items the city, township and Life-Link have discussed are the split of a $7,500 stand-by fee paid by the township, where the boundary should be for city and Life-Link service, who should dispatch the ambulances and how the city will be compensated if they respond to someone who has a pre-paid Life-Link insurance plan.

One item of contention all along has been whether or not ambulance reimbursement should be in any way linked to property values. The city has argued that it should and Hayes Township has argued that it should not.

The city has agreed to continue making ambulance runs to Hayes Township until next Monday. Meanwhile the township has asked supervisor Paul Hoadley to get together with city and Life-Link officials and finalize some type of more permanent agreement this week.

Max Novak to be honored

Sept. 18 proclaimed Max Novak Day

Max Novak

Former school teacher, administrator and long-time school board president Max Novak will be honored this Friday evening at halftime of the Charlevoix-Reed City football game and this Saturday at an open house from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. Monday evening the Charlevoix City Council passed a resolution proclaiming Sept. 9, 1993 as Max Novak Day in the City of Charlevoix.

Novak was born in 1911 and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1929. He subsequently received his bachelor's degree from Alma College, a Masters of Arts Degree from the University of Michigan and a Masters of Arts Degree in counseling from Michigan State University.

Novak was a high school athletic coach and junior high teacher and principal at Ellsworth, Pellston and Remus prior to returning to his hometown of Charlevoix in 1941. Novak's teaching career was interrupted in 1943 by World War II when he entered the U.S. Navy and rose to the rank of Lieutenant, Sr. Grade.

Upon completion of his military service, Novak returned to Charlevoix where he taught government, world history, conservation and driver education and also served as Middle School Principle prior to his retirement in 1973. In his retirement, Novak served on the Charlevoix Board of Education from 1973 to 1993.

In 1940, Novak married Frances J. Boer of Jensen. She also taught at Charlevoix High School for many years prior to her retirement and death. The Novaks raised five children: Marilyn, Jeannette, Nancy, Carl and Charles.

In addition to his school and family commitments, Novak has over the years been involved in several other community and educational concerns. He had a part-time insurance agency and sponsored many recreational softball teams. In 1970, he received the Dean R. Davenport Service Award for his volunteer service to the youth of Charlevoix. He was a member of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board for nearly 30 years. Novak is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and local American Legion Post and has been one of the driving forces in the Legion's sponsorship.

Due to the amount of time it takes, not as many people can food as in the past, but Marilyn Finck still cans a variety of fruits and vegetables each harvest season.

Stocking up for the long, cold winter

By L. Scott Swanson

Although you don't see as many people canning as you used to, it's still done. Quart jars sealed with wax or little metal lids still fill shelves in many a local basement. The jars hold fruits, vegetables, jams and jellies assuring that the household will have plenty of good things to eat during the long cold months of winter.

Marilyn Finck of Charlevoix has been canning fruits and vegetables for about 40 years now. Each year she cans about 300 jars of various items for herself and her husband, Larry. Her basement holds jars of pickles, strawberries, currant jelly, tomato juice, pickled beets and brandied peaches among other things.

"I think the only things I don't fuss with are corn and potatoes," she explains.

Finck says the canning is a lot of work, but it's also fun. In addition to that, "it saves money and it tastes a lot better, especially in the winter when you can't get good veggies."

A local farm and friends with gardens provide Finck with the raw material for her annual canning. Her husband works on the consumption end of the operation. "He goes through it like candy," Marilyn says of her husband's appetite for canned fruits and vegetables.

Finck said her introduction to canning occurred when she was a child and helped her mother. Later, as an adult, she helped a friend can some things and subsequently took it up herself. Finck taught herself the finer points of canning and learned by her mistakes. She recalls that the first time she made bread and butter pickles she forgot to drain them and they were so salty that nobody could eat them.

Simply canning food isn't really that complicated. The key is boiling the jars and making sure that everything is properly sterilized and that the jars seal properly. There are a few tricks and tips which Finck has picked up over the years.

"My aunt always told me, don't do tomatoes while it's raining. The humidity's no good for them," Finck notes.

Although canning provides good eating and saves money, many people who used to do it, no longer do. "A lot of people are giving it up because it's so time consuming," Finck explains. "It's not the canning, but the preparation."

In addition to the time canning takes, many people now freeze or dehydrate foods instead of canning them. Finck freezes things such as blueberries, cherries, strawberries, green beans and peas. She says freezing is easier, but she doesn't like the taste of frozen vegetables as well as canned vegetables.

Some suggestions for reforming K-12 education

(Editor's note: Here at the Courier office, we've received a number of things from Lansing and throughout the state regarding reforming K-12 education in Michigan. The accompanying article seemed to be one of the better pieces of information we received. The Mackinac Center is a research center for public policy and is based in Midland.)

Viewpoint on Public Issues
The Mackinac Center
August 2, 1993
By Lawrence W. Reed

In the wake of the Michigan Legislature's surprise move to end all property tax funding of public schools, an historic opportunity looms to reshape education from the ground up.

As never before, now is the time to question basic premises and to muster the courage to champion innovative prescriptions for reform. Those with vested interests in the status quo will howl, but given what's at stake - the future of our state's children - those howls may be a measure of how genuine the reforms are. It is long past time to start thinking of education in a way that most people have never thought of it before.

Fundamentally, it is time to stop behaving as though "the system" were more important than our children, that tinkering endlessly with it or heaving more dollars at it will sooner or later produce better results. Too many in the education establishment think like the man who built the Berlin Wall and governed East Germany for thirty years, Erich Honecker. "We can't take the wall down because somebody might leave," he declared until East Germans summoned the backbone to tear it down for him.

Lansing must wrestle with the finance question and, hopefully, the result will be fairness for the schools and significant net tax cut for Michigan. The other side of the equation - an agenda for choice and quality - deserves at least as much attention. Here is a short list of needed reforms, some of which would require changes to the Michigan Constitution:

• Portability of the state's per pupil contribution. Adopting the principle of "dollars follow the scholars," parents should be allowed to send a child to their public school of choice, within or outside existing district boundaries. Parents would not have to secure the home district's approval before state aid could follow the child to another public school that has the room. This will encourage parental involvement, as well as introduce a healthy element of competition into education.

• Full educational choice. To further enhance accountability, parental involvement, and quality in schools, the state should implement a voucher plan for parents who choose to send their children to private schools. It should assure the independence of private schools while affording parents greater access to them - thereby fostering a genuine market for education where variety and innovation would be the norms, not the exceptions.

• Cost containment in school services. State aid to schools should be contingent upon a genuine effort by each district to accurately determine its operating costs and put up the following for competitive bidding by private contractors: food services, custodial work, transportation, all health benefits including teacher health insurance, and specialized instructional services. A recent Mackinac Center survey of custodial costs per square foot in Lansing area public schools found that the schools were paying as much as five times what private companies are paying for the same work in the same area.

• Substitution of merit for tenure. Teacher tenure rules which hamper a school's ability to manage its work force should be eliminated. Good teachers deserve to work with other good teachers; poor ones are no advantage to their peers or to the children they teach. Existing wrongful discharge laws which govern the private sector would be an adequate replacement.

• Encouragement of teacher entrepreneurship. Those teachers with entrepreneurial savvy should be permitted, even encouraged, to form their own educational instruction service firms and offer their "product" for sale to schools. The state should also make it easier for teachers, parents and/or administrators to form new "charter public schools," such as the very promising one being started this fall by Wayne State University.

• School-based certification. If state certification of teachers guaranteed quality, no one would be talking about a crisis in the quality of education today. Schools should be trusted in a competitive environment to hire quality instructors, even if they don't have a piece of paper from state bureaucracy that says they can teach. Other states, such as New Jersey, have moved to relax certification; Michigan should get in sync with the trend. Too many potentially excellent instruc-

Bette Bohn, known to many Charlevoix people as "The Volleyball Lady" died Sunday at age 72. During the past 30 years, Bohn, a summer resident of Charlevoix, spent countless hours on Depot Beach and played thousands of games of volleyball. She enjoyed the game immensely and was very happy when it became an Olympic sport and surged in popularity. Bohn was featured in a front page article in the Sept. 14, 1988 edition of the Courier. Her obituary appears on page 9 of this week's Courier.

...things school reform should include

tors cannot be hired today, no matter how impressive their resumes are, simply because of antiquated certification regulations.

• Empowerment of local school management. Schools cannot be innovative, competitive and accountable if their management is hamstrung by counterproductive state rules and policies. The Department of Education in Lansing should be downsized, both in personnel and duties. Current law regarding teacher strikes must be enforced, allowing schools to hire striker replacements. The Legislature should seek out and remove other barriers to effective, site-based management of every aspect of running a school. Public schools should be freed of the weight of administrative bureaucracy, a cancer that has grown sharply at a time when student enrollments have remained stagnant or declined.

• In short, it's time to de-monopolize, to open up the educational system to the fresh air of flexibility competition, and free choice. School officials must learn to think like entrepreneurs, not bureaucrats, and to regard parents and students as customers, not captives. Taxpayers must stand up to the corrosive influence of the teacher union leadership and instruct them in no uncertain terms that children are more important than either union dues or union power.

Let's seize the moment, put children first, and fashion an educational system that will make Michigan the envy of the nation.

Budak - Martin

Jane L. Budak and Dennis Anthony Martin were married Saturday, August 14. The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George G. Budak of Clinton Township. The groom is the son of Mary Margaret Vetting of Charlevoix, and Roy C. Martin Sr. of Harrison Township.

A garden ceremony was held at Stafford's Bay View Inn, with the Reverend David L. Hugger performing the double ring rite.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Dr. George Budak.

The bride's sister, Deborah Budak of Charleston, South Carolina, served as maid of honor. Deborah Stern Kiral of Bellevue, Washington was the bridesmaid.

The groom's brother, Roy Martin Jr. of Birmingham acted as best man. James Martin of Charlevoix, also the groom's brother, was the groomsman.

Following the ceremony, a dinner reception was hosted by Dr. and Mrs. George Budak at Stafford's Bay View Inn in Bay View.

A gala cocktail party for all of the wedding guests was hosted by Roy Martin Jr. and Roy Martin Sr. at the Country Club of Boyne in Harbor Springs on Friday, August 13.

For their honeymoon, the newlyweds cruised northern Lake Michigan and Lake Huron on a private yacht.

The groom is a graduate of Michigan State University and Detroit College of Law. He is an attorney with the firm of Kerr, Russell and Weber in Detroit. The bride is a graduate of Michigan State University and Thomas M. Cooley Law School. She is an attorney with the UAW in Detroit.

The newlyweds reside in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Entertaining at the Fair

Shannon Nystrom, 11, of Charlevoix was among the entertainers at this year's Charlevoix-Emmet County Fair. Nystrom sang and danced at the fair's Country Night with the bands Footloose and Rawhide. Last year, Nystrom met Helena Huskison, the lead singer from Footloose, at the fair. The two became friends and Huskison has arranged for Nystrom to sing with Footloose at some of their performances. Earlier this summer Nystrom also performed at the Kalkaska County Fair.

Drapeau - Borgman

Susan Marie Drapeau and Michael James Borgman were married at 2 p.m. July 10 in the Cornerstone Fellowship Church in Petoskey.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Robert and Irene Cooper of Charlevoix. Rev. Louis M. Plotkin officiated the double ring ceremony.

The groom is the son of Sallyann Borgman of Petoskey and Robert and Pam Borgman of Bloomfield Hills.

The bride wore an ivory satin gown with an embroidered high wedding band collar of Schifflie lace with an English net yoke and short puffed sleeves trimmed with hand-beaded medallions. The fitted satin bodice was also trimmed with hand-beaded medallions. The full satin overskirt featured Austrian pickups, a double ruffled wedge-wood lace hemline and a chapel-length train. The bride's veil and pouf of illusion was attached to a headpiece of roses and pearls with pearl sprays. The bride carried a bouquet of pink long-stemmed roses with baby's breath and ivory ribbons.

Debra Montero served as maid of honor. She wore an ivory dress with chiffon accents in a coordinated floral print. Bridesmaids were Debbie Sutton, Shirley Russell, and Julie Murdick. They wore floral print dresses and each carried a single pink long-stemmed rose with baby's breath and ivory ribbons.

Susan & Michael Borgman

Kristina Drapeau, daughter of the bride, served as flower girl.

Eric Borgman, brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Vince Karlskin, Michael Coyne and Ed Stoll.

Prior to the wedding the groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the home of Sallyann Borgman. Following the wedding ceremony, a reception for the couple was given at the home of Sallyann Borgman. After the reception the couple took a wedding trip to the Upper Peninsula.

The groom is a lance corporal in the United States Marine Corps and is currently stationed in Okinawa, Japan.

Looking for former Cherry Queen

Information sought about queen from Charlevoix

Morella Oldham

A video documentary is being produced on the National Cherry Festival by Traverse City based producer Bill Jamerson. He is collecting photo albums and scrapbooks from former cherry queens to help tell the story. Jamerson is searching for Morella Oldham, or her descendants. Oldham was from Charlevoix and was elected queen in July 1933. Her parents were an English couple who had named her after a species of cherry grown in England, the Morella. She delivered a cherry pie to mayors of major cities across the Midwest and was crowned by Senator Arthur Vandenberg. Any information regarding Ms. Oldham's whereabouts or of any immediate relatives, should contact Jamerson at 616-929-1510.

Caregivers Support Group meets Sept. 18

A meeting of the Charlevoix County Caregivers Support Group will take place Saturday, Sept. 18 at 2 p.m. at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Lynette Knapp, R.N., of District Health Department No. 3 will be the speaker. She will offer practical tips for caring for someone in the home, as well as ways to cope emotionally. Anyone who is responsible for the care of a sick or frail person outside the hospital setting is invited. Those who must deal with the stresses of caring for a loved one at home or in a nursing home will find the group informational and enjoyable. The meeting is free of charge. Care for your loved one will be available. Please call Nancy Ellison at 547-4024, if you require this service. Refreshments will be served. Reservations not required.

Alzheimer's support group organizing

Members of the Grandvue Auxiliary met at the facility Sept. 9. Two members of the Grandvue staff, Linda Mansfield and Carol Bansfield reported on the National Alzheimer's Disease Workshop which they recently attended in Chicago. A local Alzheimer's Support Group is being organized. For additional information, phone 536-2286. In other matters the auxiliary voted to send a member of the Grandvue staff to a workshop titled "Training and the Trainer." The workshop will take place in Traverse City. Auxiliary president Helen Deming announced that a fundraising t-shirt sale is now in progress. Proceeds from the sale will help fund a Memorial Window which will be installed in the facility day-room in memory of the late Charlene Sweet, who was an employee at Grandvue for many years. The Auxiliary has also scheduled their annual Grandvue Fall Games Party and Bake Sale for 1 p.m. Oct. 14. Auxiliary members are being asked to bring friends to fill tables for card games and to furnish home-baked items for the sale and bring small door prizes.

Veterans invited to informational meeting

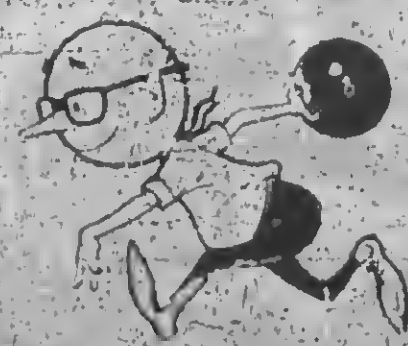

Local VFW Post and Auxiliary members are invited to an instructional meeting from 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 21 at the Charlevoix VFW Post on US 31 North. The meeting will cover various Federal and State veterans' benefits with emphasis on the role of the Posts and Auxiliary Service Officers in assisting veterans and their dependents and survivors.

State Representative to be in Charlevoix

State Rep. Beverly A. Bodem will conduct local office hours Sept. 17 for Charlevoix County constituents. The 106th District lawmaker is available at two locations to discuss issues or solve problems. Bodem's Friday schedule is as follows: 9 a.m. - 10:30 a.m. at the Charlevoix County Courthouse, Charlevoix; 11:30 a.m. - 1 p.m. at the Boyne City Courthouse Annex, 319 N. Lake St., Boyne City. Anyone needing additional information can contact Bodem at 517-373-0833.

Betty A. Bohn

Betty Anne Bohn, 72, of Grayling and Charlevoix died Sept. 12 at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey. Mrs. Bohn was known by many in Charlevoix as "The Volleyball Lady." She spent many summers at Depot Beach playing volleyball with local people. A memorial service is scheduled for 3 p.m., Friday, Sept. 17, at Mount Hope Lutheran Church in Grayling with Rev. Paul Boerger officiating. Mrs. Bohn was born Aug. 29, 1921 in Detroit. She was the daughter of P.W. and Elsie (Werfelmann) Gugel who preceded her in death. She married Martin O. Bohn March 14, 1943 in Fraser.

Mrs. Bohn and her husband moved to Grayling 20 years ago from Detroit. In Grayling she was very active at the Senior Citizen Center as a member of the Songbirds and the Kitchen Band. She especially loved "Dances with Tina" at the center.

Mrs. Bohn spent many summers in Charlevoix where she spent much of her time playing volleyball at Depot Beach.

In addition to her parents, she was preceded in death by her brother, Paul Gugel.

Survivors include: her husband, Martin O. Bohn of Grayling; a daughter, Annicee (and Michael)

Combs of Paradise Valley, Arizona; two sons, Terry W. Bohn of Detroit and Daniel M. (and Shelly) Bohn of Grayling; and three grandchildren, Nicole and Jessica Combs and Charles Bohn.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by Sorenson Funeral Home.

John W. Schroeder

John William Schroeder, 82, of Sun City, Fla. and formerly of Charlevoix died Sept. 2 at the Sun City Center where he lived since 1982.

Schroeder was born in Marcelona. He was a pharmacist and owned and operated Schroeder's Drug Store in Charlevoix for 34 years.

In the Sun City Center he was a member of the United Methodist Church, the Business Mens Club and the Emergency Squad.

Survivors include: his wife of 60 years, Margaret; two daughters, Angela K. Sergeant of Pembroke Pines, Fla. and Janet S. Schroeder of Bloomfield Hills; two grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were handled by Lewers Funeral Home of Ruskin, Fla.

Douglas G. Knudsen

Douglas Glen Knudsen, 79, of Charlevoix and formerly of East Jordan, died Sept. 13, 1993, at Northern Michigan Hospital.

Funeral will be 1 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 15, at Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Robert Kyser of Petoskey will officiate. Burial will be at Sunset Hill Cemetery, East Jordan.

Mr. Knudsen was born Oct. 24, 1913, in Eveline Township, the son of John and Jessie (Hunter) Knudsen. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1934.

In September 1939 he married Thelma Hudkins and she preceded him in death on Nov. 30, 1984. He then married Eunice Bunnell in October 1987.

Mr. Knudsen was an oiler on Great Lakes freighters as a young man. He also worked for the East Jordan Ironworks and then, farmed from 1945-1956. He worked at Will Flow (now Viatic) in Charlevoix from 1956 until 1977, when he retired.

He served as the Eveline Township clerk, was a member of the Rock Elm Grange in Eveline Township, the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club, the Farm Bureau and the Ironton Congregational Church. He enjoyed gardening, fishing, boating available for the upcoming winter. "We're filling to a reasonable capacity," Hodge said.

...storing boats

A relative newcomer to the game, Dry Harbour Marina, said that they will be full to overflowing with boats. "We are definitely full," Casey Curtis of Dry Harbour said.

Bellinger Marina had enough demand for boat storage to build another storage building. With the new building, they won't be full this year, but if they hadn't built the building they would have been overlooked for space.

Irish added another 25,000 square feet of heated boat storage to their facility in 1991. The heated storage has been a boon to large power boat owners. Ward Brothers has gradually expanded their boat storage, keeping even with the demand. "We've been full for three years running," Bernie Ward said.

Withers said that they have eliminated some storage space and acquired other space in a more desirable location. Their storage business this year is ahead of what it was last year. "We're ready, willing, and waiting for boats," Withers said.

With more than 233,000 square feet of inside storage available in the Charlevoix area and an indeterminate amount of outside storage space, all boats needing a place to park for the winter should be able to find one. The cost of storing a boat inside averages $3 a square foot, with the high being $6.75 for heated inside storage and the low at $2.50 for inside cold storage. Some marinas include the cost of removing a boat from the water and hauling it in with their cost. Others charge extra for the moving process.

Outside storage is another option for boat owners, with outside rates running from $1.50 a square foot to $2.40. Shrink wrapping, a method of sealing a boat in plastic to protect it from the elements, makes outside storage more palatable than it used to be. Most of the marinas in the area offer shrink wrapping services.

In a seasonal business like the marina business, boat storage has given marinas a way to expand their season and stabilize their business. "We can have a better facility because of the year round income," Ward said.

Shrink wrapping has become very popular for boats that are stored outside in the winter.

BUSINESS

Boats are rapidly coming ashore

By Laurie Lounsbury

While the salmon are running in hordes from the lakes to their nesting places up river, boats are running in droves from the water to their winter resting places in boat storage. The salmon will have to struggle valiantly to get where they want to be. Boat owners will have an easier time of it, with boat storage being readily available in Charlevoix for the first time in years.

The boat storage business has had its ups and downs during the last ten years. During the early eighties, a good economy prompted everyone to buy a boat whether they wanted one or not. When the summer sun gave way to autumn leaves, boat owners discovered that boats need a place to stay during the long winter months. Boat storage was woefully inadequate for the number of boats in the area.

It didn't take long for marinas to see a need and jump to fill it. Boat storage buildings started to pop up like morel mushrooms. When the economy took a downturn, boats were sold or left the area, leaving boat storage buildings with room to spare.

According to area marina operators, the supply and demand for boat storage has finally leveled off. Doug Bergmann Jr. of Bellinger Marina, Jim Withers of Charlevoix Boat Shop, and Jack Hodge of Irish Marina all say that their boat storage business is doing well, but they do have space.

Recycling popular, but not monetarily reward-

(The following story was written for the Courier by Ralph McRae. McRae is a former mayor and city council member who continues to be active in a number of civic endeavors.)

By Ralph McRae

One aspect of the environmental movement has been an increased interest in recycling. For people in Charlevoix, it's easy to get involved in recycling. One of the easiest ways is through a curbside recycling service provided by Waste Management, Inc.

Waste Management is the same company that hauls trash to the Cedar Ridge landfill.

Through recycling, the company is able to reduce the amount of waste going into the landfill, thereby extending the life of the landfill.

Twice a month Waste Management picks up cartons of recyclables in Charlevoix, Boyne City, Harbor Springs and Petoskey. Soon the recycling program will be expanded to include East Jordan.

Recycling in the '90s is much the same as it was in the '80s with the only major difference being there is much more of it. More than forty states have recycling collection mandates, but only a few of them require that the items picked up for recycling be converted into useable consumer goods.

Waste Management Inc. is a multinational corporation which is the world's largest garbage collector and is this nation's largest collector and processor of recyclable material. The corporation leaves it up to regional managers to determine if a particular service area will have a recycling program and what that program will be.

Don Pizzuro is Waste Management's manager for the northern Michigan area.

Currently Waste Management is providing its curbside pick-up service at a financial loss. To partially offset that loss, the company will soon begin charging $5 a month for recycling pick-up. The recycling service currently involves 500 area homes and utilizes two specially designed trucks. Another truck is used strictly for cardboard. Approximately 400 cubic yards of material is collected each month. The estimated cost of collecting and sorting the recyclables is $175 a ton.

Since there is no recycling processing plant in Charlevoix, material collected by Waste Management for recycling is taken to the Emmet County processing plant. The Emmet County plant charges Waste Management $3.50 a ton for cardboard and $6.50 per ton for other items.

Waste Management has considered setting up its own recycling processing facility at the Cedar Ridge landfill, but so far has not been able to work out an arrangement which is acceptable to both the company and county officials.

District Court is where criminal cases begin

(Editor's note: The following story is the second in a series involving local courts. The first story offered a brief overview of the Probate court process. This story offers a brief overview of the process a criminal case follows in District Court.)

By L. Scott Swanson

The county prosecutor is in an interesting position in that the prosecutor's office deals not just with one of the local courts, but with all three of them. Charlevoix County Prosecutor Richard May took office last year. The Charlevoix County courtroom is currently being remodeled. During remodeling, Charlevoix County Circuit Court cases are being heard in the Petoskey courtroom. This has left May and assistant prosecutor Mary Beth Kur even busier than usual. However, May recently made time for an interview to explain the court process.

Charlevoix County is in the 90th District Court, a court presided over by Judge Harvey C. Varnum. The district court handles civil controversies involving damages of less than $10,000, civil infractions such as traffic violations and misdemeanors which carry potential sentences of less than one year of incarceration. District court also contains a special small claims division in which no attorneys are involved and the judge can decide cases where a maximum of $1,500 is at stake.

Not all district court cases end up before the judge. Many are resolved by the magistrate. The magistrate has the authority to issue complaints and warrants after approval by the prosecutor, set initial bonds and administer informal hearings on civil infractions. For example, most traffic tickets never go beyond the magistrate level. A person who receives a traffic ticket can either send in or drop off the amount of the fine or if they wish to dispute the fine have an informal hearing before the magistrate. If they wish to further contest the case, they can request a formal hearing or a bench trial before the judge.

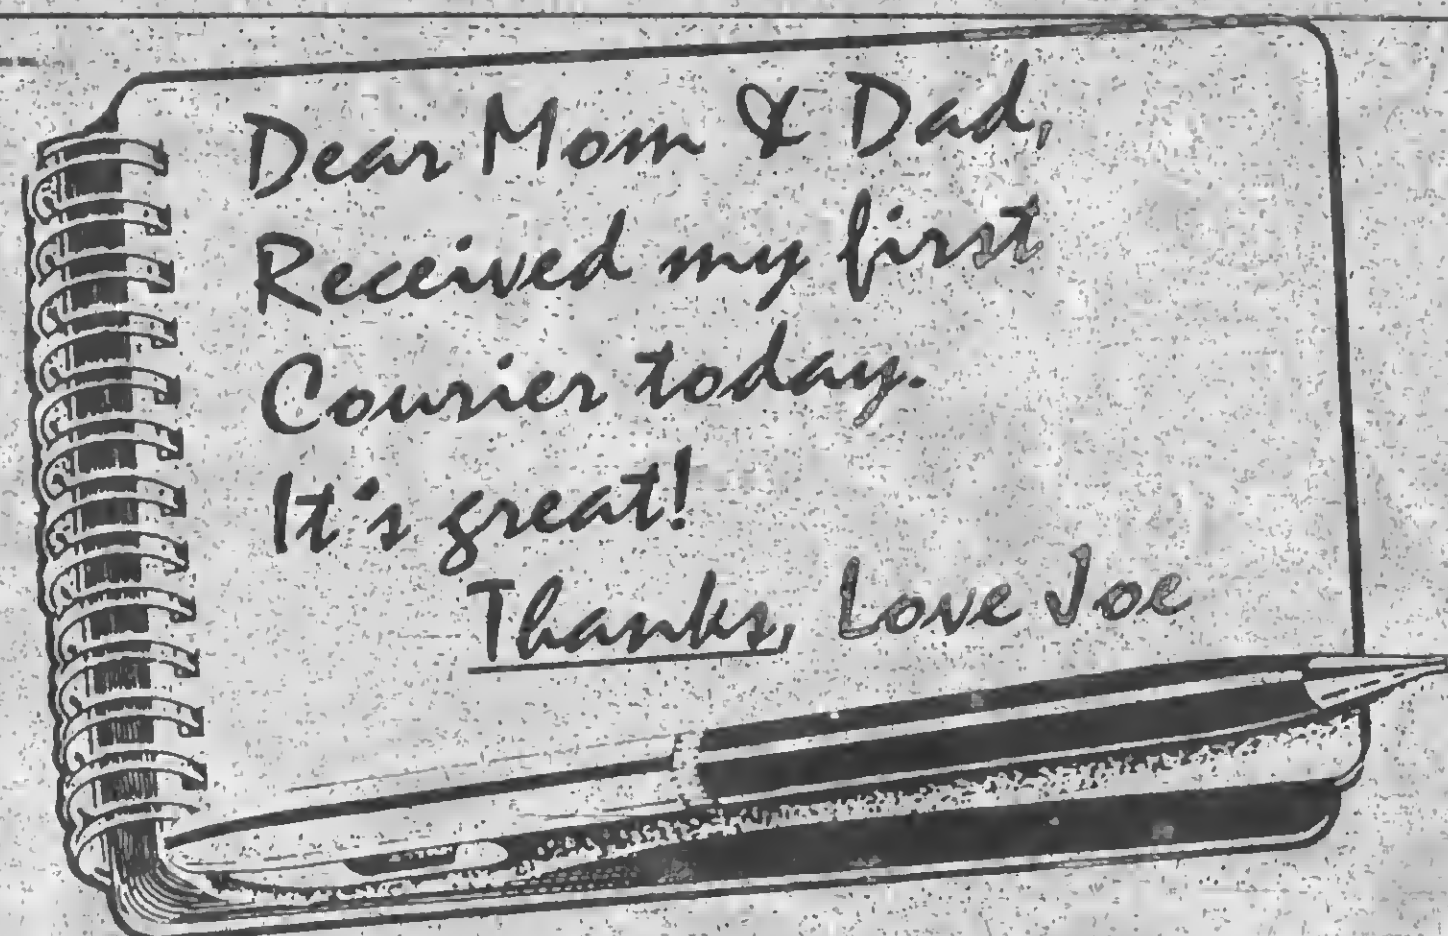

The most common misdemeanor in District Court continues to be operating under the influence of liquor (OUIL). Other frequently seen misdemeanors are reckless driving, assault and battery, retail fraud (shoplifting), driving while license suspended and criminal trespassing.

In an OUIL case, the first step is the arrest and incarceration of the driver. The driver is arrested and held in jail until his or her blood alcohol level drops to a legal level. If the driver is able to post bond, usually $200, he is given an appearance ticket for arraignment and released. The police report is forwarded to the prosecutor's office and a formal complaint is issued.

The arraignment takes place in court before the judge. The person charged is informed of his rights, the charges are explained and the person may plead guilty or not guilty. If the person pleads guilty, he will either be sentenced then or the case will be referred to the probation department for a pre-sentencing report. The presentence report will normally include a substance abuse assessment. If there is a victim in the crime, the victim is entitled to be notified and may file a victim impact statement.

The court will then schedule a sentencing date. On that date, the person will appear before the judge for the imposition of sentencing.

If the person pleads not guilty at the arraignment, the case goes to trial either before the judge or a jury. If the person is found guilty, then the sentencing procedure begins.

Exhibit to feature photos of Canada

Behold our Canada, a dynamic photographic exhibition, will take you across Canada by canoe, kayak, bike and boot. Joanie and Gary McGuffin will show their work at the Virginia M. McCune Arts Center through September 29.

The journey began in 1983 when they launched their canoe at the mouth of the St. Lawrence River. This two-year trek to Beaufort Bay covered 6,000 miles. After reaching the Beaufort Sea town of Tuktoyaktuk, they cycled 7,500 miles over incredibly varied terrain concluding their journey at the ancient Viking settlement of L'Anse-au-Meadows, Newfoundland.

McGuffin's photography not only captures adventure, breathtaking natural beauty and physical triumph, but also a keen appreciation for the value of a clean environment. With captioned photographs, large maps and a display of their equipment, Joanie and Gary share their enthusiasm and respect for the vast, unspoiled regions of their country - Canada.

This informative and exciting exhibition can be viewed in the Exhibition Gallery at the McCune Arts Center, Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The exhibition is open to the public. Admission is free. For further information about this show, call the Crooked Tree Arts Council at 347-4337.

Artist to offer pastel class

Artist Erica Fielder of Mendocino, California, will be in residence at the Virginia McCune Arts Center in Petoskey for a week-long workshop in Vivid Pastel Painting Sept. 27-Oct. 1.

Fielder is an accomplished pastel painter, watercolorist and sculptor. She recently completed a series of interpretive panels and texts for the California State Coastal Conservancy's wetland preservation program, and is now working on a set of interpretive panels for the California Department of Forestry to assist in public education about salmon spawning habits. Students learn to work with soft chalk pastels on a special sanded paper supplied by the instructor. Emphasis is placed on the use of vivid color. The workshop is designed for beginning pastel painters as well as experienced students.

Artists interested may register by calling the Virginia McCune Arts Center at 347-4337. Cost is $125 for four days, as the class does not meet on Wednesday. A materials list is also available by calling the Arts Center. Registration deadline is Friday, Sept. 17.

Basketball team loses in overtime after rallying from 18 points down

By L. Scott Swanson

Despite losing their second straight game of the season, the Charlevoix varsity girls' basketball team wasn't too disappointed when they left the floor last Thursday evening. Although the Rayders lost to Petoskey 50-48 in overtime, they had rallied from 18 points behind in the third period and were playing better as the game progressed.

The first quarter was back and forth. Petoskey jumped out to a 7-2 lead, then Charlevoix scored seven straight points to take a 9-7 lead. Petoskey played an aggressive man-to-man defense, which Charlevoix countered by cutting hard to the basket. Charlevoix applied full-court pressure in an attempt to create turnovers and turn the game into a footrace. Petoskey guard Rachel Brown, a sophomore who at one time went to school in Charlevoix, for the most part nullified the press with her dribbling and passing skills. The first quarter ended with Petoskey up 13-12.

The second quarter remained close until the final minutes when Petoskey took advantage of strong low post offensive play to bump their lead to six at 26-20. In addition to creating scoring, the low post game also got Rayder center Shannon Rowell in foul trouble: Rowell had four fouls in the first half. Jamie Doan had a nice half for the Rayders, moving well without the ball and hitting open shots.

The Rayders got off to a miserable start in the third quarter. Although they were getting some shots in the paint, their shooting was stone cold and they were outscored 12-2 in the opening minutes of the quarter to fall behind 38-22. Late in the quarter Charlevoix finally found some offense. Melissa Anderson, a junior, provided some help off the bench with some good rebounding and interior passing. The quarter ended with Petoskey leading 40-29.

In the fourth quarter, Charlevoix continued its surge scoring two quick baskets to cut the Northern lead to seven at 40-33. With 5:29 left in the game Charlevoix closed

A rally that fell just short

Liz Grunch scored 18 points, including a basket that put Charlevoix ahead with seven seconds left in regulation play. Charlevoix rallied from a big hole late in the game against Petoskey, but ended up losing 50-48 in overtime.

to within five points at 40-35 and Petoskey was hearing footsteps. Angela Buday, a junior guard, was playing well off the bench using her quickness to harass the Northern defense and push the ball upcourt offensively and pick up the game's tempo.

With 34 seconds left in the game and Charlevoix trailing 44-41, Rayder guard Liz Grunch brought the ball down the court, pulled up just outside the three point line and buried a shot. It appeared that Grunch had tied the game, but the referee waved off the basket ruling that Grunch had traveled as she set her feet for the shot.

Twenty-seven seconds later with Petoskey leading 44-43, Grunch struck again; this time hitting a two-point shot to put the Rayders up 45-44. Petoskey quickly brought the ball inbounds to Brown who dribbled up the right side of the court. Just before the half court line, Grunch moved to cut her off. A collision occurred: In a call which could easily have gone either way as a blocking or charging foul, the referee called a blocking foul on Grunch. At the time Brown and

Rayders lose to Boyne City 37-20

Things simply did not go well for Charlevoix's varsity football team Friday evening as the Rayders traveled to Boyne City and were beaten 37-20. The loss marked Charlevoix's first defeat at the hands of Boyne City since 1980.

Charlevoix trailed only 8-6 at the end of the first quarter, but things went seriously awry in the second and third quarters when the Rayders extended their lead to 37-12.

The Rayders' only lead of the game came when they scored the game's first touchdown in the opening minutes. Quarterback Don Jess and halfback Jason VanLoon combined for a 21-yard touchdown pass. The drive was set up by a long return of the opening kickoff by Jerry Duhart.

Boyne City made the lead short-lived when they came back with a 65-yard scoring drive and a two-point conversion for an 8-6 lead. The 65-yard scoring drive was followed by a 75-yard scoring drive which was aided and abetted by one of several personal foul penalties the Rayders were whistled for during the course of the evening. The conversion made the score 16-8 in favor of Boyne City.

Charlevoix answered that drive with one of their own, finally scoring on a 5-yard pass from Jess to fullback David Skeel. Once again the Rayder conversion attempt failed and Boyne City led 16-12.

Boyne City then scored on a short, 45-yard drive prior to halftime and again successfully completed a conversion attempt to go into halftime leading 24-12.

The game was for all intents and purposes put out of reach in the third quarter when Boyne City scored on a 58-yard pass interception and on a 54-yard touchdown run to build a 37-12 lead.

In the final quarter, Charlevoix scored on a one-yard sneak by Jess and two-point conversion pass from Jess to Duhart, but it was too little too late.

In terms of individual statistics for the Rayders, offensively, Brandon Webb carried the ball 14 times for 96 yards while Jess completed 8 of 12 passes for 109 yards and threw two interceptions. Defensively, Nick Himebauch and Keith Parrish each had 10 tackles while Greg Holmes contributed eight.

The win raised Boyne City's season record to 2-0 while Charlevoix fell to 0-2. This Friday evening Charlevoix will host Reed City.

Cross Country team opens with a win

Led by a second place finish by Mike Bush, Charlevoix's boys' cross country team edged Suttons Bay to take first place in the second annual Pete Spieles Re-Pete Cross Country Invitational Saturday. The event is a European style race run on farmland south of Charlevoix on a course which contains both natural and man-made obstacles. This year's race drew 13 schools and about 200 high school runners and 40 other runners. The course is 5 kilometers in length. Rather than being scored by adding the places of top runners, team scores are computed by adding the times of the top runners. Charlevoix's boys' team time of 93:50 was four seconds better than Suttons Bay. In the girls' race, Gaylord placed first while Charlevoix finished sixth. Individually for the boys' Bush placed second in 17:39; five seconds behind race winner, Brock McNeil of Suttons Bay.

Other Charlevoix boys' results were as follows: 4-Matt Dickinson, 18:00; 9-Chris LeButt, 18:44; 16-Josh Dhascleer, 19:42; 18-Paul Henne, 19:47; 21-Scott Campbell, 20:08; 26-James Conlan, 20:30; 32-Zach Pajtas, 20:59; 33-Drew Laucher, 21:00; 44-Steve Crook, 22:55.

Rayder girls' varsity results were as follows: 6-Becca Chamberlain, Grunch each had four fouls. The blocking foul put Grunch out of the game and Brown on the line shooting one-and-one. Brown hit the first free throw and missed the second to send the game into overtime.

In overtime, Petoskey outscored Charlevoix 5-3 to take the win.

Individually for Charlevoix, Grunch, despite being closely defended all night, led the team in scoring with 18 points. Doan added nine points while Becky Bragg and sophomore Liz Kelly each had eight. Bragg was only one basket away from a statistical double-double as she also had 10 rebounds.

Petoskey also won the junior varsity game 50-29. The game was called in the final minutes when lightning temporarily knocked out the power to the gym and turned the lights off.

In the freshman game, Petoskey took a 46-23 win despite eight points from Charlevoix's Chrisc Ward.

Charlevoix's next game will be Thursday, Sept. 16 at Traverse City-St. Francis.

Horton Creek to be treated for sea lamprey

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, September 15, 1993 - PAGE 17

The continuing battle against the sea lamprey by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Service) will soon come to Horton Creek in Charlevoix County.

Sea lamprey control consists of eliminating lamprey larvae in streams flowing into the Great Lakes, thereby protecting the Lakes' fish populations.

A Service crew of fishery biologists and technicians with experience in sea lamprey control from Ludington, Michigan will arrive on Monday Sept. 13 to set up mobile office and laboratory facilities at the Brown Trout Motel in Boyne Falls.

Initial work will include stream velocity and volume measurements, water chemistries, bioassays, and placement of control equipment, according to Dennis Lavis, Station Supervisor at the Service's Ludington Biological Station. A critical study of stream flow patterns in tributaries and the mainstem is done with rhodamine-WT dye or a fluorescent dye. These materials impart either a red hue (Rhodamine WT) or green (fluorescein). The dyes are nontoxic to people, fish and wildlife.

This initial information is then used to determine the amount of lampricide (TFM) that will be applied to the stream during the treatment. The treatment will be conducted on Thursday, Sept. 16.

The lampricide selectively destroys lamprey larvae, but is nontoxic to humans, pets, livestock, and other animals. A small number of resident fish may die during the treatment, for example, fish weakened through spawning or environmental stress, as well as other fish that are weakened by disease or are unhealthy due to pollution. Chinook and coho salmon in advanced stages of spawning are especially sensitive to the lampricides. Resident populations of stonecats and trout perch also are very to the chemical. In addition, any aquatic organisms, such as bait minnows, that are confined artificially in the stream water may be susceptible to the lampricide because of crowding and handling. Those who keep such organisms should consider using an alternative supply of water during the treatment.

State fish and wildlife agencies are contacted prior to TFM treatments as are municipalities that use the streams as sources of potable water. Agricultural irrigators will also be notified and asked to suspend irrigation for a 24-hour period during and immediately after treatment. Some garden plants may be damaged or destroyed by TFM and should not be irrigated with water containing TFM. Plants in the cucumber family are especially sensitive.

The sea lamprey invaded Lake Ontario in the early 1800's, subsequently entering Lake Erie, via the Welland Canal, around 1921. Within a few decades, the lampreys infiltrated the Upper Great Lakes and severely reduced the number of lake trout and other fish species.

Before development of the lampricide and the control program, sea lampreys had virtually eliminated lake trout populations in the Great Lakes. The control program, initiated in 1956 by the Great Lakes Fishery Commission, was begun in tributaries of Lake Superior in 1958. Lake Michigan streams were first treated in 1960, followed by treatment of Lake Huron in 1961 and Lake Ontario in 1971. The treatment of Lake Erie streams did not begin until 1986.

Repeated treatment of tributaries to the Great Lakes are necessary for control because of the difficulty of eliminating adult lampreys in the Great Lakes. Adult lampreys enter the streams to spawn, after which they die. The larvae they produce live in the stream bottom for several years. Later, as adults, they move into the lakes to prey on fish. The control program is designed to remove the larvae in the streams before they can grow into the adult parasitic form.

Since the advent of lamprey control, lake trout populations have increased and are showing promise of becoming self-sustaining, through natural reproduction, according to the Fish and Wildlife Service. Most of the lake trout planted in the Great Lakes are produced in Service hatcheries.

Sea lamprey control also benefits brook, brown and rainbow trout, and coho and chinook salmon planted in the lakes by the Department of Natural Resources in states and provinces bordering the Great Lakes.

The Service emphasized that the fishery now enjoyed in the Great Lakes is dependent on sea lamprey control and would soon decline or disappear if the control program were discontinued.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default has occurred in the conditions of a mortgage made by Daniel E. Dunkel and Linda K. Dunkel, husband and wife, mortgagors, to Old Kent Bank of Petoskey, a Michigan banking corporation, mortgagee, dated October 14, 1989, recorded in the Office of Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, on October 31, 1989, in Liber 212, Page 95, and assigned by mortgagee to Old Kent Bank and Trust Company by an assignment dated October 14, 1989 and recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan, on October 31, 1989, in Liber 212, Page 958. Because of said default, the mortgagee has declared the entire unpaid amount secured by said mortgage due and payable forthwith.

As of the date of this notice, there is claimed to be due for principal, interest at the rate of 10.375% per annum and expenses on said mortgage the sum of $35,097.64. No suit or proceeding in law has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and the statute in such case made and provided, and to pay said amount with interest, as provided in said mortgage, and all legal costs, charges and expenses, including attorneys' fees allowed by law, and all taxes and insurance premiums paid by the undersigned before sale, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises at public sale to the highest bidder at the East door of the City Building, 310 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, on Thursday, September 16, 1993, at 10:00 a.m.

The premises covered by said mortgage are situated in the Township of Malrose, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as follows:

Commencing at the intersection of the West and South eighth lines of Section 9, Town 33 North, Range 5 West; thence South 88 deg. 09 min. East along said South eighth line 140. feet, being the point of beginning of this description; thence continuing South 88 deg. 09 min. East along said eighth line 116.79 feet to the Melrose Township School property; thence South along the line common with said school property 211.41 feet to an iron stake at the angle point in the boundary of said school property; thence West along the line common with said school property 111.5 feet to an angle point in the boundary of said school property; thence North 95.25 feet to the Southwest corner of the Mayne P. Scroggie property as designated in her deed recorded in Liber 98, Page 64, Charlevoix County Records; thence continuing Northerly along the last described course and along said Scroggie property 120 feet to the point of beginning; being part of the Southeast quarter of the Southwest Quarter of Section 9, Town 33 North, Range 5 West.

The property is commonly known as 2274 N. State St., Walloon Lake, MI 49796.

Notice is further given that the length of the redemption period will be six months from the date of sale, unless determined, abandoned in accordance with MCL 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of sale.

Lake Michigan water levels remain high

August saw a continuation of the recent trend in precipitation on most of the Great Lakes. For Lakes Michigan-Huron, precipitation was again above average, while that on the lakes Erie and Ontario basins continued below average. On the Lake Superior basin, slightly below average precipitation in August contrasted with the above average precipitation of recent months. For the year to date, precipitation is near average on all the Great Lakes basins. In August, the net supply of water to the lake was above average on Lakes Superior and Michigan-Huron, and below average on Lakes Erie, and Ontario.

In comparison to their long-term (1900-1992) averages, the August monthly mean water levels to Lakes Superior, Michigan-Huron, St. Clair, Erie, and Ontario were 3, 10, 15, 13 and 5 inches, respectively, above average. Shoreline residents on Lakes St. Clair and Erie, and to a lesser extent Lakes Michigan-Huron, are cautioned to continue to be alert to adverse weather conditions, as these could compound an already high lake level situation. Further information and advice will be provided by the Corps of Engineers should conditions worsen.

A more detailed summary of Lakes Michigan-Huron water levels follows. All elevations are referenced to International Great Lakes Datum 1985.

Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of August were at elevation 580.31 feet (176.88 meters) above the mean water level at Rimouski, Quebec, or about 34 inches (88 cm.) above Chart Datum. The August monthly mean level of 580.31 feet (176.88 meters) was about 10 inches (25 cm.) above the long-term average for August. The lakes were about 21 inches (53 cm.) below the all-time high August monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1986. The forecast shows that the September monthly mean level of Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about 1 inch (3 cm.) below what it was at Mid-August. The lakes are expected to continue their seasonal decline into February. The water level in Mid-February 1994 is expected to be about 11 inches (28 cm.) above the long-term average for that month, or about 4 inches (11 cm.) above what it was at the same time in 1993.

Section 2. Purpose and Interpretation. Recites the purpose as adopting regulations and procedures governing basic cable service regulation consistent with the Cable Act and FCC rules.

Section 3. Rate Regulations Promulgated by FCC. Provides for compliance with all FCC rules regarding the regulation of basic cable television service.

Section 4. Filing; Additional Information; Burden of Proof. Provides that the cable operator must submit its schedule of rates for the basic service tier and associated equipment or proposed increase in such rate in accordance with the Act and the FCC rules; authorizes the adoption of rules and regulations prescribing information, data, and calculations which must be included as part of the cable operator's filing; authorizes an appropriate official to obtain additional information from the cable operators; and places on the cable operator the burden of proving that its rates comply with the Cable Act and FCC rules.

Section 5. Proprietary Information. Prescribes procedures consistent with FCC rules regarding requests for confidentiality of proprietary information submitted by the cable operator.

Section 6. Public Notice; Initial Review of Rates. Requires publishing a public notice of the filing of the cable operator's schedule of rates or a proposed rate increase and requires notice to the cable operator of when the rates will first be considered.

Section 7. Tolling Order. The proposed schedule of rates or rate increase shall become effective 30 days after submission unless tolled pursuant to FCC rules.

Section 8. Public Notice; Hearing on Basic Cable Service Rates Following Tolling of 30-day Deadline. Provides for a public hearing to be held subject to certain public notice requirements if a tolling order has been issued pursuant to Section 7.

Section 9. Staff or Consultant's Report; Written Response. Provides that, following the public hearing, municipal staff or consultant shall make a written report and recommendation on rate decisions; and the cable operator may respond prior to final action.

Section 10. Rate Decision and Order. Authorizes rate decisions and orders in accordance with FCC rules.

Section 11. Refunds; Notice. Authorizes refunds in accordance with FCC rules provided prior notice and opportunity to comment is given to the cable operator.

Section 12. Written Decisions; Public Notice. Provides that rate orders shall be in writing, be effective upon adoption; and deemed released to the public upon adoption; requires publication of a public notice and mailing of the decision to the cable operator.

Section 13. Rules and Regulations. Authorizes the adoption of rules and regulations for basic cable service rate regulation proceedings.

Section 14. Failure to Give Notice. Provides that failure to give the notices or mail copies of reports as required will not invalidate decisions or proceedings.

Section 15. Additional Hearings. Authorizes additional public hearings upon reasonable notice.

Section 16. Additional Powers. Provides that the powers exercised pursuant to the Ordinance are in addition to other powers conferred by law or otherwise.

Section 17. Failure to Comply; Remedy. Provides for legal and equitable remedies for failure of the cable operator to comply with the Act, the FCC rules, any rate orders or determinations, any requirements of the ordinance or any rules or regulations promulgated under this ordinance.

Section 18. Severability. The various parts, sections, and clauses of this ordinance are severable.

Section 19. Conflict Provision. In the event of any conflict between this Ordinance and other ordinances or the franchise agreement, this Ordinance shall control.

Section 20. Effective Date. This ordinance shall become effective thirty days after adoption.

The publication of this summary/synopsis of the ordinance is intended to meet the requirements for publication as provided by law. No further publication of the ordinance is required or contemplated. This summary/synopsis is not exhaustive of all provisions and requirements of the ordinance. A true and complete copy of the ordinance can be inspected or obtained at the offices of the City Clerk, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan.

Written comments on the proposed ordinance may be sent to the City Manager's Office, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, MI or oral comments may be presented at the City Council meeting.

School financial future is cause for concern

By L. Scott Swanson

Financial records for the Charlevoix public schools are in good shape, but looking to the future, the picture in the crystal ball is not necessarily pretty.

John Bishop of Baird, Cotter and Bishop, P.C., Certified Public Accountants, an accounting firm based in Cadillac, offered the annual audit report to the Charlevoix school board Monday evening. Bishop told the board that the condition of the schools financial records is very good, however he expressed concerns about how various uncertainties will affect the Charlevoix school system's financial future.

Among the uncertainties Bishop discussed are the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) claims for reimbursement of funds spent on correcting contamination problems. The DNR is claiming that the Charlevoix Middle School is the source of contamination which required the construction of a new city water plant approximately a decade ago. The DNR wants the school to reimburse the state $444,311 for DNR expenditures on the project. The school has maintained there is no proof that the middle school is the source of the contamination and is contesting the claim. Following Monday,

Sure Christmas is a long way off

But local craft people are already gearing up

By L. Scott Swanson

Although Christmas is still quite a way off, area crafts people are already thinking about it. But then, it's never far from their minds.

Joy Halverson, who counts cloth Christmas ornaments among a multitude of things she sews says she starts getting ideas for Christmas gifts on Dec. 26. That gives her 364 days to turn those ideas into completed projects.

Rachel Niswander and Mary Novotny, sisters who organized a Charlevoix Christmas craft fair last year, are already coming up with new ideas for this year's fair.

Like many other people, Dawn Fletcher had a busy summer. But now with summer winding down, her craft projects begin to gear up.

Niswander and Novotny organized a craft show last year to give area crafts people a place to exhibit and sell their projects. The fair took place on the first week following Thanksgiving at the American Legion building. This year's fair is going to take place some time in early December.

"We just decided to get a bunch of people who made stuff," Niswander answered when asked how the fair began. She noted that several other area towns have pre-Christmas craft fairs and she and Mary felt there was a need for something similar in Charlevoix.

Novotny noted that the summer craft fair in East Park draws people who are into crafts in a bigger way. The Christmas craft fair is geared more toward individuals who do craft projects as a hobby.

In its first year the fair drew nearly 30 exhibitors and hundreds of shoppers. Niswander anticipates all of those exhibitors and more to be at this year's show.

Halverson is one of the local crafts people who may be exhibiting her projects in this year's fair. Her mother taught her to sew when she was eight or nine years old and has been sewing ever since. Currently, she's working on a variety of projects. Some are clothes for her children, others are gifts and she also has people who hire her to do alterations, curtains and valances. She also has made baby clothes which she has for sale in consignment shops.

Halverson says she gets ideas for projects from craft shows, books and friends. She collects fabric and stockpiles it in cartons. "I have always been into fabric," she says.

Halverson makes clothes for her children and for other family members. "I like to make

Craft people always have lots of projects

You think the Christmas shopping season starts early? That's nothing compared to the Christmas craft making season. Several local people handcraft some of the gifts they give at the Christmas season. For them, the process of collecting ideas never ends and the actual making of the craft projects begins several months before Christmas. Joy Halverson (shown above) sews and does her projects with cloth. Other people work in wood, yarn, paint and other forms of handiwork.

County 4H Council shows interest in Castle Farms

By L. Scott Swanson

A board of people appointed by the Charlevoix County 4H Council is working on putting together a bid for the purchase of the Castle Farms property. Charlevoix County 4H Youth Agent Todd Kesner and Charlevoix County 4H Council President Charles McDermott said an effort to purchase Castle Farms is something which has been under consideration for several months. McDermott said discussions have taken place with Castle Farms owner Art Reibel and Reibel's daughter, Kim Reibel, who manages Castle Farms.

Contacted by phone Monday afternoon, Kim Reibel said that at this time she doesn't want to discuss the possibility of the property being sold. She did note that at present the property has not been sold.

She also noted that plans for the Castle Farms Art Fair and for the Reggae Festival, two annual Castle events, are right on schedule for 1994.

According to McDermott, representatives of the Charlevoix County 4H program talked to the Reibels about the possibility of making an offer and the Reibels indicated they would be willing to consider an offer. McDermott said that in addition to discussing a possible purchase, the 4H board has had the property appraised, established a committee to work toward the purchase and that committee has scheduled an additional meeting to begin putting together an offer. McDermott said that assuming the committee puts together an offer, the next step would be for that offer to be forwarded to the Reibels and then it would be up to them to either accept or reject it.

Both Kesner and McDermott emphasized that although Michigan State University works with the 4H program, the university has nothing to do with the property purchase effort. If things work out and the transaction takes place, Michigan State University might provide expertise to help with 4H programs at

CROP Walk organizers hope to raise $7,000

Celebrating the tenth annual Charlevoix County CROP Walk, scheduled to take place Saturday, Oct. 2, local coordinators have issued a challenge: 150 walkers to raise $7,000.

CWS/CROP funds are used to help fight hunger around the world, in the United States and locally. One-quarter of money collected by CROP Walks is returned to local food pantries. Last year Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan each received $540.98 to help with local needs.

Charlevoix CROP Walkers will register at the high school gym area Saturday beginning at 8:30 a.m. The walk will start at 9 a.m., the route being May Street to Stover Road to M66. Destination is the Ironton Congregational Church, approximately six miles.

CROP Walkers from Boyne City and East Jordan will also meet at Ironton where they will be served light refreshments before being transported back to their respective starting points.

This walk is unique among Michigan's 129 community hunger walks in that three cities cooperate in the fund raising. The walk is sponsored by the Charlevoix County Ministerial Association.

Creating things

Rachel Niswander began doing crochet work several years ago. Initially, she made things for her home and for her family and friends. Now, she's also selling some of her projects to other people. Last year, Niswander and her sister, Mary Novotny, organized a pre Christmas craft fair in Charlevoix to give local craft people a place to sell their work. The initial fair drew almost 30 exhibitors and hundreds of customers. Niswander and Novotny plan to organize another fair this year and expect it to be even larger than last year's.

...local craft people always have lots of projects in the works

something for everybody," Halverson says of her Christmas projects.

Currently, the dining room serves as project central, but Halverson is lobbying her husband, Dennis, for her own sewing room.

Dawn Fletcher currently isn't making any projects to sell. For the time-being she's just making things for gifts. Fletcher's specialty is painting wooden items for decorative things around the house. She says that in the past couple of years she's gotten into painting wooden Santa Claus decorations for the Christmas season.

Fletcher began her craftwork for fun approximately 15 years ago when her first child was born and she temporarily stopped working at a fulltime job. Within a year or two she was doing craft shows. At that time she was mostly doing sewing. Later she took a class in Norwegian Rosemaling, which is oil painting on wooden items. While she enjoyed the craft, she wasn't too thrilled about having a lot of oil based paints and turpentine around the house at the same time she had little children so she branched into different forms of painting. Now, as her children have grown older, they've gotten where they will help her with projects. Her husband, Nelson, also helps. He cuts all of her wooden patterns for her.

In addition to organizing the craft fair, Niswander and Novotny also exhibit their own work. Niswander crochets afghans, doilies, dish clothes, pillow covers and rugs.

She began crocheting about 15 years ago when she worked at the old Variety Store. "There were some other girls there doing it, so I said 'Teach me,'" she recalls. "At first she couldn't read the patterns, but with practice she figured it out and now her home is decorated with a variety of beautiful handmade items."

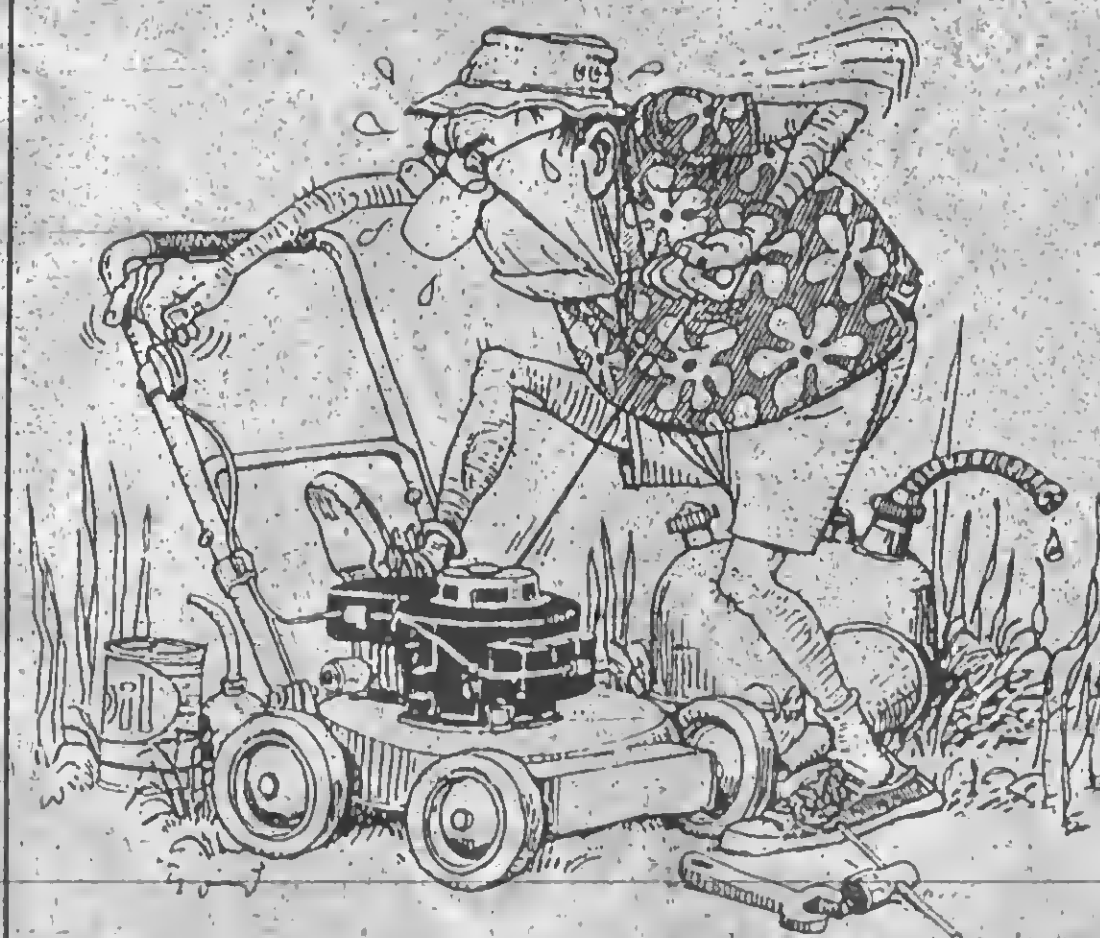

Novotny does dried floral designs and creates wreaths and Christmas trees from grape vines and also works with other natural items such as pine cones. She started doing craft work in her home. "I always did stuff around the house and then I went to craft shows," she explains. "I always had flowers and made flower arrangements for the house."

Although Niswander sells some of the things she makes, much of her craft work is done simply for the enjoyment of her husband, other family members and herself. A peach colored afghan is draped over the back of a large easy chair in the living room of her home. When asked what her husband, Jack, thinks of her crocheting, Niswander points to the chair and the afghan. "See that chair. That's his chair. And then when he gets cold he grabs that afghan."

Like many crafts people, Niswander likes her craftwork because it keeps her busy. "I can't just sit and watch TV. My hands have got to be doing something," she says. "It's just something to do. It keeps you occupied. It's fun to create stuff and see the finished product."

Editor's notes

Delbert Batdorf gets his blood pressure tested by Audrey Lehman prior to giving blood at last Thursday's blood drive. The blood drive reached its goal of 85 pints.

Letters to the editor

Thank you golfers

Editor,

On behalf of the Greensky Hill United Methodist Church Building Committee, I would like to take this time to thank the merchants who donated towards our second annual golf tournament (benefit) and to the all important golfers who participated. Thank you again.

God Bless,
Marilyn Williams,
Chairperson

Two notes regarding high school sports: So far this year, Charlevoix's varsity football team is having a tough season. They're 0-3. This note is just to make a pitch for continued fan support. Anybody can support a team that's working on a 7-2 year. True loyalty is supporting a team which, at least for the moment, is struggling.

The second note concerns the girls' basketball program. After starting the season with three losses, the varsity team won their next two games to bring their season record to 2-2. The girls' basketball program really seems to be on the right track and its something which is going to be even more fun to watch in coming years. An excellent middle school program is feeding into a high school program which in recent years has developed a foundation and is now continuing to improve. The girls' teams normally play on Tuesdays and Thursdays although this week's game is scheduled for Saturday night at home against Grayling. If you haven't gone to a Rayder girls' game lately, you might want to try it. They're entertaining games.

Mike and Paula Greeley and their sons Matthew and Patrick are moving to Muskegon. Mike is transferring with the company he presently works with and Paula will be the news editor for the Muskegon Chronicle. Earlier in her career, Paula served a stint as Charlevoix Courier editor and in recent years has been the managing editor of the Petoskey News-Review. For several years Mike was a fixture in the downtown business community at the Wharfside Market. In addition to their contributions to media and business, Mike and Paula were also involved in several other community projects such as the Parent-Teacher Organization and local Rotary Club. While it's always sad when a small community loses a family such as the Greeleys, we wish them all the best in Muskegon.

For those of you who missed it, Charlevoix had a successful blood drive this past Thursday, reaching its goal of 85 pints. The blood drive is a wonderful example of community cooperation as several individuals and local organizations work together to make the event happen.

Local home wins beautification award

Restoration of their historic house has earned a Charlevoix couple an award from Keep Michigan Beautiful (KMB) for preservation efforts. Carol and Karl Gilewicz will receive a plaque at the KMB Annual Conference Oct. 8 at the Kellogg Center in East Lansing.

The house, located near the intersection of Park Avenue and State Street, dates to 1854, making it one of the earliest homes built in Charlevoix. It is across from the First Congregational Church, built in 1882, and another early Charlevoix residence, the Harsha House now a museum managed by the Charlevoix Historical Society.

The Gilewicz' were cited by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful for helping to preserve the historical character of the north end of State Street by their research and restoration work. A fence designed by Karl Gilewicz and flowers and landscaping by Carol Gilewicz have added charm to the street, the citation said.

The house was occupied by Earl Young's family around the turn of the century, according to the Gilewicz'. The Gilewicz family has occupied the house the past six years.

Keep Michigan Beautiful previously recognized other historic preservation projects in Charlevoix including Rose Cottage Antiques on Mason Street and the Harsha House.

...school's financial future marked by uncertainty

night's board meeting, the board went into closed session to discuss the claim.

Bishop also mentioned the uncertainty resulting from the state legislature's action to restructure school finance in Michigan. Bishop noted that Charlevoix's school system currently has an undesignated fund balance (i.e. money in savings) of $390,000. He said it's important at this time for schools such as Charlevoix to have a solid fund balance because chances are that as school finance is restructured the state legislature isn't going to be doing any favors for schools such as Charlevoix.

Later in the meeting, school superintendent Dr. Roberta Jackson explained what form of school finance restructuring she foresees coming out of Lansing. Jackson and school business manager Rich Kelly have been attending meetings in recent weeks trying to get a handle on what the state legislature may do.

Jackson listed seven things she surmises will be included in school finance reform. They are:

1. A foundation grant from the state of $4,500 to $4,800 per student. It's possible that local money could be added to that.

2. A more substantial role in education for parents and community members.

3. Building level control.

4. Some form of schools of choice.

5. A state mandated core curriculum.

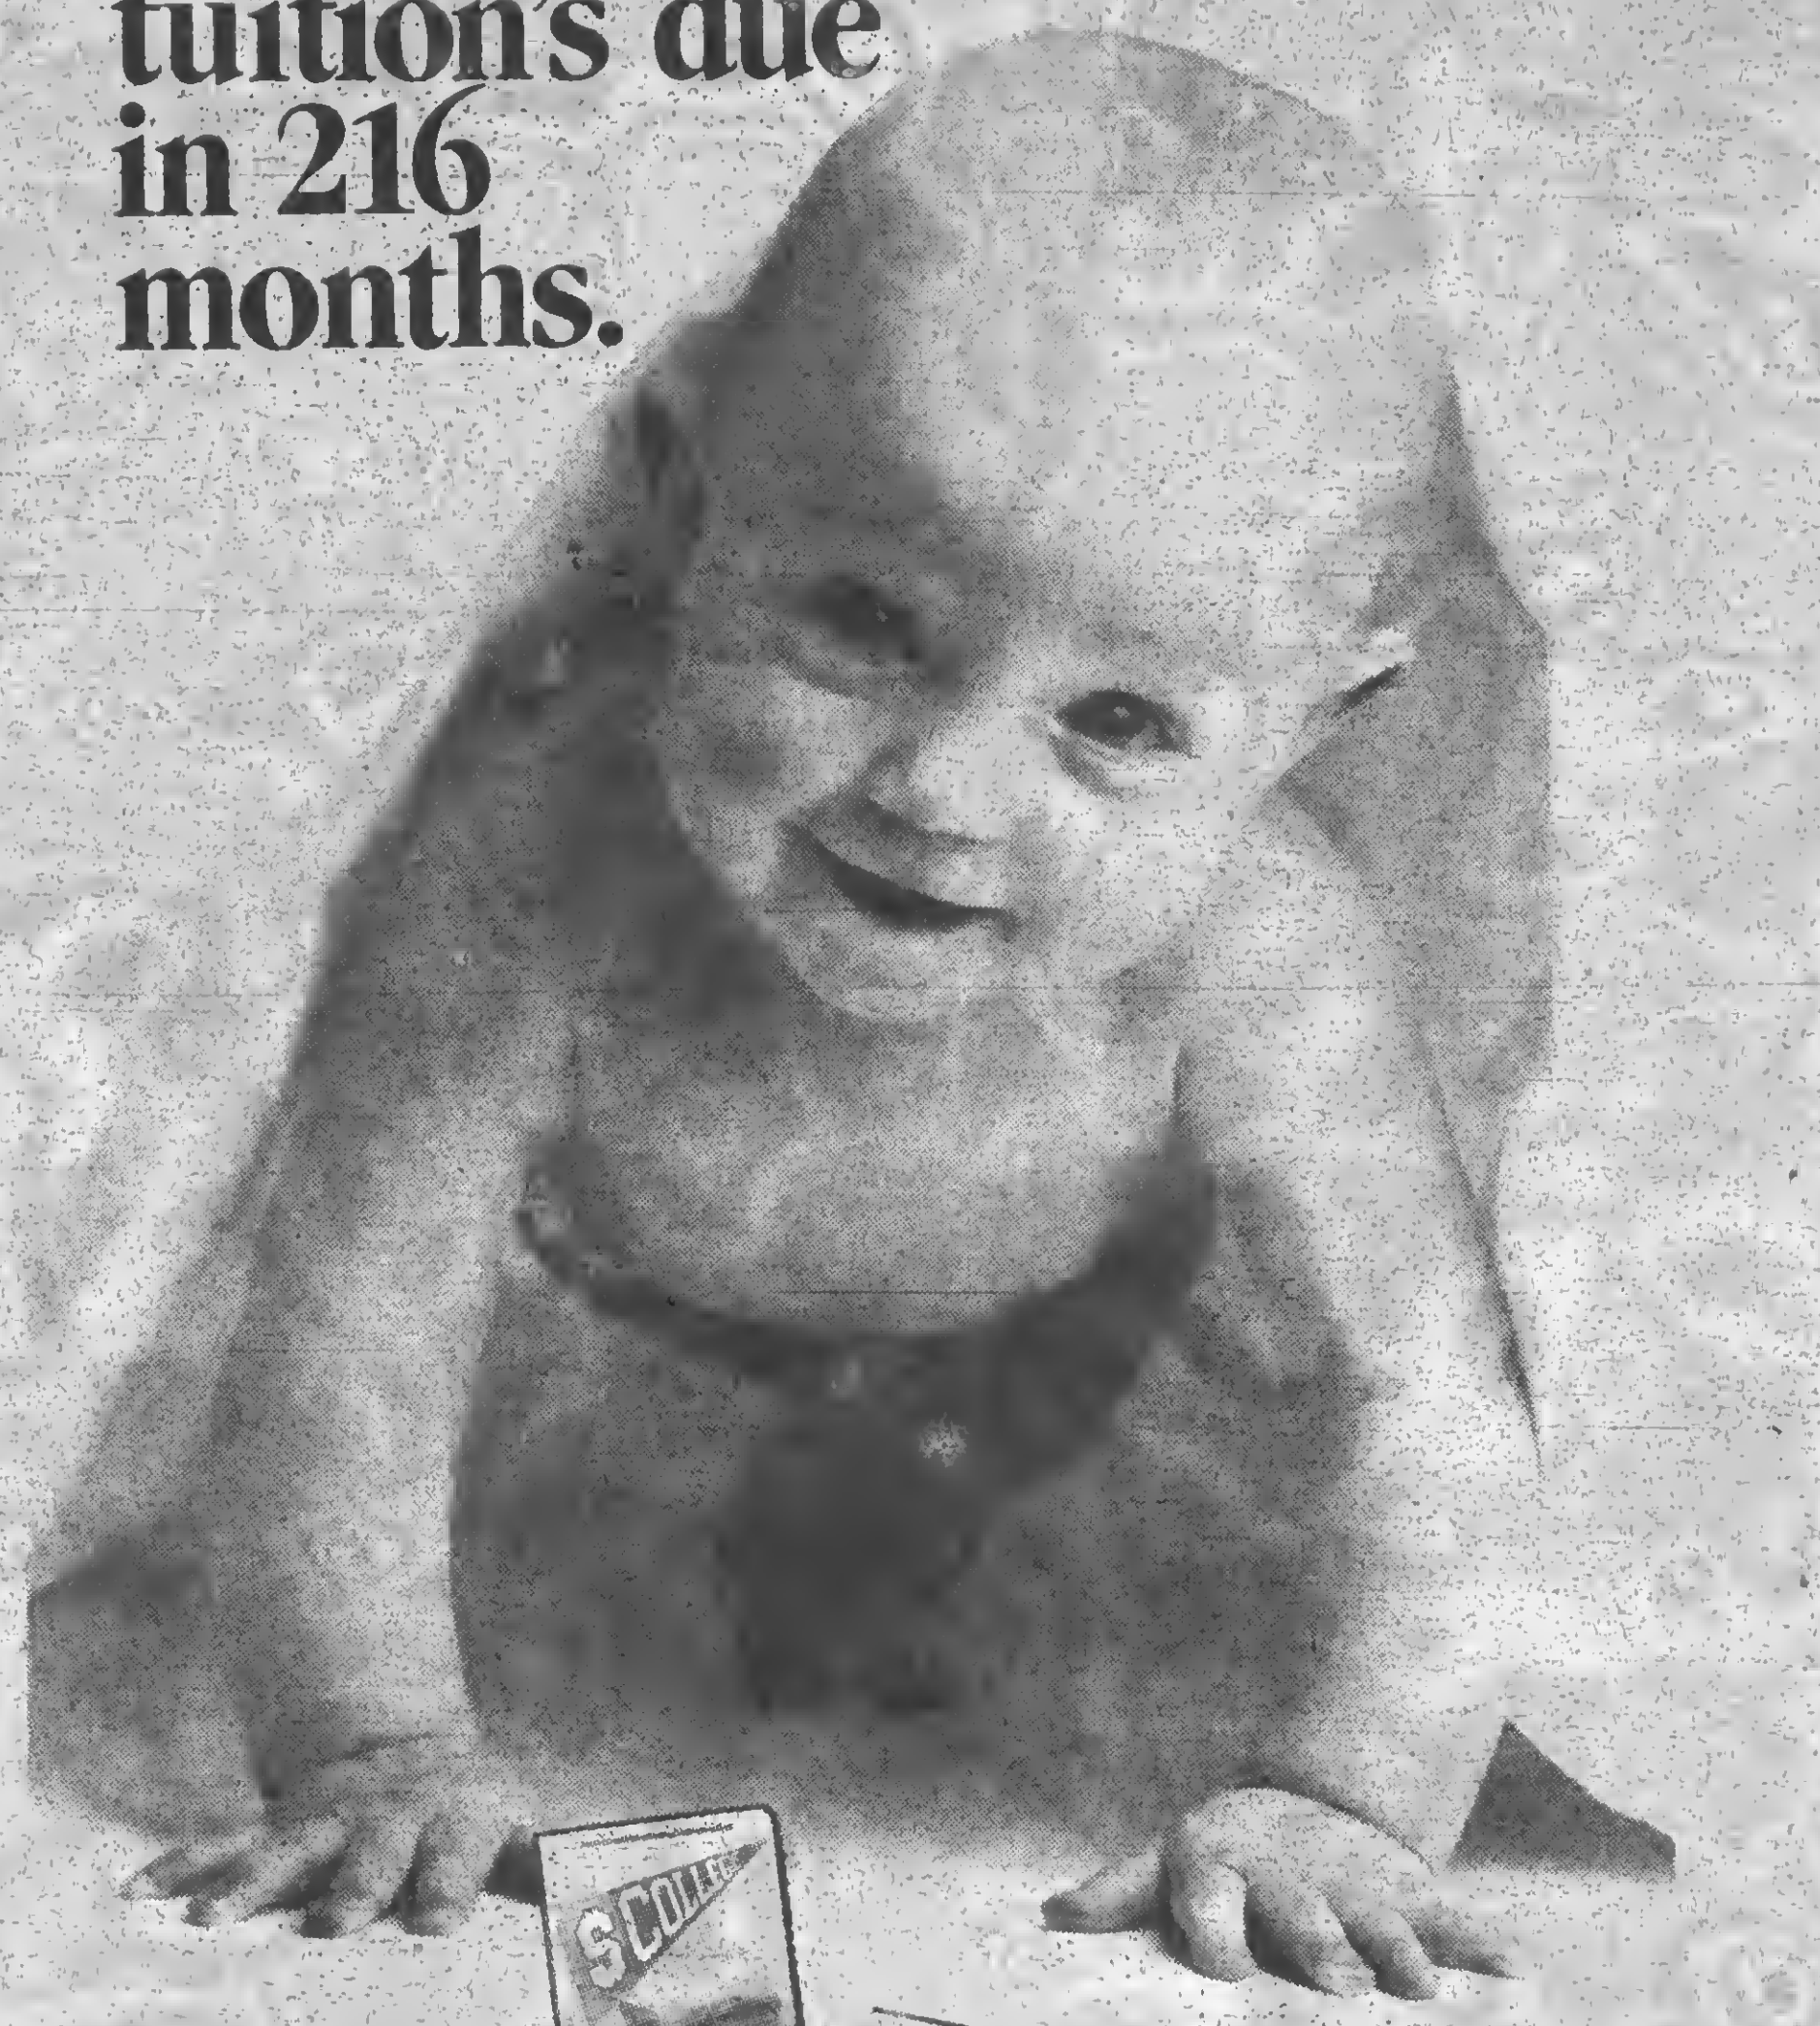

6. Mandated accountability and assessment.

7. Charter schools.

The state foundation grant of $4,500 per student, which Jackson said may be an optimistic figure, causes concern for Charlevoix's system because current per student expenditures are much higher, Jackson said. For this year the projected per student expenditure in Charlevoix is between $6,072 and $6,275. For next year when the reform program takes effect, the per pupil expenditure is expected to be $6,536. That leaves a difference of $2,036 between the state foundation grant and the per pupil expenditure at the present level. Making that up would require a local property tax of 8.2 mills.

This past year the school district levied approximately 26.5 mills for the general fund. Whether a decrease in property taxes would result in a net overall tax decrease or increase for taxpayers depends on what other, and by how much, the state increases other taxes such as sales and income taxes to make up for lost property tax revenue.

Louiselle 50th

Janet & Tom Louiselle

Janet and Tom Louiselle will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at an open house from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m., Oct. 2 at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church.

Tom Louiselle and Janet Webster were married Oct. 2, 1943 in the Charlevoix Community Church of God by Rev. R.D. Wood. The couple has always made their home in Charlevoix.

Tom served in the armed forces from 1944 - 1946. He was with Outfit #147, a field artillery unit in Japan. Janet worked for DME of Charlevoix for 37 years, retiring in May of 1992. Tom worked as a farmer and a truck driver.

The couple has three children: Tom and Linda Louiselle of Charlevoix; Joan and Jerry Balch of Charlevoix; and Dan Louiselle. They also have six grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Albert H. Smith

Albert H. Smith, 83, of Charlevoix, died Sept. 20, 1993, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral will be 1 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 22, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix with the Rev. Dale P. Ostema of the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix officiating. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Smith was born March 14, 1910, in Jordan Township, Antrim County, the son of Henry and Rose (La Fontsee) Smith. He was raised in Alden and moved to Charlevoix in 1929.

On Nov. 13, 1934, he married Neva O. Webster in Charlevoix.

The couple made their home in Charlevoix.

Mr. Smith owned and operated the Texaco gas station and Villa Moderne Motel in Charlevoix. He served several years on the Charlevoix Board of Education. Mr. Smith drove school bus for several years after his retirement.

He was a member of the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix, the Barnard Grange, Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club and the Charlevoix Kiwanis.

Survivors include his wife, Neva of Charlevoix; one son, Richard Smith and his wife Beverly of Charlevoix; two daughters, Ruth Ann Campbell and her husband Howard of Gaylord; and Nancy Allison and her husband Chip of Charlevoix; seven grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; and one sister, Elizabeth Peters of Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital or to the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. There will be no visitation at the funeral home.

Big Rock employees make two contributions

OF BLESSINGS

Employees at Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear power plant recently assisted two area organizations by making financial contributions.

A check for $1,000 was presented by Big Rock Point employee Darrel Turner to Petoskey Rotary President Andy Hayes for use in upgrading and expanding Petoskey's Winter Sports Park. The Rotary is leading fund raising efforts for the Sports Park. Turner is the nuclear plant's maintenance manager and a new member of the Rotary.

Separately, a grant of $1,000 was approved for Charlevoix High School's embryonic computer laboratory program. The grant will be used to purchase computer equipment and software to educate students and prepare them for an increasingly computer dependent business world. Big Rock Point Human Resources Specialist Carolyn Moeggenberg presented the check to Roger Gowell, a science teacher at the school and the program's sponsor. Moeggenberg also serves on a four-person Corporate Citizenship Team at the plant which reviews all community financial requests.

Both grants were funded by the Big Rock Point Contributions budget.

Big Rock Point or the Consumers Power Foundation in 1993 have approved grants to the Raven Hill Discovery Center in East Jordan, MathCounts program, March of Dimes, Salvation Army and the Charlevoix Historical Society. The plant also established a $1,000 scholarship at North Central Michigan College. In addition, a scale model of the Big Rock Point plant, detailing the operation of the nation's longest running nuclear plant, is on display at the Raven Hill Discovery Center.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

Especially after visiting Comiskey Park, I always wondered what it would be like at a traditional field like Tiger Stadium. We made the pilgrimage to Michigan and Trumbull on Saturday. Unlike our White Sox visit that started from the comfort of a nearby motel, this trek meant getting up and on the road at 6:30 in the morning. As much as the kids wanted to go, the early hour had them both wondering if it was really worth it.

We arrived an hour and a half before game time. The same green magic that grabbed me before blossomed again when I got my first glimpse of Tiger turf. The smells of hot dogs, peanuts and pretzels were virtually impossible to resist. It was intriguing to note that Tiger souvenirs were less expensive than White Sox souvenirs. Could that be the difference between being in first place and well back in the pack?

We purchased a baseball with the hopes of my son snagging an autograph. He was not the only one who had his hopes up. The gaggle around the dugout was large. They were tantalized by brief glimpses. They were patient and not pushy but fifteen minutes before game time, the ushers ran them all off. That in all honesty was my biggest disappointment of the day: Baseball has always been the field of dreams. Unlike football and other sports, a closeness with the fans is that makes the game so special. Seeing its players so up close and personal is what has made them heroes for countless generations. For the game to continue to hold its luster, those young fans need that encouragement that contact with their heroes would bring.

Yes, the wave made its way around Tiger Stadium. Yes, one of our guys hit a home run and yes, we were there for the one game with the Indians that the Tigers managed to win. Because of the win, most everybody went away feeling good.

As the Tigers end their year, our church family is ending its year. Sparky, I'm sure, is already doing a bit reflecting and planning for next year. His team showed great promise and really did better than a lot of folks expected. Every pastor has a lot more in common with Sparky than you might think. We try our best to manage the folks in our flocks in a similar fashion. We try to match their talents and skills with the various leadership needs of our congregations.

A church year is filled with highlights, things that went really well. It has those moments too that you just have to walk away from, remembering that tomorrow is another day. Just like the players make the team, parishioners make the congregation. When Tuttleton, Gibson, Davis and company play with all their hearts, you can see the difference on the field. When you give your all in the Lord's service, you will see the difference in your church. You'll also see a smile on your pastor's face too.

DDA board orders new lights for Bridge Street at cost of $157,335

By L. Scott Swanson

After years of fussing and fighting, new street lights for Charlevoix's downtown business district have been ordered. After receiving bids, the city's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) voted to purchase 101 new street lights from Antique Street Lamps at a cost of $157,335. The lights are of the same design as the lights on Ferry Avenue. The DDA had budgeted $195,000 for the lights, but the $190,000 figure included the cost of installation while the $157,335 figure does not.

Debate as to whether or not the new lights are needed has gone on for years. Advocates of the new lights argue that although the current lights are functional, they're ugly and look like parking lot lights. Opponents of the new lights argue that the present lights are functional and the expenditure for the new lights is not merited.

At the DDA's Sept. 15 meeting, the vote to order the new lights was unanimous. The only debate on the issue concerned whether or not to buy additional lights for State Street and east-west side streets. DDA member Jeff Porter supported ordering additional lights. DDA chairman Hugh Mason and DDA member Dan Barron expressed skepticism.

Porter said he felt the DDA should give consideration to the additional lights and spend perhaps as much as $90,000 for new lights on State Street and the side streets. Mason noted that given recent changes in Michigan's property tax system, projections call for the DDA to either adjust their spending plans or go in the red two years down the road. Barron said that he would rather see money spent on East Park improvements rather than sidestreet lighting.

Porter said he feels the DDA is spending too much on Bridge Street and not enough of State Street and the sidestreets. "They (streets other than Bridge Street) have received nothing so far from the DDA," Porter said.

Calling Bridge Street the "epicenter of the business district," Barron argued that the DDA was not spending too much money there. He contended that side-street businesses have benefitted from DDA projects such as new parking lots which are located off of Bridge Street.

When asked by Barron what projects he would be willing to sacrifice to fund additional lights for sidestreets, Porter said that the DDA had decided not to spend $46,000 for work on the end of East Mason Street and had declined to spend $14,000 for curbing on Pine River Avenue on the bluff over the north side of the channel and had budgeted $32,000 for miscellaneous expenses.

Barron noted that the DDA also has decided to do more extensive renovation of East Park than was originally planned and consequently will need more money for that project.

At the conclusion of the debate the DDA voted to order the new lights for Bridge Street and to get an estimate of how much it would cost for lights for State Street and the side streets.

Earlier in the meeting the DDA discussed the Kusina property between Mason and Antrim streets; East Park improvements; reworking the parking lot off of Mason Street; improvements to the end of East Mason Street.

The DDA recently closed on the purchase of the Kusina property. Following discussion, the DDA board instructed city planner Gerry Harsch to go forward with plans to construct a new parking lot on the site. The board also voted to get a private appraisal on the site's remaining building which will eventually be sold.

After touring East Park following their August meeting, DDA members decided they wanted to do more work on the park than what was originally planned. The work that had been planned would have simply refurbished what is already in the park. After touring the park the board decided that rather than patching the status quo, they would like to make improvements.

DDA members said they also wish to go forward with plans to improve the parking area to the north of Mason Street.

The DDA is considering scaling back previously planned work at the lakeshore end of East Mason

New teachers join school faculty

Charlevoix school faculty meetings will have seven new faces and one returning familiar face in their midst this fall. Seven new teachers have been hired at the middle and high school level. The new teachers bring with them a fresh enthusiasm for recent curriculum changes. Computers play a large role with the new teachers, with three of the teachers teaching computer related skills. Three others will be teaching English. While the teachers may differ in their approaches to teaching and the subject matter they teach, they all agree on one thing: they're all thrilled to be in Charlevoix.

Joe Powers

Joe Powers is a Lansing native with four years experience teaching in Lawrence, Michigan. He received his college degree from Michigan State University. Powers will be teaching chemistry, physical science, and earth science in high school. He is also coaching the varsity girls' basketball team. Powers is married, and he and his wife are expecting their first child.

Dixie Darling Ashton

Dixie Darling Ashton will be teaching tenth and eleventh grade english. Ashton most recently taught in Winterpark, Colorado. Ashton is no stranger to northern Michigan. She spent seven years teaching in Bellaire at the elementary and middle school levels. "I've taught every level there is," Ashton said. She was a part time instructor at North Central Michigan College for six years. Ashton's husband is a school principal in Mancelona. Ashton also enjoys freelance writing. She and her husband have three college aged children, all of whom plan to be teachers.

Jill Erskine

Jill Erskine will be teaching computer keyboarding, computer literacy, consumer business math, and introduction to business. She is a 1989 graduate of Central Michigan University and spent three years teaching adult education at Great Lakes Junior College. She and her husband were delighted to come to Charlevoix. Her husband is working to get his degree in education as well.

Peter Scholten

Peter Scholten is teaching first year through fourth year Spanish. He's looking forward to taking the Spanish club on a trip to Spain next spring. Scholten graduated from Western Michigan University in 1992. He also studied in Spain at the University of Madrid through an exchange program at Marquette University. He taught last year in Perry, Michigan.

Suzanne Cook

Suzanne Cook will be teaching business, keyboarding, computer literacy, accounting, and marketing. She received two degrees from Central Michigan University, one in business administration and one in business education. She taught adult education in Houghton Lake last year. She will be advising the student council.

Joe Woods

Joe Woods will be teaching a new program, C.A.D.D. (computer assisted drafting design). He will also be teaching traditional drafting. At his last position in Comstock Park, Woods taught desktop publishing, information retrieval, weather information retrieval, and robotics. He received his degree from Central Michigan University and is working on a Master's degree through Ferris State College. He focused on designing a teaching program that is not gender oriented and prepares students for the real world with practical applications.

Jane Ingles

Jane Ingles is teaching eighth grade English and seventh grade French at the middle school. Ingles is a graduate of Central Michigan University, and did her student teaching in Petoskey. Her beginning French students are already progressing much faster than she anticipated. Ingles attributes their progress to the fact that she speaks only French in the classroom. "I think they learn more because they have to try harder," Ingles said. Ingles will also be directing the Performing Arts program in the middle school. She was active in drama during her school years, and is looking forward to getting back into drama.

Kris Schaperkottler

Kris Schaperkottler is a Charlevoix native who is returning to the school system after a leave of absence. Schaperkottler taught in Charlevoix for five years before taking time out to start a family. Her two children are both in the Charlevoix school system. She has substitute taught over the years, and taught part time last year. She will be teaching first year Spanish and English. She received her teaching degree from Grand Valley State University.

Rayder basketball team improves to 2-3

After starting the season with three non-league losses, the Charlevoix varsity girls' basketball team rallied last week to win their first two league games. Following a Sept. 14 win at Boyne City, the Rayders traveled to Traverse City Sept. 16 and beat Traverse City St. Francis 59-43.

Charlevoix built a six point lead, 15-9, by the end of the first quarter. They held that margin through the second quarter to lead 28-22 at halftime. In the second half Charlevoix outscored St. Francis by six points in both the third and fourth quarters.

Rebounding played a critical role in the win. Charlevoix outrebounded St. Francis 35-22. Jamie Doan and Liz Kelly each had eight rebounds while Becky Bragg had seven. Bragg led the Rayders in scoring with 16 while Shannon Rowell had nine and Liz Kelly and Liz Grunch each contributed eight.

Charlevoix also won the junior varsity game 44-41.

The Rayders' next game will be Saturday, Sept. 25 at home against Grayling.

Football team beaten by Reed City 44-20

Things didn't start off so badly, but they deteriorated rapidly for Charlevoix's varsity football team in a 44-20 loss to Reed City Friday evening. The Rayders stopped the visiting offense on its first possession and recovered a fumble later in the first quarter. Aside from that, Reed City's offense generally overwhelmed the Rayder defense, picking up big chunks of yardage on several runs. The loss dropped Charlevoix's season record to 0-3.

Charlevoix scored the game's first touchdown with 6:28 left in the first quarter on a 15 yard run by Brandon Webb. The scoring play involved a handoff to the other halfback who then handed it off a second time on an inside handoff to Webb. That play accounted for all three Rayder touchdowns in the game. Robbie Stradner kicked the extra point to give the Rayders a 7-0 lead.

Following the kickoff, Reed City scored on a three-play drive which consisted of a 27-yard run, a 47-yard run and a four-yard scoring run. That drive set the tone for the remainder of the game. They scored a two-point extra point conversion and led 8-7.

With 1:09 left in the first quarter, Reed City fumbled and Rayder David Steel recovered on the ball on the Reed City 24 yard line. Webb scored on the next play. Stradner's extra point attempt was good even though an illegal procedure penalty backed the Rayders up five yards from the normal extra-point mark. Stradner handled both the extra point kicking and punting responsibilities for the Rayders. He did well at both, but unfortunately for the Rayders he got to punt more often than he got to kick extra points.

Reed City answered at 10:41 of the second quarter on a 32 yard pass off a fourth down and two situation. The two-point conversion put them up 16-14. Reed City scored again at the 3:02 mark of the second quarter, this time on a five-yard pass. The extra point attempt failed and Reed City led 22-14.

Charlevoix scored its final touchdown with 1:15 left in the half on a nine-yard run by Webb. A two-point extra point attempt failed.

Elk Rapids scored the only three touchdowns of the second half on third quarter runs of 46, 73 and five yards. Aside from running onto the field and running off of the field, Charlevoix's offense didn't really go anywhere in the second half.

Individually, Webb finished with 133 yards rushing while Jerry Duhart had 74 yards on eight carries. Defensively, Webb had 10 tackles and three assists. Geoff Sheldon had four tackles and six assists and Gregg Holmes had five tackles and five assists.

Charlevoix's next game will be at home Friday against Grayling.

SPORTS

Charlevoix's new middle school football program began last week. Several junior high boys are out for the team, learning the fundamentals of the game.

Cross Country team keeps winning

The Charlevoix boys' cross country team improved its record to 2-0 this year, finishing first among four Class C teams at the Ludington Invitational Saturday. Mike Bush and Matt Dickinson led the Rayders, finishing first and second among the race's Class C and D runners.

The Rayders team score of 29 points was 25 better than second place Benzie Central.

Bush finished in a time of 16:35 and Dickinson finished in 16:53, nearly a minute ahead of the third place finisher.

Other places and finishes for the Charlevoix boys were: Chris LeButt, sixth, 18:07; Paul Henne, ninth, 18:37; Josh Dhaseler, eleventh, 18:41; Scott Campbell, twelfth, 18:42; and Jeff McCombs, seventeenth, 18:57.

Charlevoix's girls' team placed fourth with 64 points, 30 points behind first place Whitehall. Becca Chamberlain of Charlevoix placed third among Class C runners and tenth overall among the 90 girls in the race with a time of 21:20.

Other Charlevoix girls' results were: Lisa Hoadley, ninth, 24:03; Trina Holm, thirteenth, 24:37; Bethany Martinson, nineteenth, 27:15; Kaylee Manker, twentieth, 27:16; Kallie Siwarga, 21st, 27:38; Tiffany Karczmarski, 23rd, 29:11.

Charlevoix's next race will be Thursday, Sept. 23 at the East Jordan Invitational.

The Courier football contest is back

Not even Mel Gray could make a more exciting return

Once again the Charlevoix Courier football contest returns. And as we did last year, to help the rank amateur prognosticators (a title which takes in a good many of our entrants) we will be offering our picks. Last year's picks by Courier prophets were correct well more than, yes well more than, fifty percent of the time. Some of you heed our advice and some don't. Oh well, your loss.

This week's games and picks: Grayling at Charlevoix. Grayling was good last year and this year they're even better. Charlevoix will get in the win column soon, but not quite yet. Pick Grayling.

Traverse City St. Francis at Muskegon Catholic. Traverse City High's back-up unit continues to be a tough Class C team. Pick Traverse City St. Francis.

East Jordan at Boyne City. It took a Charlevoix alumni (i.e. Coach Pat Klooster) to do it, but this year Boyne City has a real team. Pick Boyne City in a game we Charlevoix people like to view as a match up between two of our nicest suburbs.

Houston at Michigan. Houston, like the Detroit Lions, is no longer starting Andre Ware. Last year's game was a day at the beach for Michigan. This year's game will be much the same. Pick Michigan.

Central Michigan at Michigan State. As any of the CMU faithful will tell you, kicking MSU around for a third straight year would just be too much fun. Unfortunately, it's also probably too much to hope for. Pick MSU.

Notre Dame at Purdue. The intrastate rivalry always makes this game interesting. From a Purdue perspective it would be even more interesting if they won more often. Pick Notre Dame.

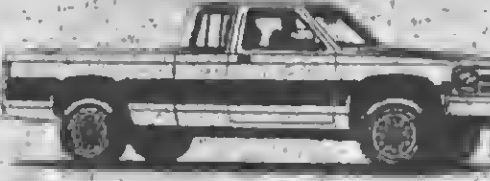

Miami at Colorado. Colorado is an over-rated team from an over-rated conference while Miami's football team has players who are almost as tough as the people roaming Miami's streets. Pick Miami.

Phoenix at Detroit. Assuming the left side of the Lions' offensive line is back, let's give this game to Detroit. Pick Detroit.

San Francisco at New Orleans. New Orleans has a great defense, but their offense needs work. Pick San Francisco.

Green Bay at Minnesota. This is a tough game to call. But you know what they say, "When the going gets tough...life gets confusing." Green Bay's far better off with Favre at quarterback than they were with Majkowski (Remember him?) Pick Green Bay.

Michigan to get new license plates

After a decade Michigan's license plate should hit the road, according to the chair of the House Tourism and Recreation Committee.

Rep. Beverly A. Bodem, R-Alpena, has introduced a House resolution urging the Michigan Department of State to design and distribute new license plates with an attractive logo.

"A change is long overdue," Bodem said. "Several state advertise popular tourist spots on their automobile license plates and Michigan should join the club."

The familiar blue and white plates were issued in 1982 and have exceeded their expected longevity of eight years.

"Although our plates are functional, they should be retired. Unfortunately, they lack the flair of those used elsewhere," Bodem said.

Check your heating system to avoid carbon monoxide problems

As temperatures drift southward toward fall, Consumers Power Company is again encouraging customers to guard their homes against more than the season's chill.

"An improperly operating furnace or bad chimney can cause a potentially lethal buildup of carbon monoxide in the home," said Jerry Richards, senior engineer for the utility's gas distribution services area. "Routine maintenance and simple precautions can help ensure the safe operation of your heating system."

Carbon monoxide - an odorless, colorless gas - can be produced when fuels burn without enough air. It can also be produced when ranges or grills are used for space heating and when chimneys or vents are blocked, flues are rusted and appliances are faulty or improperly installed. The presence of moisture on walls or windows may indicate a heating system problem.

Among the symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning are a stinging sensation in the eyes, dizziness, weakness and repeated nausea or headaches. High amounts of carbon monoxide can be fatal.

If the presence of carbon monoxide is suspected, call Consumers Power (1-800-477-5050) or a licensed mechanical contractor immediately.

To ensure the safe operation of your heating system you should do the following:

- * Check furnace air filter monthly and replace it when needed.
- * Replace worn belts on blower and lubricate bearings or motor if required.

- * Keep furnace blower door closed. Never operate furnace with door open.

- * Make certain furnace vent is in good shape and connected to chimney.

- * Routinely observe the condition of chimney for obstructions. After running the furnace for five minutes to heat chimney, feel close to draft hood or vent pipes for exhaust leaks. Do not operate furnace if exhaust is leaking inside.

Hospital offers aquatic therapy

Anyone with arthritis or chronic joint problems will benefit from the six-week aquatic therapy course offered by Charlevoix Area Hospital beginning Oct. 5.

Linda DeGrow, Charlevoix Area Hospital physical therapist, says, "This will be an educational program that will show people with arthritis or other chronic joint problems how therapeutic water exercise can be an effective way to reduce pain." The program is geared to those who are functioning fairly well and do not qualify for insurance reimbursement for physical therapy.

The sessions will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Oct. 5 through Nov. 11 at the East Jordan pool. Cost will be $30 per person. Class size is limited to 15.

Anyone interested should call Linda DeGrow at 547-4024, ext. 277, or the East Jordan pool at 536-2250.

Charlevoix children cast in Jordan Valley play

Sally Beemon, Adrienne Winchester and Ethan Winchester - all Charlevoix Elementary School students - have roles as part of a living set in "Baba Yaga," which will be presented at 7 p.m. Thursday and Saturday, Sept. 23 and 25, and 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 26, at East Jordan High School Auditorium.

They are three of twelve children who contribute sound effects to convey the frightening atmosphere of the forest where Baba Yaga lives.

The musical performance by Jordan River Players, the theatrical arm of Jordan River Arts Council, features a cast of five adults, four teenagers and 16 children and a multi-level set representing the forest where Baba Yaga lives.

Written by Kansas playwright Ric Averill, the play - based on a Russian fairy tale - is new, unpublished and unproduced except for a Kansas production, in keeping with the tradition established by the arts council.

Director is Lenore Bechtel, East Jordan playwright. Deb Saygers Hobbs, of Central Lake, is musical director.

The production is partially funded by Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs and Charlevoix Community Foundation.

Tickets are available from all cast members and at the door 30 minutes prior to curtain. Prices are $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children.

...County 4H program interested in buying Castle Farms

Castle Farms, but the University wouldn't own any of the property. The Castle Farms property includes several stone buildings, an outdoor theater and between 40 and 50 acres of land. Kesner and McDermott both spoke enthusiastically about the possibilities it holds for 4H youth activities.

Kesner said there currently between 1,600 and 1,700 young people involved in Charlevoix County 4H activities. He said the program currently has "way too many kids and not enough space."

Were the 4H program able to acquire the Castle Farms property, possible uses Kesner envisions include: an environmental studies laboratory; a darkroom for photojournalism work; a kitchen which the program needs for a number of reasons; classroom space for a number of traditional things such as sewing and craft classes; perhaps an observatory atop one of the silos; a woodshop; horse and livestock shows in the outdoor area; a range for archery competitions; and landscaping and horticultural areas.

"There's floor space galore," Kesner said of the facility.

Asked about the outdoor theater seating, Kesner said that would probably be left and that the 4H program might even host some small concerts to help raise money for operational funding. He said the annual Art Festival is another thing which would likely be continued. Kesner said that if 4H acquired the property, adult and youth education would be the main focus, but other events might take place to raise money.

Acquisition of the property would require a significant fund raising effort, but Kesner and McDermott indicated they feel a fundraising drive could be successful for a project that would benefit people throughout the entire county.

McDermott said he's been familiar with the Castle Farms property all of his life and has always felt it had a lot of possibilities. He said he feels the facility has the earnings potential to support itself and offer a wide array of opportunities to area youth.

School annual report offers insight into local education

By L. Scott Swanson
It's kind of like a report for the school. In fact, its title is "Your Schools in Action - Annual Report Charlevoix Public Schools 1992-1993."

A state law known as P.A. 25 requires schools to issue annual reports. The school must issue an overall report for the entire system and separate reports for each school building. The reports are part of a growing demand by American society for accountability from the educational system.

The reports contain a variety of information, some of it clearly public relations and some of it simply hard, cold facts.

Dr. Roberta Jackson, Charlevoix School Superintendent, says that although the reports take time to assemble, they offer the school an opportunity to communicate with the people in the district.

"I think it's important to communicate in whatever way we can," she said.

The report was distributed at the Sept. 19 school board meeting and in an effort to make it more widely available, the school plans to make copies available at the Chamber of Commerce and to provide copies to local realtors.

Any of the three school building reports or the overall school report can be scanned through in less than half an hour.

Some of the interesting facts presented in the overall plan include the following:

The school is staffed by: 71.5 teachers, 3.5 counselors, six administrators, 45 support personnel, one nurse, one maintenance supervisor, one transportation supervisor and 11 bus drivers.

And speaking of busses. The school has 20 bus routes with a total daily mileage of 835 miles and a yearly mileage of 150,300. Each day the school busses transport 783 students.

And how many students are there

During the past 23 years clubhouse manager Bill Graves has become a familiar face at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course. Graves will be retiring when the course closes for the 1993 season.

After 23 years, Graves retires from a job he only took for a year

By L. Scott Swanson

Bill Graves first worked on what is now the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course as a caddy more than 50 years ago when he was only 12 or 13 years old. Later, in 1970 when the City was looking for someone to manage the golf course clubhouse, Graves was recommended for the job.

"I said, 'I'll take it for a year,'" Graves recalls. "It's been a long year, 23 years."

For nearly a quarter century Graves has been a familiar face in the clubhouse. But sometime around the middle of next month, when the leaves fall and another winter prepares to set in, Graves will retire. Graves is 67 years old. He's had a couple of operations on his legs and feet and he says of the golf course job, "I just can't do it any more."

Despite viewing the job as a short term thing when he began, Graves soon found he enjoyed it. When asked what he liked about working in the clubhouse, he said, "Meeting the people mostly. You make some friends."

Graves speaks highly of the municipal course. "For the average golfer, it's a challenging course. Just because it's flat doesn't mean it's easy." He notes that the small greens give many golfers problems.

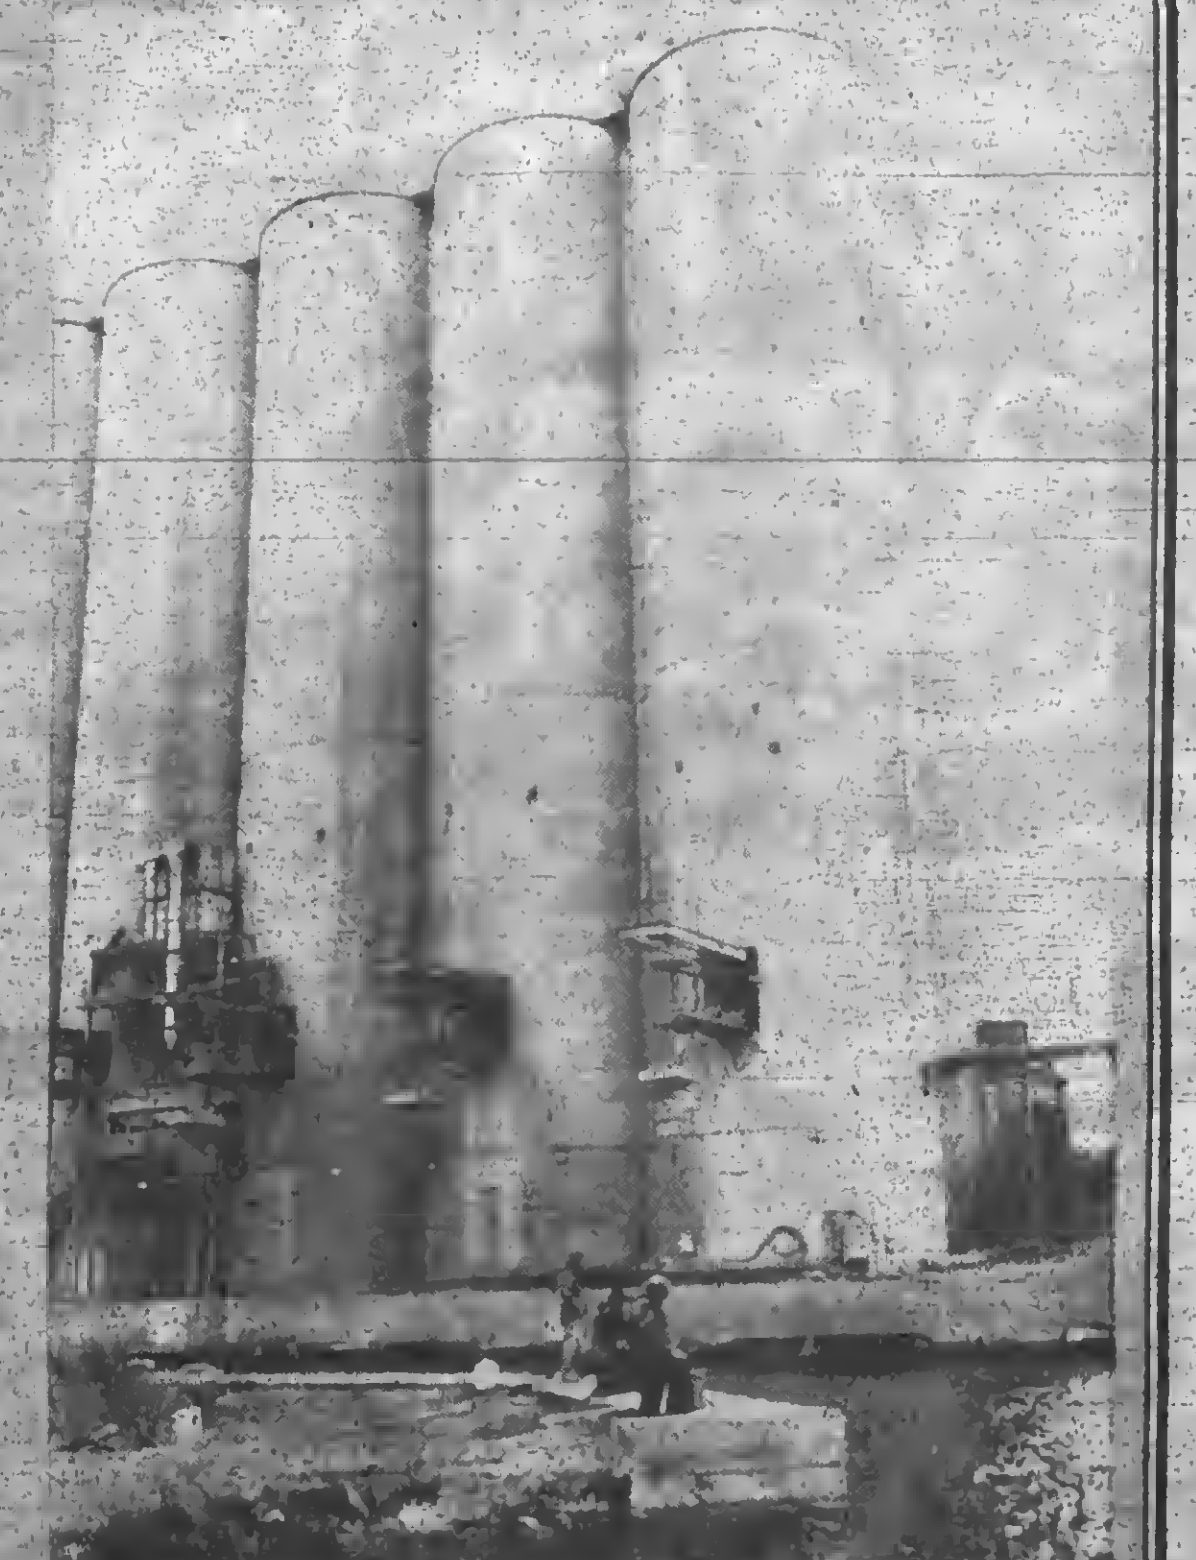

Despite the proliferation of private golf courses throughout northern Michigan in recent years, Graves feels the Charlevoix Municipal Course

Transit worker claims he was unfairly fired

By Laurie Lounsbury

George Kraft, a recently fired county transit bus driver, maintains that not only was he unjustly fired, he claims the incident leading to his dismissal may have been "set up."

Kraft was fired July 2 for a June 22 incident. Kraft was driving his bus route when the Murphy gauge, a safety device on the bus, shut the engine down. The Murphy gauge automatically shuts off the bus engine if the engine temperature climbs above a set level. Kraft said the Murphy gauge on his bus was set to shut down the engine at 190 degrees, a level he thought was on the low side. After his bus shut down twice, he radioed the dispatcher and asked what he should do. According to Kraft, the dispatcher told him to do what he could to get to Charlevoix, where he could trade buses with a driver heading back to the bus garage in Boyne City.

To keep the bus from constantly shutting down on his way from East Jordan to Charlevoix, Kraft adjusted the gauge from 190 to 215 degrees. He made it to Charlevoix without a problem. In Charlevoix, he turned the bus over to another driver, who took the bus back to Boyne City without a problem.

On July 2, Kraft was fired by Art Sawarski, transit manager. Kraft said he was told that the reason for his termination was that he could have caused damage to the bus by setting the gauge at a higher level. Kraft appealed the firing to the county personnel committee, which upheld Sawarski's decision. On Sept. 8, Kraft went before the Charlevoix County Commissioners to appeal his case. He said he had pictures of the Murphy gauge on Bus #23, the bus in question, and that the gauge was still set at 215 degrees two months after the incident. "I feel that I've been set up in that somebody adjusted it (the Murphy gauge) downward before my shift," Kraft said after the meeting.

Kraft's personnel file is not without other blemishes. There are nearly 70 complaints in his file. Kraft maintains that many of those complaints aren't legitimate and shouldn't be in there. "There is no one to protect an employee from what management does," he said.

Kraft claims his firing stemmed from his union organizing activities. County employees are working with the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) in an effort to unionize county employees. At this point, the union representative and the county commissioners are still trying to determine which county employees should be included. Commissioners lobbied to have the transit department included in the union consideration, allegedly because most transit employees are opposed to unionization.

Kraft has 13 years experience with the transit department as a driver and as a supervisor. He is certified as a heavy duty truck and auto repair mechanic. Kraft said he was within his rights to make a decision to reset the Murphy gauge after it shut down.

Kraft went before the county commissioners at their last meeting, after they had had an opportunity to look into his firing. Kraft pointed out that the job description for transit bus driver says, "Must still has its place. He cites the improvements the city has made including new trees and ladies' toes. "They do something every year," he says. "They have to, to keep up with it."

Course rates are among the lowest in the area, especially for city residents who purchase season passes. As an example, Graves notes that a senior citizen husband and wife who are city residents costs only $70. Even for nonresidents, an entire family can purchase a season pass for $220. Graves said the course draws quite a few people from neighboring communities such as Petoskey.

Graves has always tried to run the course in a professional manner, like a business. He says the course can comfortably accommodate 225 people a day. On occasion it draws more than that, but when it does things can get a bit frantic.

"One day we ran 350 people through. I thought I was going to lose my mind," Graves recalls. "But there was not one complaint that day."

Although the golf course has leagues, Graves said he's always been careful to keep enough time open for the general public.

Graves has no monopoly on lengthy service at the municipal golf course. While he manned the clubhouse, Ty Conklin and Gene Drost with the help of several other people over the years have maintained the course. Graves said the maintenance staff has done a nice job with the course, particularly this summer. "I've had a lot of good comments this year about the course," he said.

In addition to the golfers and the people he worked with at the course, Graves said he also has always had good cooperation through the years from the city's administrative staff. He said that whenever he asked for something that the course needed, he always got it.

"I hate to leave it in a way," Graves said of his retirement from the course. He's not exactly sure what he will do to stay occupied. Unlike many area senior citizens, he doesn't make a habit of heading south for the winter. "I'll probably just take a vacation," he says.

My recent experience with our local ambulance service may help to put the current controversy between Charlevoix and Hayes Township into sharper focus.

An ambulance was called when I fell down the stairs at the McCune Arts Center in July. Within five minutes LifeLink paramedics appeared and gently loaded me and my fractured elbow into the state-of-the-art, well-equipped ambulance and drove me to Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey. So far so good.

The shock, when I received their bill in August, was almost as much as my tumble down the stairs — $503.75! The charges were $498 for Advanced Life Support and $5.75 for Emergency Mileage. (That's $200 more than they charge in Manhattan, I've been told).

Now if this accident had occurred in Charlevoix, my ambulance bill, as a resident would have been $100. (Non-residents pay $150).

Admittedly, there is some difference in the life support services and training of the staff that is provided by the competing services. Charlevoix has two ambulances both equipped with heart start monitors, oxygen etc., and they are staffed by Emergency Medical Technicians. On the other hand, LifeLink is staffed by more highly trained Paramedics who are allowed to administer cardiac and other drugs with permission from the hospital.

LifeLink is a private, not-for-profit corporation. The dilemma here is, according to LifeLink's president Jim Perricone, that in order to provide the high quality service in a low density populated area, the company must charge accordingly. They do not make a profit and are therefore financially subsidized.

But getting back to the fee structure, another surprise came with the reimbursement checks for ambulance service from Blue Cross and Medicare. Blue Cross mailed me a check for $30.46 and Medicare's check was for $121.86. That leaves me holding the bag for an additional $351.43! Fortunately the McCune Arts Center's insurance policy agreed to pay this sum. But what if?

For those who are interested in who makes the final medical decision as to which hospital one is taken to by either ambulance, it's up to the medical control officer at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Depending on the injury, it is his decision which hospital the patient is transported to, Northern Michigan Hospital or Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Our president, Bill Clinton, who is trying so hard to streamline our health care system, might be interested to know that so far, my file contains 22 pages of forms in connection with my new $6,646.80 claim. Most of the forms are headed by the statement THIS IS NOT A BILL, or EXPLANATION OF BENEFIT PAYMENTS.

What I would like someone to explain to me is exactly how much it is going to cost an individual who lives in adjoining Hayes Township when an ambulance is called? According to the latest information, the closest ambulance to the scene of the accident is called — either a Charlevoix ambulance or LifeLink, depending if it's on the east or west side of Hayes Township. (Hayes Township snakes all the way from Bay Shore on Lake Michigan to Horton Bay, on Lake Charlevoix.) This means that the accident victim may be charged either $100, $150 for a Charlevoix ambulance or over $500 for LifeLink! That's a big difference and what if that person has no insurance?

It's all very complicated under our present system of health care. Let's hope the advanced life support ambulance service issue will be addressed when Congress tackles the entire health care problem. How this matter affects an individual is of much greater interest to us than how it affects the Township or the County.

Letters to the editor

Novak family expresses gratitude

Editor,

The family of Max Novak would like to thank the people of the Charlevoix area and the Charlevoix Public Schools for the many tributes to our father. Many thanks to the Charlevoix City Council and the Charlevoix Board of Education for their joint declaration of September 18, 1993, as "Max Novak Day." Also, thank you to the Charlevoix Public Schools for naming the athletic building in his honor. We extend our gratitude to everyone involved in the half-time music and festivities at the Charlevoix Reed City football game and the open house at the CHS cafeteria. A special thanks to the many people who called, sent cards, stopped to offer congratulations and shared in the celebrations. We sincerely appreciate all the countless hours of planning and preparation that went into making this weekend so special for Dad and his family.

Sincerely yours,
The family of Max Novak

Oh Boix

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments involving Charlevoix area people.

Christopher Michael Gibbons was awarded a Juris Doctor degree in Lansing, by Thomas M. Cooley Law School on September 18, 1993. Gibbons and his family attended the ceremony, where his academic accomplishments were noted, including his graduation cum laude status, his two appearances on the Dean's List, three appearances on the Honor Roll and the American Jurisprudence Award.

Gibbons is a Charlevoix native and a graduate of Charlevoix High School. He received his Bachelor of Arts Degree in English from Aquinas College and also appeared on the Dean's List at that institution. Gibbons is married to the former Kay Lynn Scharenbroch, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Scharenbroch.

Gibbons is the son of C. Marilyn Gibbons and the late Michael A. Gibbons of Charlevoix. Michael A. Gibbons was an attorney in private practice in Charlevoix from 1974 until his death at age 47 in 1985.

Gibbons now resides in Grand Rapids, where he is preparing for the Michigan Bar Examination.

obituaries

Elinor O'Neil

Elinor Z. O'Neil, 91, of Charlevoix, died Sept. 21, 1993, at Bortz Health Care of Petoskey.

A memorial service was held Thursday, Sept. 23, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton of the Community Church of God in Charlevoix will officiate. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

She was born Sept. 24, 1901, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Lewis and Rachel (Welch) Gravelin. She was a lifelong resident of Charlevoix.

She worked as a nurse at Charlevoix Hospital and Little Traverse Hospital. She was a member of the Charlevoix Rebekah Lodge.

She married Amos O'Neil and preceded her in death in 1953.

Survivors include two daughters,

Freda Pemberton and Edith Balch and her husband Kenneth; all of Charlevoix; three grandsons; six great-grandchildren; and six great-great-grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

There will be no visitation at the funeral home.

Madoline R. Graham

Madoline R. Graham, 90, of East Jordan, died Sept. 21, 1993, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Her funeral was Thursday, Sept. 23, at the East Jordan United Methodist Church with the Rev. Merlin K. Delo officiating. Burial will be in Sunset Hill Cemetery, East Jordan.

She was born Oct. 16, 1902, in Duluth, Minn., the daughter of Charles and Myrtle (VanHorn) Renwick.

She married Archie Graham on Dec. 24, 1923, in Brown City where the couple made their home. They moved to Echo Township in 1933 where they owned and operated a farm. Mr. Graham preceded her in death in 1989.

Mrs. Graham was a member of the East Jordan United Methodist Church; the Ladies' Get-Together Club of North Echo; and was a Gold Star Mother.

Survivors include two sons, James Graham and his wife Leona, and David Graham and his wife Evelyn; all of East Jordan; two daughters-in-law, Mrs. Clarence (Belvia) Tomga and Mrs. Carrie Graham, both of East Jordan; 15 grandchildren; 31 great-grandchildren; two great-great-grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Charlotte Clapsaddle of Alma; one brother, Arthur Thompson of East Jordan; and several nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by three sons, Angus John, Archie Junior and Cameron; and by one grandson, Richard.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Grandvue Medical Care Facility or to the East Jordan United Methodist Church. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth where friends may call from 2-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. today, Sept. 22.

Retired Charlevoix teacher's honors include a letter from former President, George Bush

In her retirement, Rogers continues to teach as a volunteer in Texas

(Editor's note: The following story was written for the Courier by Ralph McKee. McKee is a former mayor and city council member who continues to be active in a number of civic endeavors.)

By Ralph McKee
She has been a teacher for 62 of her 86 years. Jeannette Rogers is probably more familiar to her former Charlevoix third grade pupils, a group which numbers nearly 1,000, by her previous name, Mrs. Novotny. Rogers taught in the Charlevoix school system from 1944 through 1971, first in what is the present middle school building and later in the K-5 building. Eight of Rogers' former students are now teachers.

Rogers was raised in Newago and graduated from high school there. After graduating from Western Michigan College, her first teaching job was in a one-room schoolhouse in 1930. At that schoolhouse, she taught all eight grades.

Upon her retirement, Rogers decided she preferred a warmer climate and began spending winters in Texas. While in Texas, she lives in a large mobile home park near the communities of San Benito and Harlingen.

In Harlingen, Rogers once again became involved in teaching, this time on a part-time, volunteer basis with the HOSTS program. HOSTS is an acronym for Helping One Student To Succeed. The HOSTS program currently has branches in 16 states. HOSTS volunteer teachers work with students on a one-on-one basis. For the past 16 years, Rogers has spent her Monday mornings in Texas working with students between the ages of seven and 10, helping them to improve their basic elementary skills. One of Rogers' students was a little boy who had a deformed back. She took him to a Shriners' Hospital where he was treated successfully.

For the past eight years Rogers has been teaching adult immigrants how to pass tests necessary to acquire a Green Card. At first, she was teaching in high school classrooms with as many as 15 adults ranging in age from 18 to 65. Now she is teaching individual students at her home.

Near the Mexican border there are thousands of Mexican workers seeking either Green Cards or citizenship. Rogers teaches them about the U.S. Constitution and how the U.S. Government works. Immigration examinations are very rigid. Applicants are given six years to prepare. They are given temporary permits to stay in the country during that time. Mexican workers who are in the U.S. illegally can be sent back across the Rio Grande.

Not knowing too many Spanish words, Rogers relies on demonstrations and illustrations to get her messages across. She strongly believes that English should be the United States' only official language.

Rogers believes an education is a precious gift and she still loves to teach. In return, she receives grateful thanks from many successful students.

Last year she also received a letter of thanks from someone who wasn't one of her former students. Then President George Bush sent her a letter of personal commendation, praising her for her contributions and for making a positive difference in her community.

Home Tour raises $5,571 for hospital's new obstetrical unit

The record turnout of more than 900 people for the annual Beta Sigma Phi Charlevoix Home Tour realized more than $5,571 for the Charlevoix Area Hospital's new obstetrical unit.

The check was presented to Richard Krueger, Charlevoix Area Hospital president, to go toward furnishing of the new obstetrical rooms. The hospital's building and remodeling program, which is scheduled for completion in November includes an obstetrical unit based on the single-room concept of delivery. The unit, the first of its kind in northern Michigan, will overlook the water and the rooms, where the mother and baby will reside for their entire hospital stay, will be decorated in a homelike fashion. Proceeds from the Home Tour have been designated for the unit for the past two years.

Krueger said, "We very much appreciate the efforts of all the Beta Sigma Phi members. This contribution will go a long way toward making this a wonderful place for childbirth. We thank them all very much."

Five scholarships awarded to area students

Five scholarships were recently awarded to area students in the medical field.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild awarded four $400 scholarships to area health care students. The four students are Susan Healey, of Charlevoix, who is a graduate student in communication disorders at Bowling Green University; Tara King, of Boyne City, who is a physical therapy student at the University of Michigan; Wendy LaCroix, Boyne City, who is at Oakland University also majoring in physical therapy; and F. Dylan Stewart, of Charlevoix, who is a medical student at the University of Michigan.

Becki Strawderman, of Petoskey, is the recipient of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Nursing Scholarship. She is a second year student in the nursing program at North Central Michigan College and is working toward a B.S.N. degree. This scholarship is made available through contributions and is given annually to nursing students. It is for a total of $700.

United Way begins a new drive

The Charlevoix United Way Drive recently completed its 1992-93 fundraising drive, collecting more than $45,000 for area public service projects. Tuesday, Sept. 21 the United Way kicked off its 1993-94 drive with a meeting in the lower level of Stafford's Weather-vane Restaurant. Board members for this year's drive include (from left) Kathy Staton, Ellen Zienert, Jacqueline Merta and Nancy Rajewski.

Eastern Star meets and makes donations

Charlevoix Chapter #72 Order of the Eastern Star met recently for their September meeting. Honored guests were present from Elk Rapids Chapter, Evangeline Chapter of Boyne City, Marian Andrews, president of Meguzee District Association, from Pellston Chapter and Ella Gillian, Grand committee member from Beulah Chapter, Petoskey.

Before the meeting Eastern Stars and Masons and their families had a potluck dinner. The regular meeting followed. Marian Andrews gave an informative speech outlining the association's plans for the year. Money was donated to the following charities: Charlevoix Sports Boosters; and the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians to buy baby food for the needy. Grand Chapter charities awarded money were: relief fund and educational fund.

Initiation followed with Richard Wolfe joining the order. Mrs. Gillian from the Grand Chapter presented Richard Wolfe, Kay Harper, and Richard Foster with bibles as gifts from Grand Chapter. The three were also presented with rituals from the Charlevoix Chapter.

All past matrons and past patrons were honored by the worthy matron and presented gifts of American flag pins, one of her symbols from her year.

Delegates Esther and Tom Carey, Carla Spencer and Robert Kelley will be attending Grand Chapter in October at Kalamazoo, Michigan.

Local Eastern Star delegates to attend state meeting

The "Magnificent Michigan" session of the Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star of Michigan will take place Oct. 12-14 at Wings Stadium in Kalamazoo. This will be Michigan's 127th annual session.

Approximately 3,000 delegates and members from more than 300 chapters in Michigan will be in attendance along with visitors from chapters throughout the United States and Canada.

The Most Worthy Grand Matron, Virginia Painter of McHenry, Illinois and the Most Worthy Grand Patron, Ray G. Osborne of Nashville, Tennessee, of the General Grand Chapter, will be making an official visit.

Local delegates from Charlevoix Chapter #72 attending will be, Esther Carey, Worthy Matron; Thomas Carey, Worthy Patron; Carla Spencer, Associate Matron; and Robert Kelley, Associate Patron. Others from the Chapter attending will be Anne Hufford, Dorothea Kelley, Janada Chingwa and Hazel Rehkopf.

Last year's records show more than $200,000 given to charities through Michigan's Grand Chapter in addition to more than $55,000 given to charities by local chapters.

Local charity projects were: Charlevoix Senior Class Safe Party; Jackie Marsh fund; flag pole and flag to Charlevoix Girl Scouts; Charlevoix Hospital building fund; Senior Center building fund; Charlevoix Sports Boosters; Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians for baby food; Heart Start fund in Charlevoix; pantry staples to Women's Resource Safe House.

Grand Chapter projects were: General Fund $200 in lieu of raffle; every member project 100 percent; Relief Fund $300 and Educational Fund $200.

The Charlevoix Chapter has been very busy raising money through breakfasts, Masonic dinners, hot dog stands and a rummage sale.

Middle School works on new program for sixth graders

By Laurie Lounsbury
When fifth graders make the transition from the cozy, secure environs of the elementary school to the fast-paced life of sixth grade in the middle school, the culture shock often sends them into an adolescent tailspin. With the help of the Middle School Concept, sixth grade teachers and principal Dennis Van Guilder are hoping to ease the transition for new middle school students.

The Middle School Concept came from a study issued by the Carnegie Foundation. The study makes recommendations on changes in the middle school that will address the specific needs of the varying ages of middle school children. An 11 year old sixth grader has considerably different needs than a 14 year old eighth grader.

Sixth graders no longer need to hit the ground running as soon as they enter the school doors each morning. Their daily schedule has been revised to include 20 minutes of homeroom time before they start in on their specific classes. Their homeroom teacher will act as their advisor throughout the school year. The homeroom time will provide students with a secure place to call their own. Before this year, sixth graders arrived at school and promptly started making the rounds of their different classes, with no one classroom being a homeroom for them.

Another new aspect of the Middle School Concept is that the sixth grade teachers will be acting as a team. They meet during their conference time to discuss each other's weekly plans. Rather than following the bells that ring at regular intervals, the teachers can share class time with one another, depending on their needs. If a social studies teacher is planning a short quiz and the science teacher would like to do an hour long experiment, the two teachers can shape the length of their class periods to meet their plans.

Van Guilder said that the sixth grade teachers are all very enthusiastic about the program. He added that although team teaching doesn't come naturally to teachers, "They're all chomping at the bit to try it."

The program is being tried as a pilot program. Van Guilder is optimistic about it. "You've only failed if you've failed to try," he said.

have mechanical skills and own your own toolbox. Kraft argued that requiring mechanical skills for the job would imply that a bus driver would be expected to use those skills in the field. Commissioner chairman Don Smith noted Kraft's other complaints and problems during his 13 year employment and asked Kraft, "Are you sure this wasn't the straw that broke the camel's back?"

The commissioners reviewed Kraft's case and no motion was made to overturn the personnel committee's decision. Kraft's parting words to the board of commissioners were, "Thank you for your time. You'll be hearing from my lawyers."

The salmon are coming into the creek and slip near Medusa at the end of Lakeshore Drive. The weir was filling with fish during the weekend and fish could frequently be seen jumping at the upstream end of the weir. Numerous cars, trucks and travel trailers have been parked in the turn-around near the boat launching ramp. According to fishermen, they weren't catching much, but things have begun to pick up a bit in the past few days.

It's nearing flu season, and this year's version is a nasty one

The "flu" (influenza) usually hits from November through April, however, January, February, and March are the worst months. Some flu experts predict that the 1993-94 flu season may be a bad one. The good news is the new flu strain was caught early enough for scientists to incorporate it into this fall's flu vaccine.

The flu vaccine (shot) can help prevent the flu. The shot should be given to the elderly and people with health problems who might get very sick or die from the flu. People who take care of high risk people should also get the vaccine. The vaccine may be helpful for anyone who doesn't want to get the flu or be off sick from work.

High risk people are:

1. Adults and children with long term heart or lung problems needing regular visits to a doctor.
2. Residents of nursing homes and other institutions housing persons of any age with serious long term health problems.
3. Healthy people age 65 years or older.
4. People of any age who during the past year have regularly seen a doctor for treatment of illnesses such as kidney disease, cystic fibrosis, diabetes, anemia ("low blood"), or asthma.
5. People who have a type of cancer or immunological disorder (or use certain types of medicines) that lowers the body's normal resistance to infections.

6. Children and teenagers (6 months through 18 years of age) who must use aspirin. They might be at risk for Reye's Syndrome if they get the flu.

Most people have no problems with the flu shot, and the vaccine does not cause the flu. A common side effect is soreness for a day or two at the spot where the shot was given. Sometimes fever or achiness for one or two days may happen. Allergic or more serious reactions could occur after the shot but are not common. People with a history of allergic reactions to flu vaccine, chicken eggs, or to any component of the vaccine, should call their doctor first for evaluation. Do not receive the shot until the evaluation is done. People who have been paralyzed with Guillain-Barre Syndrome, are pregnant, or are ill with a fever should call their doctor first before asking for the shot.

Good News! Medicare will pay for the flu vaccination for Medicare eligible persons this year. If your provider does not bill Medicare directly, you may request a receipt and submit the cost of the vaccine to Medicare yourself.

Flu vaccinations are available from your family physician and again this year at District Health Department No. 3 sponsored Commissions of Aging Flu Clinics in your local community. If you have any questions or concerns, call District Health Department No. 3 at 547-6523 or 1-800-551-4140.

Rayder girls basketball team pounds Grayling

Charlevoix's varsity girls' basketball team clobbered Grayling 63-39 in a Saturday evening match-up on the Rayders' home court. The Rayders took a lead in the first quarter, held it through the second and third quarters and blew the game open in the final quarter.

At the end of the first quarter, Charlevoix led 13-7. The Rayders used a fullcourt defense, which resulted in a fast-paced game which the Rayders found to their liking.

In the second quarter Charlevoix led by as much as 11 points, but late in the quarter Grayling chipped away at the lead and at one point got to within six points. Neither team played particularly well in the latter part of the quarter and sloppy ballhandling resulted in several turnovers. The half ended with Charlevoix leading 29-22.

In the third quarter, Charlevoix again extended their lead to 11 points. As a team, the Rayders rebounded well in the quarter. Senior forward Becky Bragg and Melissa Anderson both did a nice job of working for good rebounding position and then going after the ball when it came off the rim. Entering the fourth quarter, Charlevoix led 42-31.

Charlevoix dominated the fourth quarter. While Rayder guards Angela Buday, Jill Dreyer and Liz Kelly harassed the Vikings into turnovers, Rayder wings Liz Grunch and Jamie Doan handled the ball well and kept the Rayder offense composed. Rayder center Shannon Rowell continued to be a bright spot in the Rayders' offense. In recent games she's shown some much stronger moves while shooting in the paint and has also rewarded cutting forwards with some excellent passes.

The win raised the Rayders' season record to 3-4 after beginning the season with three losses.

This Thursday evening Charlevoix will be at home against East Jordan.

Girls' basketball clinic and alumni game to take place Saturday

The Charlevoix Women's Basketball Alumni Association will host a basketball clinic Saturday Oct. 2 at the high school gym from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Laurie Hyman, head coach at Ferris State University will be the guest speaker. Cost is $10 per player.

At 7 p.m. the same evening there will be an Alumni game. The old ladies will see if they can run with or out shoot the younger alumni. The late '70s and early '80s vs. the rest. All proceeds will go to summer basketball camp scholarships for the girls' program.

Jamie Doan (30) takes a shot in the second half of Charlevoix's 63-39 win over Grayling Saturday.

Varsity football team picks up season's first win 27-13

By L. Scott Swanson

It took four games, but Charlevoix finally got that ugly round mark out of their win column and replaced it with a 1. Behind an improved defense and a more balanced offense the Rayders beat Grayling 27-13 Friday evening at Kipke Field.

Charlevoix started the game off on the right foot as David Skeel returned the opening kick-off nearly 70 yards to the Grayling 16 yard line. The key block in the return was the block that wasn't made. As Skeel crossed midfield, he was being escorted down the sidelines by teammate Bryan Jaroma. A Grayling player worked in behind Skeel with his back to Jaroma who was just a step behind in prime position to throw a block and pick up a clipping penalty. Fortunately, Jaroma did the smart thing and resisted the urge to throw an illegal block. The block not thrown was good for 30 yards, allowing Skeel to carry the ball another 15 yards ahead rather than forcing the referee to carry it 15 yards back.

Both teams were unimpressive on offense in the first quarter. Charlevoix's first drive began at the Grayling 16, but went nowhere as the Rayders failed to move and gave up the ball on downs. The remainder of the quarter was marred by fumbles. Grayling's first drive ended on a fumble at their own 32 yard line with Charlevoix defensive lineman Geoff Sheldon recovering. Charlevoix promptly returned the favor, fumbling at the Grayling 10. Following a Grayling punt, the Rayders had the ball deep in their own end. Rayder coach Roger Gowell, who was on the head-phones conferring with a coach in the press box, suspected he might catch the Grayling safety rotating out of position and called for a pass deep down the middle to the Rayder fullback. The play worked just as planned and was good for a 32-yard gain. Unfortunately, it ended with another fumble which Grayling recovered.

Grayling took over the ball in good field position, but the Rayder defense again rose to the occasion, forcing the Viking offense to punt after three plays. Despite the stellar play of the Rayder defense, Charlevoix's offense still wasn't on track and also went three plays and out.

With time winding down in the second quarter, Grayling was beginning to move the ball. But just as the Vikings began to develop momentum, they fumbled again and Rayder defensive end Matt Miller covered it.

With 44 seconds left in the half, Charlevoix scored on a six yard pass from Don Jess to Chris Pair. Robbie Stradtner kicked the extra point to give the Rayders a 7-0 lead at the half.

Early in the third quarter Grayling tied the game, scoring on a four yard sweep and kicking the extra point.

Charlevoix went ahead to stay with 41 seconds left in the third quarter. Throughout the first three games of the season, the Rayders had practically no offensive production from the wide receivers. Against Grayling, it was a different story. Receivers Chris Pair and Josh Watrous caught a series of short out passes. Those passes set up the go-ahead touchdown in the third quarter. With the defensive back pulled up to defend against the short pass, Pair beat him deep and caught the 17 yard touchdown pass from Jess. Stradtner again kicked the extra point.

With 10:15 left in the fourth quarter, Grayling was driving when the Grayling quarterback pass floated a pass over the head of his intended receiver. Rayder defensive back Brandon Webb intercepted the pass and took it back 65 yards for a touchdown. Stradtner's extra point kick put the Rayders up 21-7.

With 5:28 left in the game, Grayling scored on a 22 yard pass. Rayder linebacker Keith Parish blocked the extra point kick and Charlevoix held the lead at 21-13.

Prior to sending the offense on to the field, Gowell advised Jess to be conscious of the clock and to try to run some time. In a drive which certainly ranks among their most impressive of the season, the Rayder offense ran the ball successfully and drained the clock. Webb scored on a 20 yard run on the game's final play, but by that time the game was already in the bag.

In terms of individual statistics, Webb finished with 16 carries for 65 yards. Jerry Duhart had 13 carries for 52 yards and David Skeel had 7 carries for 28 yards. Pair had three catches for 34 yards. Defensively, Gregg Holmes had seven solo tackles and one assist. Parish had five solos and one assist. Duhart had six solo tackles, five assists and a sack.

The win improved Charlevoix's season record to 1-3 while dropping Grayling to 1-3. This Friday evening Charlevoix will travel to Elk Rapids.

Chris Pair reaches out and hauls in this reception Friday evening. Pair and his fellow Rayder receivers had their best game of the season against Grayling.

Boys cross country team wins

The Charlevoix boys' cross country team continued its winning ways Saturday, taking first place in the 11th and 12th grade Class C & D division at the Petoskey Optimist-McDonald's Cross Country Invitational.

The Charlevoix team totaled 45 points. Second place Benzie Central had 81 points.

Mike Bush led the Rayders, placing second overall with a time of 16:42, seven seconds behind Brock McNeil of Suttons Bay. Matt Dickinson of Charlevoix finished third, a scant second behind Bush.

Other Charlevoix places and times in the boys' race were: 10-Josh Dhaseler, 18:15; 14-Chris LeButt, 18:27; 16-Paul Henne, 18:41; 20-Scott Campbell, 18:47; 21-Zach Pajtas, 19:09; 27-James Conlan, 19:53; 29-Drew Laucher, 20:12; 36-Bryan Liotta, 21:24; 45-Stevie Crook, 22:38.

In the girls' race Becca Chamberlain of Charlevoix placed fourth and the Rayders also placed fourth as a team. Chamberlain turned in a time of 21:22, approximately a minute and a half behind the winner.

Other finishes and times for the Rayder girls were:

24-Lisa Hoadley, 23:46; 34-Bethany Martinus, 26:08; 36-Kaylee Manker, 26:30; 40-Tracy Boyer, 27:18; 42-Callie Siwarga, 27:32; 54-Amy Pfuecke, 29:07; 57-Betsy Wakulat, 29:40.

Charlevoix's next race will be Saturday, Oct. 2 at the Carson City

Hugh Mayne wins first Courier football contest

Hugh Mayne won last week's Charlevoix Courier football contest, correctly calling nine of ten games. Mike Webb also had nine of ten picked correctly, but Mayne came closer on the total number of points in the tie-breaker game. For winning the contest, Mayne will receive a free six-month subscription to the Charlevoix Courier.

Courier picks for the coming week

Last week, the Courier predictions were 6-4. Boy talk about ugly. But hey, there are just some quirks of fate that are tough to call. San Francisco's defense gives up a drive that leads to a last second Morton Anderson game-winner. Who'd have suspected it? Traverse City St. Francis gets road sick or something and loses to Muskegon Catholic. I'm supposed to see that coming? And Charlevoix; yes, the Rayders, well, more about that later. This week it's a whole new ball game.

Charlevoix at Elk Rapids: All right, all right, all right already! So just call me humbled. I picked Charlevoix to lose last week and what happens? For the first time this year the receivers bring real hands to the game and the defensive line stuffs Grayling's running game. OK, so I start the season 0-1 picking Charlevoix games. But then I've seen worse starts. (For some reason the numbers 0-3 come to mind.) Not that I'm a true believer just yet, but let's say this year's Rayder team is beginning to come around. Pick - Charlevoix.

Sault Ste. Marie at Petoskey: Petoskey isn't having a great year, but this week they've got the home field advantage. Pick - Petoskey.

Iowa at Michigan: Iowa frequently gives Michigan trouble, but trouble or not U of M will win. Pick - Michigan.

Notre Dame at Stanford: Stanford simply isn't all that good this year. Pick - Notre Dame.

Illinois at Purdue: In a conference with U of M, Ohio State and

Penn State this just isn't a game where the conference title will be on the line. Pick - Purdue.

Detroit at Tampa Bay: Even though Tampa Bay has a record of something like 0 and forever, this won't be as easy as you might think. But Detroit should still squeak through. Pick - Detroit.

Green Bay at Dallas: Green Bay is an improving team. Dallas; on the other hand, is a team which has already improved and now is good. Pick - Dallas.

L.A. Raiders at Kansas City: This match-up could go either way.

It's going out on a limb a bit, but take L.A. Pick - L.A. Raiders.

Boston College at Syracuse: Not that either of these Eastern teams could hold their own against a good Midwestern team, but paired up against each other they're competitive. Pick - Boston College.

ORDINANCE NO. 607
AN ORDINANCE TO ADOPT REGULATIONS AND PROCEDURES FOR BASIC CABLE TV RATE REGULATION
THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

Section 1. Definitions. For purposes of this Ordinance, "Act" shall mean the Communications Act of 1934, as amended (and specifically as amended by the Cable Television Consumer and Competition Act of 1992, Pub. L. 102-385), and as may be amended from time to time; "FCC" shall mean the Federal Communications Commission; "FCC Rules" shall mean all the rules of the FCC promulgated from time to time pursuant to the Act; "basic cable service" shall mean "basic service" as defined in the FCC Rules; and any other cable television service which is subject to rate regulation by the City pursuant to the Act and the FCC Rules; "associated equipment" shall mean all equipment and services subject to regulation pursuant to 47 CFR § 76.923; and an "increase" in rates shall mean an increase in rates or a decrease in programming or customer services. All other words and phrases used in this Ordinance shall have the same meaning as defined in the Act and FCC Rules.

Section 2. Purpose: Interpretation. The purpose of this Ordinance is to: 1) adopt regulations consistent with the Act and the FCC Rules with respect to basic cable service rate regulation; and 2) prescribe procedures to provide a reasonable opportunity for consideration of the views of interested parties in connection with basic cable service rate regulation by the City. This Ordinance shall be implemented and interpreted consistent with the Act and FCC Rules.

Section 3. Rate Regulations Promulgated by FCC. In connection with the regulation of rates for basic cable service and associated equipment, the City of Charlevoix shall follow all FCC Rules.

Section 4. Filing: Additional Information: Burden of Proof.

(a) A cable operator shall submit its schedule of rates for the basic service tier and associated equipment or a proposed increase in such rates in accordance with the Act and the FCC Rules. The cable operator shall include as part of its submission such information as is necessary to show that its schedule of rates or its proposed increase in rates complies with the Act and the FCC Rules. The cable operator shall file ten (10) copies of the schedule or proposed increase with the City Clerk. For purposes of this Ordinance, the filing of the cable operator shall be deemed to have been made when at least ten (10) copies have been received by the City Clerk. The City Clerk may, by resolution or otherwise, adopt rules and regulations prescribing the information, date and calculations which must be included as part of the cable operator's filing of the schedule of rates or a proposed increase.

(b) In addition to information and data required by rules and regulations of the City pursuant to Section 4(a) above, a cable operator shall provide all information requested by the City Manager in connection with the City's review and regulation of existing rates for the basic service tier and associated equipment or a proposed increase in these rates. The City Manager may establish deadlines for submission of the requested information and the cable operator shall comply with such deadlines.

(c) A cable operator has the burden of proving that its schedule of rates for the basic service tier and associated equipment or a proposed increase in such rates complies with the Act and the FCC Rules including, without limitation, 47 USC § 549 and 47 CFR §§ 76.922 and 76.923.

Section 5. Proprietary Information.

(a) If this Ordinance, any rules or regulations adopted by the City pursuant to Section 4(a), or any request for information pursuant to Section 4(b) requires the production of proprietary information, the cable operator shall produce the information. However, at the time the allegedly proprietary information is submitted, a cable operator may request that specific, identified portions of its response be treated as confidential and withheld from public disclosure. The request must state the reason why the information should be treated as proprietary and the facts that support those reasons. The request for confidentiality will be granted if the City determines that the preponderance of the evidence shows that non-disclosure is consistent with the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. § 552. The City shall place in a public file for inspection any decision that results in information being withheld. If the cable operator requests confidentiality and the request is denied, (1) where the cable operator is proposing a rate increase, it may withdraw the proposal, in which case the allegedly proprietary information will be returned to it; or (2) the cable operator may seek review within five working days of the denial in any appropriate forum. Release of the information will be stayed pending review.

(b) Any interested party may file a request to inspect material withheld as proprietary with the City. The City shall weigh the policy considerations favoring non-disclosure against the reasons cited for permitting inspection in light of the facts of the particular case. It will then promptly notify the requesting entity and the cable operator that submitted the information as to the disposition of the request. It may grant, deny or condition the request. The requesting party or the cable operator may seek review of the decision by filing an appeal with any appropriate forum. Disclosure will be stayed pending resolution of any appeal.

(c) The procedures set forth in this section shall be construed as analogous to and consistent with the rules of the FCC regarding requests for confidentiality including, without limitation, 47 CFR § 0.495.

Section 6. Public Notice: Initial Review of Rates. Upon the filing of ten (10) copies of the schedule of rates or the proposed increase in rates pursuant to Section 4(a) above, the City Clerk shall publish a public notice in a newspaper of general circulation in the City which shall state that: 1) the filing has been received by the City Clerk and (except those parts which may be withheld as proprietary) is available for public inspection and copying; and 2) interested parties are encouraged to submit written comments on the filing to the City Clerk not later than seven (7) days after the public notice is published. The City Clerk shall give notice to the cable operator of the date, time, and place of the meeting at which the City Council shall first consider the schedule of rates or the proposed increase. This notice shall be mailed by first-class mail at least three (3) days before the meeting. In addition, if a written staff or consultant's report on the schedule of rates or the proposed increase is prepared for consideration of the City Council, then the City Clerk shall mail a copy of the report by first-class mail to the cable operator at least three (3) days before the meeting at which the City Council shall first consider the schedule of rates or the proposed increase.

Section 7. Tolling Order. After a cable operator has filed its existing schedule of rates or a proposed increase in these rates, the existing schedule of rates will remain in effect or the proposed increase in rates will become effective after thirty (30) days from the date of filing under Section 4(a) above unless the City Council or other properly authorized body or official tolls the thirty (30) day deadline pursuant to 47 CFR § 76.933 by issuing a brief written order, by resolution or otherwise, within thirty (30) days of the date of filing. The City Council may toll the thirty (30) day deadline for an additional 90 days in cases not involving cost-of-service showings and for an additional 150 days in cases involving cost-of-service showings.

Section 8. Public Notice: Hearing on Basic Cable Service Rates Following Tolling of 30-Day Deadline. If a written order has been issued pursuant to Section 7 and 47 CFR § 76.933 to toll the effective date of existing rates for the basic service tier and associated equipment or a proposed increase in these rates, the cable operator shall submit to the City any additional information required or requested pursuant to Section 4 of this Ordinance. In addition, the City Council shall hold a public hearing to consider the comments of interested parties within the additional 90 day or 150 day period, as the case may be. The City Clerk shall publish a public notice of the public hearing in a newspaper of general circulation within the City which shall state 1) the date, time, and place at which the hearing shall be held; 2) interested parties may appear in person, by agent, or by letter at such hearing to submit comments on or objections to the existing rates of the proposed increase in rates; and 3) copies of the schedule of rates of the proposed increase in rates and related information (except those parts which may be withheld as proprietary) are available for inspection or copying from the office of the Clerk. The public notice shall be published not less than fifteen (15) days before the hearing. In addition, the City Clerk shall mail by first-class mail a copy of the public notice to the cable operator not less than fifteen (15) days before the hearing.

Section 9. Staff or Consultant Report: Written Response. Following the public hearing, the City Manager shall cause a report to be prepared for the City Council which shall be based on the filing of the cable operator, the comments or objections of interested parties, information requested from the cable operator and its response, staff or consultant's review, and other appropriate information include a recommendation for the decision of the City Council pursuant to Section 10. The City Clerk shall mail a copy of the report to the cable operator by first-class mail not less than twenty (20) days before the City Council acts under Section 10. The cable operator may file a written response to the report with the City Clerk. It at least ten (10) copies of the response are filed by the cable operator with the City Clerk within ten (10) days after the report is mailed to the cable operator, the City Clerk shall forward it to the City Council.

Section 10. Rate Decisions and Orders. The City Council shall issue a written order, by resolution or otherwise, which in whole or in part: approves the existing rates for basic cable service and associated equipment or a proposed increase in such rates, denies the existing rates or proposed increase, orders a rate reduction, prescribes a reasonable rate, allows the existing rates or proposed increase to become effective subject to refund, or orders other appropriate relief, in accordance with the FCC Rules. If the City Council issues an order allowing the existing rates or proposed increase to become effective subject to refund, it shall also direct the cable operator to maintain an accounting pursuant to 47 CFR § 76.933. The order specified in this Section shall be issued within 90 days of the tolling order under Section 7 in all cases not involving a cost-of-service showing. The order shall be issued within 150 days after the tolling order under Section 7 in all cases involving cost-of-service showing.

Section 11. Refunds: Notice. The City Council may order a refund to subscribers as provided in 47 CFR § 76.942. Before the City Council orders any refund to subscribers, the City Clerk shall give at least seven (7) days written notice to the cable operator by first-class mail of the date, time, and place at which the City Council shall consider issuing a refund order and shall provide an opportunity for the cable operator to comment. The cable operator may appear in person, by agent, or by letter at such time for the purpose of submitting comments to the City Council.

Section 12. Written Decisions: Public Notice. Any order of the City Council pursuant to Section 10 or Section 11 shall be in writing, shall be effective upon adoption by the City Council, and shall be deemed released to the public upon adoption. The Clerk shall publish a public notice of any such written order in a newspaper of general circulation within the City which shall: 1) summarize the written decision, and 2) state that copies of the text of the written decision are available for inspection or copying from the office of the Clerk. In addition, the City Clerk shall mail a copy of the text of the written decision of the cable operator by first-class mail.

Section 13. Rules and Regulations. In addition to rules promulgated pursuant to Section 4, the City Council may, by resolution or otherwise, adopt rules and regulations for basic cable service rate regulation proceedings (including, without limitation, the conduct of hearings), consistent with the Act and the FCC Rules.

Section 14. Failure to Give Notice. The failure of the City Clerk to give notices or to mail copies of reports as required by this Ordinance shall not invalidate the decisions or proceedings of the City Council.

Section 15. Additional Hearings. In addition to the requirements of this Ordinance, the City Council may hold additional public hearings upon such reasonable notice as the City Council, in its sole discretion, shall prescribe.

Section 16. Additional Powers. The City shall possess all powers conferred by the Act, the FCC Rules, the cable operator's franchise, and all other applicable law. The powers exercised pursuant to the Act, the FCC Rules, and this Ordinance shall be in addition to powers conferred by law or otherwise. The City may take any action not prohibited by the Act and the FCC Rules to protect the public interest in connection with basic cable service rate regulation.

Section 17. Failure to Comply: Remedies. The City may pursue any and all legal and equitable remedies against the cable operator (including, without limitation, all remedies provided under a cable operator's franchise with the City) for failure to comply with the Act, the FCC Rules, any orders or determinations of the City pursuant to this Ordinance, any requirements of this Ordinance, or any rules or regulations promulgated hereunder. Subject to applicable law, failure to comply with the Act, the FCC Rules, any orders or determinations of the City pursuant to this Ordinance, any requirements of this Ordinance, or any rules and regulations promulgated hereunder, shall also be sufficient grounds for revocation or denial of renewal of a cable operator's franchise.

Section 18. Severability. The various parts, sections, and clauses of this Ordinance are hereby declared to be severable. If any part, sentence, paragraph, section or clause is adjudged unconstitutional or invalid by a court of competent jurisdiction, the remainder of the Ordinance shall not be affected thereby.

Section 19. Conflicting Provisions. In the event of any conflict between this Ordinance and the provisions of any prior ordinance or any franchise, permit, consent agreement or other agreement with a cable operator, then the provisions of this Ordinance shall control.

Section 20. Effective Date. This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its enactment.

Ordinance No. 607 was hereby adopted with the following yeas and nays vote:
Yeas: Councilmembers Hoffman, Russell, Cross, Livingston, Meggison & Felter

Economic Alliance sponsors seminar for local companies to expand exports Companies looking to expand their product markets internationally are invited to attend an exporting seminar Wednesday, Oct. 6, sponsored by the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance.

"Expanding into international markets will increase company sales and profits," said Thomas Johnson, Director of the Economic Alliance. "This seminar is designed to provide the basics of starting a successful export operation."

Presenter Ed Christie, International Trade Specialist from the U.S. and Foreign Commercial Services, will discuss marketing abroad, letters of credit, freight forwarders, customs house brokers, export licenses, licensing agreements, pricing strategies, how to manage your export activities and assistance available from the U.S. Government.

"Exporting is not difficult but you have to be willing to learn the procedures," Johnson said. "Many Northern Michigan businesses have already joined the world market. We are offering this introductory seminar so that more local companies can get involved in the global marketplace."

The program will be from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the library conference center, North Central Michigan College, Petoskey. Pre-registration is required. For more information, call Tom Johnson at 582-6482.

in the school system. Well, three years ago there were 1,283, two years ago there were 1,300 and last year there were 1,324. This year's fourth Friday count (that's the day when the official count is taken) will be this coming Friday.

Some real bright spots in the report are the statistics for parental involvement, particularly at the elementary and middle school levels, drop out rate and student attendance. Last year the percentage of parents who participated in at least one parent/teacher conference was 97 percent in the elementary school and 91 percent in the middle school, but dropped off to 62 percent in the high school. The drop-out rate for the Charlevoix school system is 2.14 percent. Student attendance is at 95 percent on a regular basis.

The reports not only indicate that the kids are at school, but they also offer some insight into what the kids are being taught and how well they're learning what they're being taught.

In recent years the school system has been in the process of overhauling and updating various aspects of the school curriculum. A chart on the third page of the school system report shows the status of different areas of study. For example the math and science curriculum revisions have been completed with the revisions incorporated into the educational program last year. Social studies curriculum revisions are being incorporated this year. Health, physical education and art curriculum revisions will go on line next year. Language arts revisions are targeted to be in place in 1995 and business and industrial technology revisions are targeted for 1996. By then it will be time for another major evaluation and revision of the math program.

As Jackson explains, the process the school is going through are ongoing, they are "not something you do and are done."

School personnel make a more detailed analysis of test scores, but even the average person picking up the school report and looking at the test scores can draw a few conclusions. The report shows Charlevoix test scores for the ACT (college entrance) test, the MET (a national test) and the MEAP (a state test).

The ACT test is taken by juniors and seniors. Compared to the national average, in 1990 Charlevoix High School scores were a bit above average. In 1991 they were average and in 1992 they were once again slightly above average.

The MET test uses the numbers 1 through 9 to rank students in various subjects. Scores of 1, 2 and 3 are considered below average. Scores of 4, 5 and 6 are considered average and scores of 7, 8 and 9 are considered above average. The vast majority of the Charlevoix scores are 5s and 6s. A few 7s show up, particularly in fifth and sixth grade science. The layman's conclusion is that apparently something is going right in Charlevoix science classes, either at those grade levels or at the grade levels immediately preceding fifth and sixth grade.

The MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program) test

covers reading, mathematics and science. It is taken by students in the fourth, seventh and tenth grades. Scores on the report indicate that Charlevoix students score relatively high in science, particularly at the fourth and seventh grade levels, but don't perform as well in math, particularly at the fourth and tenth grade levels although they do bump up at the seventh grade level.

Council agenda change draws public comments

By L. Scott Swanson

It wasn't so much what was on the agenda, but the location of what was on the agenda that caused comment at Monday evening's city council meeting. The "Public Comments" section, which in the past has been near the front of the agenda was moved to the end of the agenda. The move drew criticism from some members of the audience who frequently make comments during the public comments portion of the meeting.

Bob Timms, a former council member who is challenging incumbent Cheri Hoffman for a first ward council seat in the November election, asked whose idea it was to move public comments to the end of the agenda and why it was done. Mayor Dave Novotny said several people had suggested the move and it was done so that people who have other business before the council don't have to sit around for an hour and a half before the council gets to their business.

Timms claimed that he feels some people would just as soon have no public comment and that moving public comments to the back of the agenda is "kind of short-changing the public." Timms added that he feels it is good for people who come to council meetings for some specific reason to be exposed to the workings of the city.

When Timms asked if any of the councilmembers had an opinion on the matter, Hoffman said she doesn't have a problem with where the public comments section appears on the agenda as long as it is there and the public has an opportunity to comment.

Do business and marriage mix? Local couples find they do

By Laurie Lounsbury

Trust. Equality. Respect. These are desirable qualities in a business partner. These are fundamentally necessary qualities in a business partner when the partner is also your spouse. Charlevoix boasts quite a few businesses where a husband and wife work together in a family owned and operated business. Sometimes it's for economic reasons. Sometimes it's a pooling of their different talents to achieve a mutual goal. And sometimes it's because the couple truly enjoys spending time together doing something they both love.

Whatever the reasons couples end up in business together, it's apparent in the three couples interviewed that trust, equality and respect are key ingredients to the success of their business and the stability of their marriage.

When Sue Bartlett received a master's degree in reading, it probably wasn't her long range plan to run a home decorating center. Her marriage to Bruce Bartlett brought her into the family decorating business eight years ago. Bartlett's has been a family owned and operated business for 43 years. Bruce Bartlett Sr. has retired from running the business, leaving that job to his son and daughter-in-law. Sue stepped in and quickly filled the job of running the front end of the business, which includes furniture sales and interior design. Husband Bruce handles the contracting and mechanical end of the business. Their areas of domain often overlap, with the two of them making joint business decisions.

As the two discuss the challenges of running a business together, their eyes meet often, giving one another a look of support or approval of what the other has just said. Bruce unhesitatingly admits that Sue possesses the organizational skills in the family. "She's on me all the time trying to regulate my schedule," he said, turning to smile at her. They talk about making furniture selections for the showroom. Bruce usually defers to Sue, trusting her taste and sense of style. Sue, in turn, speaks glowingly of Bruce's skills in the building and contracting aspects of the business. "Bruce is so unusual because he knows all the facets of the business," she said.

They both admit that being in business can put a strain on their personal life. Sue has no difficulty leaving the job behind when she comments section of the agenda, told Novotny that it was her understanding that moving public comments to the end of the agenda was an effort to silence her. She indicated that if that is the case, it won't work.

In other matters the council:

- *Extended the contract deadline for the demolition of the old city light plant by 20 days.
- *Approved an electric department purchase of 10,500 feet of electric cable at a cost of $22,323.
- *Approved an increase in the city clerk's salary from $7,000 to $8,000 while leaving the compensation for council members and the mayor at their present levels.
- *Went into closed session to discuss contract negotiations with the Communication Workers of America union.

Police investigate vandalism of windows

Charlevoix County Sheriff's deputies and Charlevoix City Police officers are investigating approximately 30 incidents of window breaking which occurred this past weekend in the city of Charlevoix and surrounding townships. According to a sheriff's department deputy it appears that vandals used a variety of projectiles such as BBs and stones to break windows. The sheriff's department received complaints Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Damage involved homes, businesses, vehicles, security lights and Charlevoix High School. Although there has been no official estimate of damage costs, the figure is likely to be in the thousands of dollars. The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce is offering a reward of $250 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the vandals.

According to City Police Chief Dennis Halverson it appears the damage did not all occur at one time. Some occurred Friday night, some Saturday and some Sunday. Police are in the process of pinning down specific times for specific locations. For example, police presently suspect that damage to the Wharfside Market building occurred between 8:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Sunday evening.

Editorial

Change in council agenda makes sense, but closed meetings should also be changed

In a maneuver which makes quite a bit of sense, the city council has moved the "Public Comments" section of council agendas from the beginning of the agenda to the end.

Historically, or at least for the past several years, the public comments portion of city council meetings has often been quite lengthy. Charlevoix has long been a politically contentious community (i.e. there are a lot of people in this town who don't mind arguing about stuff). And that's all right. There's nothing wrong with members of the public taking a few minutes at a public meeting to ask questions or offer either praise or criticism. If we are going to be a government of the people, it's important for people to be active and informed. And it's important for government officials to realize they're going to be held publicly accountable for their actions. That said, it's also important for members of the public to realize that asking questions at public meetings is something that should be done for the purpose of soliciting information, not for the purpose of making lightly veiled innuendos.

People who make comments at public meetings should also bear in mind that for the most part local elected officials generally do what they feel is in the best interest of the community. However, it's perfectly possible for two intelligent people to have different ideas as to what is in the community's best interest. If you're a member of the public and you feel elected officials are mistaken in their judgement on a particular matter as to what is in the community's best interest, there's nothing wrong with politely pointing that out during public comments at a public meeting. But it's also important to remember that the way to change the direction of government is not by endless verbal sparring at public meetings. The way to change government is through the elective process. If you don't like the job the incumbent is doing, then either seek office yourself or find someone with views more in harmony with your own and support their candidacy and vote them into office. It's the American way.

While it is important for public comment to be allowed at a meeting, it is not necessary for audience members who have no interest in hearing what is said during public comments to be forced to sit and listen to them. Many people have business before the council which is not related to public comments. These people should be allowed to do their business and go home. On many occasions these people have been forced to sit and twiddle their thumbs while listening to things which don't interest them in the least. It is nothing more than common courtesy to allow these people to do their business and go home to their families. If they're interested in staying and listening to, or even participating in, public comments after completing their business, they're welcome to. But there's just no need to hold them as a captive audience.

Although the council was right in moving public comments back in the agenda, it doesn't necessarily need to be at the very end of the agenda. Monday evening, the council added a closed meeting to the agenda following the general business section and prior to the public comments section. Consequently anyone who wanted to offer a public comment, or listen to them, was forced to wait outside in the hallway for 15 to 20 minutes, before the open meeting resumed.

The same courtesy, the council extends to people with business other than making a public comment, should be extended to people who wish to make a public comment. Give them an opportunity to speak their piece and go home.

Closed meetings should be at the end of the agenda. In fact, unless members of the governing body specifically state before going into closed meeting that they intend to come back into open session and vote on something, they should adjourn immediately after coming back into open session.

While the city council's new policy on public comment is a step in the right direction which still could use some refinement, it should also be noted that the Charlevoix school board's policy on public comment also is slightly flawed.

The city council offers an opportunity for public comment concerning items not on the agenda (now near the end of meetings) and also offers opportunity for public comment on individual agenda items. The school board currently officially only offers an opportunity for public comment (agenda related or otherwise) at the beginning of the meeting. The school board agenda is rather nebulous and sometimes specific issues to be discussed don't become clear until they're actually being discussed. In effect, the current school board policy asks people if they have any public comments prior to letting them know exactly what issues they may wish to comment on. This hasn't seemed to be a problem because to its credit the board has been fairly open, in an unofficial way, to public comments during the course of the meeting - and to their credit school board audience members have been concise and to the point in offering comments. But still, the official policy makes no sense. The school board should at the very least move the public comments to the end of the agenda, or better yet do what the city does, allowing opportunity for public comment on specific agenda items at the time they are discussed, and allowing time for public comment on non-agenda items at the end of the meeting.

FAMILY

Carlson - Donnelly

Shelley Renee Carlson of Grand Rapids and Michael Patrick Donnelly of Grand Rapids were married August 7 at St. Isidore's Catholic Church in Grand Rapids.

The bride is the daughter of Barbara Carlson of Flint and Gary Carlson of Wasilla, Alaska. The groom is the son of Patrick and Judy Donnelly of Charlevoix.

The double ring ceremony was witnessed by 275 guests and performed by Father Don Lomasiowicz.

The church was decorated with ivory pew bows and flowers of white roses, alstermum, baby's breath and greens.

The bride wore an ivory gown made of bridal satin and trimmed with pearls. The gown had a pleated cathedral train and pleated sleeves. The bride designed her own veil of netting, pearls, and silk flowers.

Her bouquet was made of white roses, alstermum, baby's breath and greens. She wore her mother's pearls.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Curt and Molly Reppuhn, playing trumpet and piano; Randy Riepma, playing trumpet; and Bill Marlink, organist.

Matron of Honor was Carolyn Miller. Bridesmaids were Natalie Carlson, sister of the bride, Lynn Pearl, Angela Ames, and Mary Lang, sister of the groom.

The bridesmaids wore teal length, teal green satin brocade dresses. Their dresses were trimmed with ivory brocade lace and off the shoulder collars. They carried arm bouquets of white roses, lilies and greens.

Lynnae Kelly was the bride's flower girl. She wore a teal green dress designed by her mother, Tammy Kelly.

The best man was David Lang, brother-in-law of the groom.

Shelley & Michael Donnelly

Groomsmen were Bob Jones, Mark Gontko, Doug Miller and Neil LaCroix. Serving as ushers were Scott Frank and Seth Arnold.

A reception was given by the parents of the bride and groom at the Meijer Banquet Hall. Molly Arnold attended the guest book.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at Brann's restaurant of Grand Rapids the evening before the wedding.

The newlyweds to a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Bar Harbor, Maine and Nova Scotia. They will make their home in Grand Rapids.

The bride has an associate's degree from Northwestern Michigan

Himebauch 50th

Clarence & Lucille Himebauch

Clarence and Lucille Himebauch will celebrate their 50th anniversary Saturday, Oct. 9 at an open house hosted by their children. The open house will take place from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Barnard Church. Friends are invited to stop by and congratulate the couple. Bring no gifts, best wishes will suffice.

Clarence Himebauch and Lucille Potter were married Oct. 12, 1943 at the Methodist Parsonage in Charlevoix. They spent their entire married life living in Charlevoix, first on Klooster Road and later on Black Road. Clarence worked at Hodgkiss & Douma for 30 years as well as being a farmer. Lucille was a housewife and mother. The couple has eight children, 20 grandchildren and 17 great grandchildren.

obituaries

Edward L. Beutner

Edward L. Beutner, 85, of Lancaster, Pennsylvania died Oct. 2 after a lengthy illness.

He was the husband of Louise Busch Beutner, who died in 1980.

He had lived in Lancaster for the past 10 years.

A geologist, Beutner received his bachelor's degree from Michigan State University in 1930 and his master's degree from Northwestern University in 1932. After additional graduate study at the University of Michigan, he began work in 1934 for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service as a soil erosion research scientist.

In 1944, he joined the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co. as an exploration geologist based in Ishpeming, Mich., and Pittsburgh. He supervised exploration for iron ore in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, New York, Canada, Colombia and Guinea. He retired as chief geologist for Jones & Laughlin in 1970.

Beutner was a member of the Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix and a former president of the Charlevoix Historical Society. He also was a member of the Fellow of Geological Society of America.

Born in New Buffalo, Mich., he was the son of the late Thomas and Katherine Beutner.

Surviving are two sons, Tom of Pittsburgh and Dr. Edward C. of Lancaster; a granddaughter; and a brother, William of Chicago.

Martha Walters

Martha Carlberg Walters, 89, of Norwood, died Oct. 1, 1993, at Boulder Park Terrace in Charlevoix.

A memorial service will be held in Palatine, Ill. at a later date.

She was born Feb. 22, 1904, in Sweden; the daughter of Per August and Anna (Johnson) Carlberg. She moved to the United States shortly after World War I and her family made their home in Illinois and Michigan.

She returned to Illinois where she owned and operated Martha's Beauty Shop in Wilmette for 40 years. She made her home in Salem, Ore. for several years, then lived with her daughter and son-in-law in Trenton, Mich. for two years before moving to the Norwood area.

Survivors include two daughters, Myrna McGraw and her husband Gerald of Norwood, and Marilyn Gorman and her husband Donn of Palatine, Ill.; one sister, Ebba Holmstrom of Grenna, Sweden; five grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews in the United States and Sweden.

Memorial contributions may be made to the First Church of Christ Scientist in Charlevoix, Boulder Park Terrace, or to the charity of choice.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

by REV. LOWELL ANDERSON

Perhaps you share my concern about tendencies in our society toward violence, hostility, and malice. News of senseless drive-by shootings, the resurgence of gangs in our cities, and the rising amount of lawsuits indicate a society that is losing control. We tend to look to government, law enforcement, and even our schools to provide solutions.

While the involvement of our institutions will be helpful, we must look first to ourselves for the answer. While recently reading the Old Testament book of Proverbs I came across a number of verses of wisdom that address the matters of self-control and temperance in a forthright manner. In fact the word "pointed" may better describe the tenor of the verses!

"Better is a man who controls his temper than one who takes a city." (Prov. 16:32). While our society has become preoccupied with self-expression and individual rights issues it has become time to address the related issues of self-control and individual responsibilities. Rather than always "let it all hang out" or "get it off our chest" it is often better and ultimately more productive to control our temper, and our words, and just "let it go."

"It is to a man's honor to avoid strife, but every fool is quick to quarrel" (Prov. 20:3). In plain vanilla, it's a fool who is quick tempered! To respond in kind to a harsh word or a provocation of any kind is to reduce ourselves to the level of the other person. When someone else acts like a fool it certainly isn't to our credit to act like them.

The Proverbs give wise counsel to those who desire to become part of the answer in our hostile world, and not part of the problem. "A gentle answer turns away wrath, but a harsh word stirs up anger" (Prov. 15:1). Let's decide to turn things around by responding maturely to the provocations and irritations of others. Let's try the soft answer approach.

Here's some more wise advice: "...a prudent man overlooks an insult" (Prov. 12:16). Most people who are giving someone else a piece of their mind really don't have it to spare. Overlooking insults can go a long way to preserving friendships and saving marriages. We all get out of sorts at times and say things that we really don't intend to say. Speaking kind words in response, or merely overlooking a hasty word, will better serve ourselves and others.

It all boils down to treating others the way we would like to be treated. Let's all be students of the fine art of self-control.

CB North Bank celebrates merger with open house

Charlevoix County State Bank and First State Bank of Charlevoix completed their merger last week and celebrated with an open house Monday evening as CB North.

The merger, which had been planned for several months, officially took place Oct. 1. Although CB North will still maintain a small office in the old Charlevoix County State Bank building at the corner of Bridge and Clinton Streets, the bank's main office will be in the former First State Bank building on the southwest corner of State and Clinton Streets.

Former First State Bank President Lou Hollow is now serving as president of CB North. Former Charlevoix County State Bank President Francis Flanders is now serving as chairman of CB North.

CB North is an affiliate of CB Financial, a bank holding company based in Jackson. CB Financial also has affiliated banks in Jackson and St. Johns. Brian Bell, Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer of CB Financial was on hand for Monday evening's open house.

The merger of the two banks makes CB North one of northern Michigan's larger banks with assets of $128.4 million. The merger in addition to the affiliation with CB Financial increases the bank's resources and ability to provide expanded services. CB North will employ 45 to 50 people and will have branches in Beaver Island, Boyne City, East Jordan, Eastport and Ellsworth as well as Charlevoix.

Max Gennett honored after 30 years of keeping the Belvedere green

By L. Scott Swanson

Friday afternoon, in a brief gathering which took place on the lawn in front of the Belvedere Golf Club's clubhouse, overlooking the greens and rolling fairways where he has spent thousands of hours over the past three decades, Max Gennett was honored by the club and his coworkers. Gennett, who is retiring after 30 years as the club's greens superintendent, received a plaque from the club, presented by Belvedere Club manager Tom Conlan and another plaque from the crew of men who had worked for him, presented by assistant greens keeper Frank Thiel. Gennett fought to control his emotions as Thiel told him that he has been a good man to work for and the crew wanted to give him the plaque as a gesture of their appreciation.

The Gennett family has worked on the golf course since its beginning Max's brother, Dick Gennett has worked on the golf course for 42 years. Their father helped build the course in 1926 and 1927 and worked there until 1953. Max Gennett began working on the golf course as a caddy and worked there off and on until becoming the greens superintendent in 1963.

Friday morning was Gennett's first day of retirement and he said he still got up at 5:45 through force of habit. Keeping the golf course in top shape, especially for events such as the Michigan Amateur Tournament which the Belvedere hosted for many years, is something which Gennett says was a lot of work. Gennett says that over the years keeping the golf course in shape has become much more mechanized. In the early days, the fruits:

Cake:
Butter and lightly flour an 8 x 8 baking dish
1 1/2 cups all purpose flour
1 tsp. baking soda
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. ground cloves
1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg
1/2 tsp. ground allspice
4 oz. unsalted butter, at room temperature
1/2 cup dark brown sugar
2 large eggs
1/4 cup molasses
1 T. grated fresh ginger
2/3 cup buttermilk
1 cup peeled and thinly sliced fresh Bartlett pears confectioner's sugar for dusting.

In a three quart bowl, sift flour, soda, salt, cloves, nutmeg, and allspice.

In another bowl, cream butter and brown sugar. Add the eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Stir in molasses and ginger. Fold in half of the flour mixture, the buttermilk, and then the remaining flour in that order. Stir till ingredients are just combined. Fold in the sliced pears and spread in prepared baking pan. Bake in preheated 325 degree oven for 40 minutes, or until cake tester comes out clean. Do not overbake. Remove from oven and cool. Cut into squares, dust with confectioner's sugar and serve slightly warm with Pear Brandy Sauce.

Pear Brandy Sauce:

Zest of one lemon
Juice of one lemon
2 cups water
1/2 cup sugar
4 eight ounce Bartlett pears
1/4 cup Pear William (Pear Brandy) or Cognac, if desired

Strip the zest from the lemon with a potato peeler. Place in a non-reactive saucepan with the lemon juice, water, and sugar. Cook over medium heat till sugar is dissolved. Meanwhile peel, quarter, and seed the pears. Cook in sugar syrup till pears are tender and syrup is reduced by about one-half. Remove from heat and cool. Remove 1/2 of the lemon zest from the cooked pears, and puree the fruit and syrup in a blender or food processor till the mixture is creamy and smooth. Strain into a bowl and stir in Pear William or Cognac. (Sauce should have a creamy, sauce consistency, and should not mound.)

(traditional lemon sauce is great too, if you prefer a simpler offering)

Apple Crisp, from Beverly Boss. Boss technically fits into the amateur status of chefs, but ask anyone who's attended a pot luck dinner where Boss's food was present and they'll tell you that folks ask in advance what Boss made, then rush to the head of the line to get to her food first.

Mix together:
8 cups Granny Smith apples, sliced

1/2 cup white sugar
1 tsp cinnamon
1 cup golden raisins - optional
1 cup cider or apple juice
Place in buttered pan

Top with:

2 cups flour
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup butter or oleo

Bake at 350 for 35 - 45 minutes
Best if served warm and topped with ice cream

AND THEN YOU EAT!

BIER POTTERY

Gallery of Distinction

In the late 1800's, the first classes were taught at the Hilton schoolhouse. Now, more than 100 years later, the building is open to the public as an art gallery. The gallery has a very fine and interesting selection of creative art. A backdrop view of Lake Michigan with its islands and peninsula enhances its already tranquil appeal. "Everyone seems to enjoy themselves here and that's what it's all about." Truly a gallery of distinction.

Bier Pottery is located six miles south of Charlevoix on U.S. 31. They are open daily, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., late April through October and on weekends during November and December.

Potters Ray and Tami Bier are enjoying their twelfth successful year. A lively art exhibition awaits you in this unique one-room schoolhouse gallery. The Biers' handmade stoneware includes animal sculptures, nativity sets, and delicately detailed frog/floral and wildlife designs. Enjoy a variety of fine collectable art here.

Applefest displays harvest

By Laurie Lounsbury

Wipe the salt and butter off your chin, 'cause the season of eating sweet corn is over. It's time to switch your taste buds over to the fruits of fall. The star fruit is unquestionably the apple, a multi-talented piece of fruit that can perform magnificently under a variety of conditions. It's darling as a dumpling, sassy in your stuffing, and flirty in the fruitbowl. Competing for attention in autumn are the pears, plums, and pumpkins, each with its own style and panache.

Since area folks will be flocking to the Applefest and buying fruit by the bushel, we thought we'd provide everyone with some popular autumn fruit recipes from some of Charlevoix's celebrity chefs, both professional and amateur.

Apples Alyssa, from Michael Belfy, Chef at Stafford's Weathervane.

Belfy says that this flaming dessert recipe is easy to make and it makes a good show for those who like to dazzle their dining companions. If you're fearful of the flames, you can skip the fiery portion of the recipe.

4 red delicious apples, cored and cut in one inch cubes.

4 Tablespoons brown sugar
2 Tablespoons butter
1 to 2 shots ginger brandy
vanilla ice cream.

Melt butter in saute pan until bubbling. Add brown sugar, stir until it starts to caramelize. Add apples and stir until tender. Add ginger brandy and bring to a boil. At this point it can be poured over ice cream. To flame the dessert, heat a shot of brandy and add to mixture, set it on fire and sprinkle cinnamon on it to create sparks, then pour over ice cream.

Dave and Gail's Apple Dumplings, from Dave and Gail Phillips, Caterers at Oleson's Food Stores.

Phillips reports that this recipe is so popular he sold hundreds of dumplings each year at Applefest. "I couldn't keep up with the demand," Phillips reported.

The recipe can be made with the following crust recipe, or store bought puff pastry can be used instead.

Dough - 4 cups flour, 2 and a half cups Crisco shortening, 1 egg, 1 Tablespoon vinegar, and a half cup water.

Mix dough and roll into thin sheet.

Dumpling - 1 Macintosh apple, cored. Stuff apple with brown sugar and sprinkle with cinnamon. Place on pastry dough, and fold dough up over the apple, enveloping the apple. Turn upside down on baking sheet. Eggwash dough with one egg yolk mixed with one to two table-spoons of water. Sprinkle with cinnamon sugar.

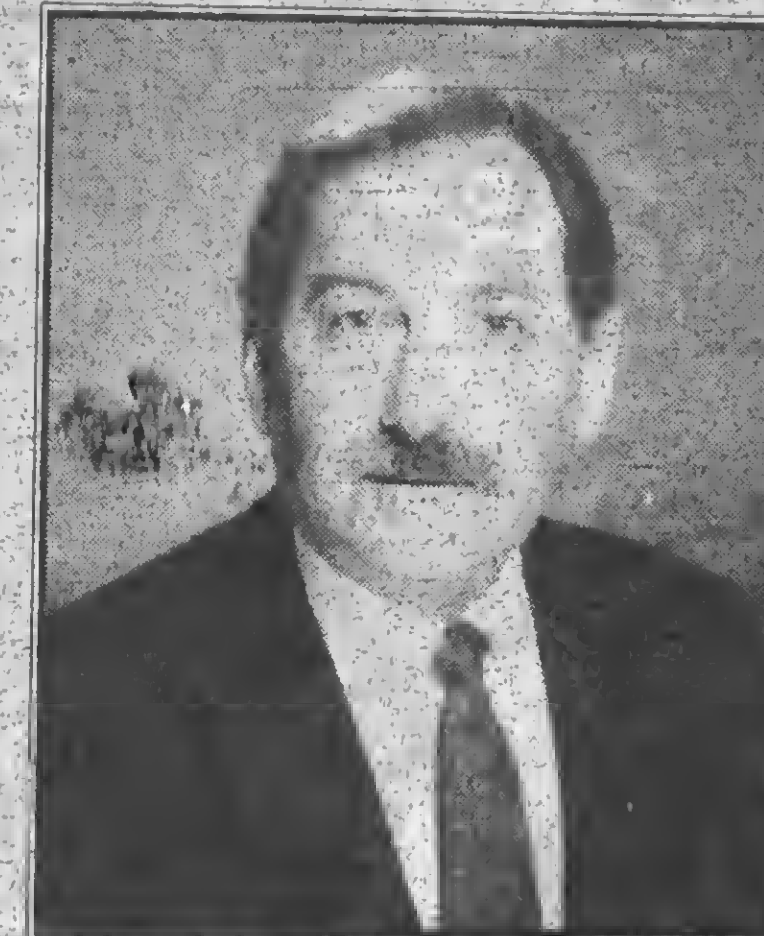

Bake apple at 350 degrees for about 30 minutes, until outside is golden brown and apple is tender when poked with toothpick.

Sauce for Dumpling - 2 cups apple cider, 2 Tablespoons cornstarch. Mix the two then heat, sprinkling a teaspoon each of brown sugar, cinnamon, and nutmeg as it heats. Pour mixture over baked apple. Add rum or apple brandy for a little extra zing.

Pear and Fresh Ginger Cake, from Harlan Peterson, Chef at Pete and Mickey's and Tapawingo. Peterson offered a bounty of autumn fruit recipes, but we picked this one for its use of pears, one of our personal favorite

ANNOUNCING THE MERGER OF CHARLEVOIX COUNTY STATE BANK AND FIRST STATE BANK OF CHARLEVOIX

Sure, competition can take you far. But cooperation can take you farther.

Take Charlevoix County State Bank and First State Bank of Charlevoix.

They have joined forces to become a great new bank, CB North. Good for them.

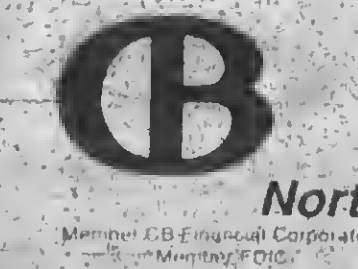

Good for the whole Charlevoix area.

Because they're combining resources, knowledge, and experience, and they're supported by CB Financial, one of Michigan's premier bank holding companies.

Because all the time and energy and expense that used to go into competition will now be going into service, better service and more of it, for all of us.

Don't look for sweeping changes at the new CB North, just more of the same. Only better.

Because competition's great, but friendship's greater.

CB NORTH.

Charlevoix's varsity girls' basketball team is on a roll. After knocking off previously unbeaten Ellsworth 58-52 Tuesday, Sept. 28 the Rayders beat East Jordan 67-41, Thursday, Sept. 30.

Although the Rayders didn't shoot particularly well against East Jordan (hitting only 35 percent from the floor) their full-court, in-your-face, constant-harassment, don't-even-think-about-getting-comfortable defense annoyed East Jordan resulting in 19 Rayder steals.

Charlevoix led at the quarter marks, 11-7, 24-17, 44-30 and finished up 67-41.

Individually, Liz Grunch led the Rayders with 18 points and eight steals. Jamie Doan contributed 17 points and five rebounds. Angela Buday had 11 points and five rebounds while Becky Bragg also had five rebounds.

After starting the season 0-3, the Rayders have won five of their last six games and are now 5-4.

Charlevoix won the junior varsity game 58-36 while East Jordan took the freshmen contest 39-38.

This Thursday evening the Rayders will host conference rival Harbor Springs in a preview of what could possibly be a key district tournament match-up.

Shannon Rowell (44) tries to find some room between some of Ellsworth's taller players. Rowell and her Rayder teammates beat previously unbeaten Ellsworth 58-52.

Organizational meetings for Charlevoix Recreation Department volleyball and basketball leagues will take place Wednesday, Oct. 6 at City Hall. The volleyball meeting will be at 7 p.m. and the basketball meeting will be at 8 p.m. All teams should send a representative. Anyone who wishes to play, but hasn't found a team should also attend.

Two in a row constitutes a streak

Rayder football team wins 27-13

After starting the season with three losses, the Rayder varsity football team is now in a position to even their season record at 3-3 this coming Friday evening. This past Friday, the Rayders traveled to Elk Rapids and won 27-13.

Charlevoix never trailed against the Elks. In fact, the Rayders built a 19-0 lead before Elk Rapids got on the scoreboard.

The Rayders opened the scoring in the first quarter on a 17-yard pass from Don Jess to Brandon Webb. Rob Stradiner kicked the extra point. In the second quarter, Webb scored again, this time on a 20-yard run. The extra point attempt failed and Charlevoix led 13-0 at the half.

Early in the third quarter the Rayders extended their lead to 19-0 as Chris Pair caught a 5-yard touchdown pass from Jess.

Elk Rapids scored later in the third quarter on a 31-yard run. Pair blocked the extra point attempt.

Charlevoix scored its final points of the game early in the fourth quarter. Jerry Duhart caught a five-yard touchdown from Jess which was followed by a two-point conversion pass from Jess to Pair. Elk Rapids scored a meaningless touchdown late in the game.

Individually, Jess finished 11 of 18 passing for 133 yards. Webb caught 5 passes for 93 yards and carried the ball seven times for 93 yards. Duhart picked up 59 yards.

on 15 carries. David Skeel totaled 43 yards in nine carries and Bryan Jarema gained 37 yards in four carries.

Defensively, Pair had eight tackles while Gregg Holmes had five.

Webb intercepted a pass while Trevor Williams and Josh Watros each recovered a fumble.

This Friday evening Charlevoix will play its homecoming game against Harbor Springs.

Boys cross country shows well again

Charlevoix's boys' cross country team just missed a first place finish in the Carson City-Crystal Cross-Country Invitational Saturday. The Rayders finished in a tie on points with Leslie. The tie was broken by taking the place of the two team's sixth runners. Leslie's sixth runner finished three seconds ahead of the Charlevoix runner.

Although the Rayders ended up placing behind Leslie, they finished ahead of Carson City and Clare, teams which have been ranked second and third in Class C polls. But then making a mockery of downstate newspaper polls and rankings is nothing new to the Rayders. Several times the Rayders have spent the season ranked fourth, fifth or lower and then won state titles.

In Carson City Saturday, junior Mike Bush continued to lead the Raiders. Bush placed second in the race, with a time of 16:01, one second behind the race winner. Matt Dickinson placed third in 16:03.

Other Rayder boys and their finishes were: 10 - Chris LeButt, 16:59; 18 - Josh Dhasleer, 17:18; 24 - Justin Davis, 17:45; 31 - Paul Henne, 17:57; and 42 - Scott Campbell, 18:16.

The Charlevoix girls' team placed 13th among 21 teams. Rayder girls' places and times were: 12 -becca Chamberlain, 20:51; 65 - Lisa Hoadley, 22:54; 78 - Trina Holm, 23:46; 91 - Bethany Martinus, 24:32; 100 - Kaylee Manker, 24:56; 113 - Katie Thorp, 25:59; and 117 - Callie Siwarga, 26:00.

Charlevoix will host the Marlin Invitational this Saturday beginning at 9:30 a.m. on the Belvedere Golf Course.

Tom Meggison wins contest in second week

The winner of this past week's contest was Tom Meggison who went 8-2. For winning last week's contest Meggison will receive a free six-month subscription to the Charlevoix Courier. Mike Webb finished second with a 7-3 selection record.

It was a tough week. While some people expected a generally miserable showing by Detroit, nobody envisioned such a completely miserable showing. The Illinois - Purdue and Boston College - Syracuse games also throw off a few people.

This week's picks: Last week's record, another subpar 6-4. Season record 12-8.

Harbor Springs at Charlevoix. It's Charlevoix's homecoming. Traditionally, that means brutal weather, queen candidates freezing their royal little selves and a Charlevoix win. In this case, a win which would bring the Raydars' season record up to .500. Pick - Charlevoix.

Petoskey - Gaylord. I picked Petoskey last week. I won't make that mistake again. Pick - Gaylord.

Escanaba - Cheboygan. The toughest game to call among this week's high school games. Pick - Cheboygan.

Michigan - Michigan State. Assuming Michigan doesn't make the same mistake CMU did, looking past Michigan State to tougher teams such as Ball State, Michigan should win easily. Pick - Michigan.

Miami - Florida State. This should be an entertaining game. It's one of the few tough games on Miami's wimp schedule. Pick - Florida State.

Central Michigan University - Western Michigan University. This is a great college match-up in which the students from both schools operate under the philosophy, "It's not whether you win or lose. It's how much fun you have carousing afterward." Pick - Central Michigan.

New York Giants - Washington Redskins. The Giants made a good move when they dumped Ray Handley and picked up Dan Reeves as coach. Brooks is running well for Washington, but he won't be enough to win this game. Pick - Giants.

Denver - Green Bay. This one's tough to call. Both of these teams are good, but not great. Pick - Denver.

Cleveland - Miami. A match-up similar to Denver and Green Bay. The battle between Miami's offensive line and Cleveland's defensive line will be the deciding factor. Pick - Miami.

New York Jets - L.A. Raiders.

Early in the season, L.A. looked like they might be improving, but then their quarterback got hurt and their offense started to look like Detroit's. Meanwhile, for the first time in years, New York has not one, but two good teams. Pick - Jets.

only heavy equipment was a tractor to pull the mowers. Some of the crew members used to haul their shovels and rakes out onto the course in a wheelbarrow.

As greenskeeper, Gennett lived in a house near the seventh green. Now, in retirement, he and his wife Margaret have moved to a house in town. Although it might seem like the golf course would be a quieter setting than in town, Gennett has found the truth to be just the opposite. He said that out at the course there was always machinery coming and going at all hours of the night. Over time, he got used to that. In fact, he says now that he's moved into town, "it seems like it's quieter. I can't sleep."

Despite being retired, Gennett plans on staying in touch with what's happening at the course. "As long as I keep coming out here, I won't miss much," he says. Gennett says that in his younger days he used to do some golfing himself, but that in recent years he hadn't played much. In his retirement, he hopes to do some more golfing.

Rick Grunch has been hired to take Gennett's place as greens superintendent.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

U.S. FISH AND WILDLIFE SERVICE

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Service), an agency of the Department of the Interior, is seeking public comments on a recovery plan written for Houghton's goldenrod (Solidago houghtonii), which was listed in July 1988 as a threatened species under the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended. This species occurs in the United States in eight Michigan counties on the shores of Lakes Huron and Michigan, one Michigan county slightly inland, and one New York county. The principle causes for decline of this species are development of the species' limited lakeshore habitat and the overuse of these areas for recreational activities, particularly off-road vehicles.

The recovery goal is to restore the species to a secure status in its natural setting. The recovery plan is being developed to provide a guide for Federal and State agencies and other parties interested in helping the species and identifies species and habitat factors of concern for those considering activities that may affect the species. The plan describes tasks that, when accomplished, should ensure the species' survival and thereby justify its removal from the endangered and threatened species list.

The draft recovery plan is available for public inspection during regular business hours at U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, East Lansing Ecological Services Field Office, 302 Manly Miles Building, 1405 South Harrison Road, East Lansing, Michigan 48823; 517/337-6650, or U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Region 3, Division of Endangered Species, Bishop Henry Whipple Federal Building, 1 Federal Drive, Ft. Snelling, Minnesota 55111, 612/725-3276. A copy of the draft recovery plan and additional information can be obtained from the Region 3 office in Ft. Snelling, Minnesota, at the above address. Public comments on the draft recovery plan are invited and should be sent to the Service's Region 3 office in Ft. Snelling, Minnesota, at the above address by October 18, 1993.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

TO: E DONALD NELSON and VIRGINIA A. NELSON, husband and wife, and all persons claiming under and through them:

Default having been made in the terms and conditions of a certain real estate mortgage made by E. Donald Nelson and Virginia A. Nelson, husband and wife, of 04101 State Road, Walloon Lake, Michigan, as Mortgages, to NBD Petoskey, N.A. (now NBD Bank, N.A.) of Petoskey, Michigan, as Mortgagee, which mortgage was dated February 10, 1989, and recorded March 23, 1989 in Liber 207, page 683; Charlevoix County Records; and the entire balance secured by said mortgage having become due and payable by reason of the acceleration provision provided in said note and mortgage; and upon which mortgage there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, for principal and accrued interest the sum of $192,345.09 and no suit or proceeding having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof;

Now, Therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statutes of the State of Michigan in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that on the 9th day of November, 1993 at 10:00 a.m., said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public auction to the highest bidder at the main lobby of the Charlevoix County Building in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, that being the building where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held, of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amounts due, as aforesaid, on said mortgage with charges and expenses, including reasonable attorney fees; and also any sums which may, subsequent to the date of this notice, be paid by the undersigned, necessary to protect its interest in the premises. The premises to be foreclosed, described in said mortgage, are situated in Melrose Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan and are described as follows:

Beginning at an iron stake in the center of the Boyne City and Springvale State Road which is 104 feet East 302.21 feet North of the meander post at the intersection of the section line between Sections 9 and 16, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, and the East shore of Walloon Lake; thence along the center line of said road North 13°10' East 497.3 feet to an iron stake at the angle of said road; thence South 49°27' West 345.0 feet to the shore of said Walloon Lake; thence Southerly along the shore of said lake 300 feet to a point directly West of the beginning and 75 feet North of the center line of the Walloon Lake Branch of the G.R. and I.R.; thence East, parallel with the center line of said railroad 129 feet to the Point of Beginning; EXCEPTING THEREFROM the three following described portions thereof; Namely:

(1) a strip of land 6 feet wide, North and South, across the South end thereof, (2) a strip of land 50 feet in width extending Westerly from and at right angles to the West line of the State Road above mentioned on the Village of Walloon Lake to the shore of Walloon Lake, the Southeast corner of said strip being on the West line of said State Road and 357 feet Northwardly; measured along said West road line from the meander stake at the intersection of said West line of said State Road with the South line of Section 9, Township 33 North, Range 5 West; (3) commencing 104 feet East and 302.21 feet North of the meander post located at a point where the section line between Sections 9 and 16, Township 33 North, Range 5 West intersect the East shore of Walloon Lake; thence West to the Westerly line of the State Highway, this being the starting point for this description of land to be excepted in this paragraph; thence Northwardly to a point North 13°10' East 357 feet from the said meander post; thence North 76°50' West to the shore of Walloon Lake; thence South along the shore of said Lake to a point due West of the Point of Beginning above mentioned; thence East to the Place of Beginning.

The redemptive period afforded Mortgages by statute is 6 months from date of foreclosure sale.
